MEN FOR BIG CITY HALL JOBS INDORSED

ARMY OF 75,000 READY TO MOVE ON GEN. GLOOM

Prosperity Parade Will Surpass All Civic Demonstrations.

START AT 2 O'CLOCK.

All Chicago is to give itself over to the prosperity parade tomorrow.

With the prospect of the parade running up to 75,000 participants on foot, floats, and motors, Col. E. C. Racey, commander in chief of the civic demonstration, which is expected to surpass all previous efforts of like nature, announced last night that the hour of starting had been advanced from 1:30 until 2 o'clock. This step was necessary in order to mobilize the army of marchers and motors which will swing into line.

Twenty-seven thousand persons have applied for positions in the marching line. Six thousand two hundred automobile owners have notified the committee that they will take part in the parade.

350 Floats to Take Part.

Various industries of Chicago, ward clubs, and the like, have promised 350 floats, all decorated to carry out the keynote of the day—prosperity.

E. N. Fowler and E. T. Davies, who have been acting with Col. Racey, said it is expected the parade will take five hours to pass the reviewing stand, providing it moves with the precision which the managers have planned for it.

Mayor Thompson and his cabinet members will make a flying review of the parade in autos down Michigan boulevard. Then a captive balloon carrying several prominent men and women will be sent up. The balloon feature will be staged at 1:15 p. m. Daylight fireworks, bombs, silk flags, and elephants, will hold the attention of the prosperity boosters for the next fifteen minutes.

Set Piece 60 Feet Long.

The daylight fireworks have been donated for the occasion by George Newton & Co. At 8 o'clock aerial fireworks of various kinds will be displayed. One set piece inscribed, "Peace and Prosperity," 60 feet long, will be set off early in the evening.

There will be inaugural and prosperity balls in all the downtown hotels. Tickets for admittance to these may be obtained at the hotels. The evening entertainment at the hotels was suggested by Charles McHugh, president of the Hotel Men's association.

The committee in charge of the parade has made special arrangements for the comfort of the paraders and their guests. Hospital tents have been or will be erected along the line of march. Comfort stations also will be arranged for. In addition, eight private ambulances will be stationed at various points along the line of march, for use in case of accident.

Col. Racey at Viaduct.

The commander in chief of the parade, Col. Racey, will have his headquarters at the Monroe street viaduct. Mr. Davies, of the committee on arrangements, will have a permanent station at the Van Buren street viaduct, and will aid in the direction of the parade from that point. Mr. Fowler, who will pay special attention to the vehicles and automobiles in the parade, will make his headquarters at Park court and Michigan boulevard.

Col. Racey announced last night that in order to move such a huge body the marchers and automobiles must mobilize in Grant park about noon, so the different sections may be assigned their positions. He declared that 1:15 would be absolutely the outside time limit for participants to mobilize.

Police Plans Complete.

Capt. Richards of the south park police has arranged to have all his men on duty and aid in the handling of the marchers, military men on horseback, and the automobiles.

Capt. Charles C. Healey of the mounted squad, slated for chief of police, will have the city's traffic squad on duty to see that the line moves without interruption.

The committee has made the prosperity feature extend beyond the limits of Chicago. Letters were sent to more than 1,000 mayors and village presidents in Illinois inviting them to attend Chicago's prosperity parade. Replies from at least 200 of these accepting the invitation have been received at the committee's headquarters. The mayors of the larger cities in the surrounding states also have been asked to share the space with Mayor Thompson in the reviewing stand.

One of the first evidences of prosperity

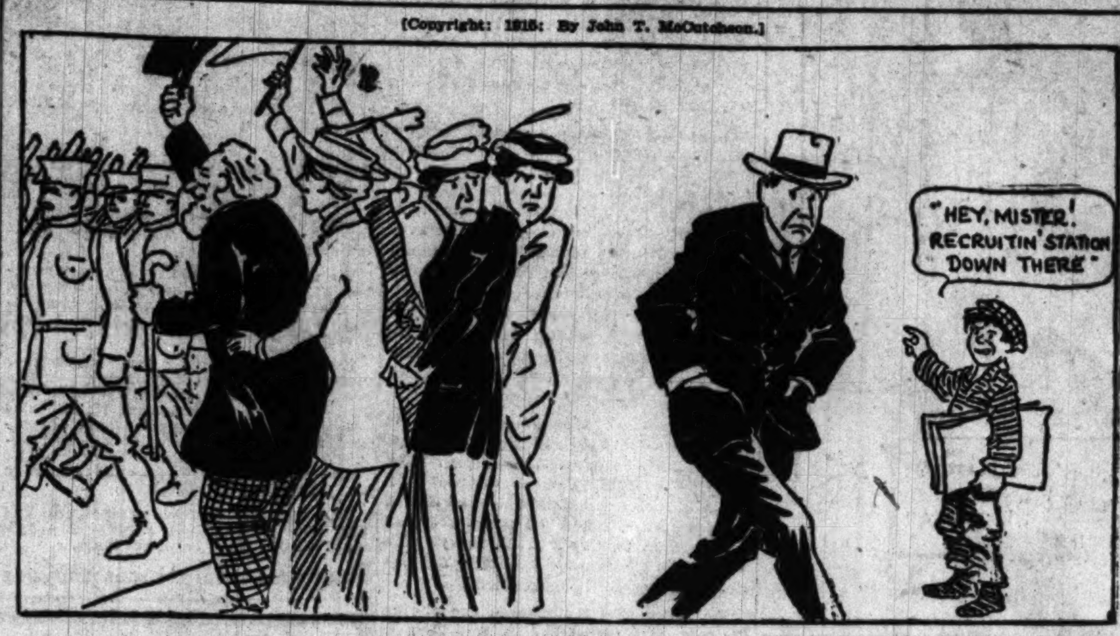
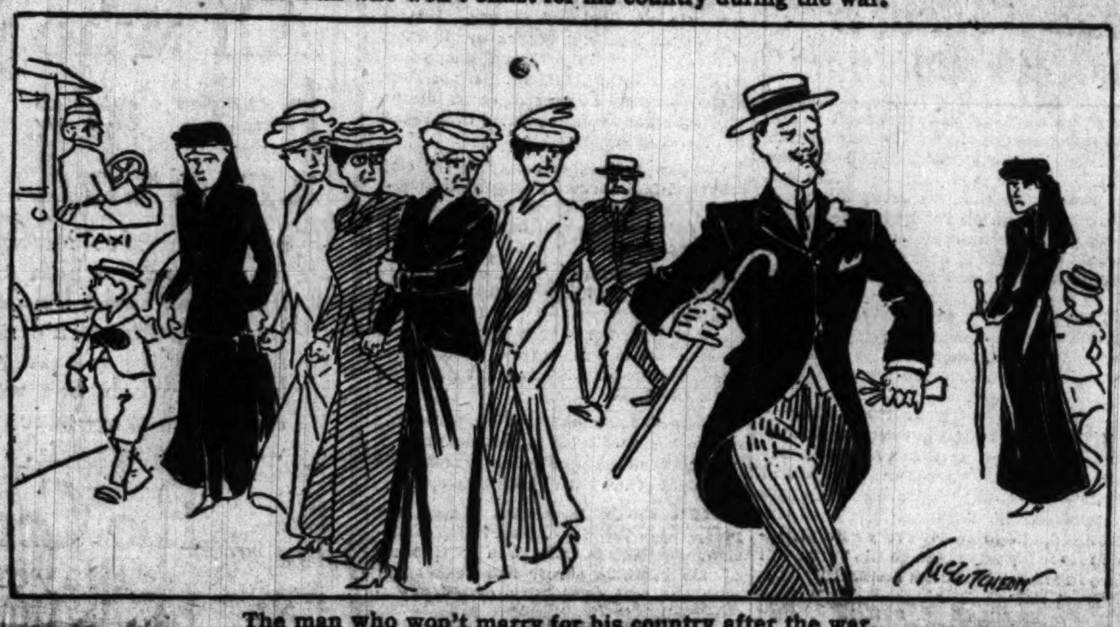
TWO UNPOPULAR EUROPEANS.

[Copyright: 1915: By John T. McCutcheon.]



"HEY, MISTER! RECRUITIN' STATION DOWN THERE"

The man who won't enlist for his country during the war.



The man who won't marry for his country after the war.

GIRLS, GET CASH BEFORE YOU WED!

Settle Home Finances in Advance If You'd Be Happy, Woman's Advice.

No, it isn't necessary to take a course in home economics or household arts to get along well in the profession of being a wife. All that is necessary is a good disposition and a satisfactory prenuptial contract stating how the family wealth will be dispensed.

That, at least, is the opinion of one of the leaders of the home department of the Chicago Woman's club, who has set out to help the home in general through the home department. She is Mrs. L. Brackett Bishop. There are others in the department, however, who appear too old fashioned or too New Englandish to agree with Mrs. Bishop.

That Affable Disposition.

"Sweeping, cooking, and sewing are great things in the home," Mrs. Bishop said, "but an affable and charming disposition make far happier homes than perfect housekeeping.

"We are teaching our young girls the practical things in home making, but all too few are impressed with the fact that a man can be happy with an adorably sweet woman even if she does not dust and sweep as well as a practiced slavey. They learn housekeeping gradually after marriage, anyway."

Some of the women interrupted and said they believed women who are bad housekeepers lose their husbands.

Too Much Good Housekeeping.

"That sounds well, but prove it by facts," Mrs. Bishop came back. "I have several friends who are divorced and their trouble was too much good housekeeping. A man wants a real home, where he can spill his pipe ashes around and put his feet on chairs, and let his books and hats lie around.

"And I believe that two-thirds of the divorces and nine-tenths of the domestic trouble is caused by home finances. Every man and woman about to be married should enter into a contract before marriage stating how the finances are to be distributed. It is better to settle the question right there and then than it is to have it settled later in the Court of Domestic Relations.

Beware of Pauperism.

"The causes of domestic trouble are not wickedness or inefficiency. But a marriage without such a contract is like a business partnership without one. The woman should not be made a pauper and the man should not be the dispenser of the domestic finances."

Mrs. Bishop said three lawyers are at present working on the plan of such a contract which is to be presented to the public with advice to young people to sign up.

Just Another View.

Mrs. Charles H. Betts maintained that it is the happy combination of the good housekeeper and the good disposition which makes the happy home.

"A large part of the drunkenness is due to poor food," Mrs. John C. Bley said. "I was active at Fellowship house for a number of years, and you would be surprised to know how many families never sit around a table but eat their meals out of paper bags."

Mrs. William M. Welch, chairman of the home department for next year, was inclined to agree with those opposing Mrs. Bishop. She said:

"A woman ought to feel economically independent. The right kind of a man makes her feel so, without any contract."

NAMELESS BABES A WAR PROBLEM

British Lawmaker Advocates Forgiving Mothers Lest Newborn Suffer.

(By Cable to The Chicago Tribune.)

LONDON, April 24.—Ronald McNeill, member of parliament and the first of Great Britain's lawmakers to take up the war babies' problem now confronting the country, explained today his attitude toward the question which is now a matter of serious consideration to the people at large as well as to social workers.

He is at the head of a committee which is trying to make a census to ascertain the extent of illegitimacy directly connected with the war, so far as this country is concerned.

He brought on his head considerable criticism because of his advocacy of forgiving mothers of war babies, although, he explains, he does not mean thereby to condone matters.

Called Problem of the War.

"It is best to face the problem squarely," he declared. "It should be viewed as one of the results of war. At the present time I do not see how government legislation can be expected, but I for one am in favor of a general edict of forgiveness from the pulpits throughout the country at a specified time which would automatically remove the stigma from the mothers of these infants. This stigma must be removed if such mothers are to be expected to care for their babies."

Lady Ebury, active chairwoman of the Watford board of guardians, which covers a section including two of the principal camp areas in south England, Watford and St. Albans, says: "From inquiries made, I am certain that the number of bonafide soldier cases is small."

This is regarded as remarkable, because the borough in which Mr. McNeill states that 2,000 war babies are expected is commonly said to be Watford.

Note Species of Hysteria.

A peculiar psychological feature is the fact that, the problem being ventilated in the present, instead of proving a valuable warning to girls and young women, it has been noted that soldiers are in higher favor with them than before.

In fact, army doctors and clergymen who have studied the conditions closely express the opinion that vast numbers of girls are under the influence of a species of hysteria.

The most painful feature is the large proportion of girls quite young, between 15 and 16, who have been victimized and the attitude adopted by many of them of being quite proud of what would in other times be their grievous shame.

Residents Help Navy Chief Fight Nearby Saloons

Senatorial Committee Looks Coldly on Gathered Evidence.

MRS. DURAND HEARD

A LETTER.

North Chicago, Ill., Jan. 26, 1915.—Mr. Sherwin: I hate to be bothering you, but I have to. Anthony is spending nearly all his earnings on drink and we are refused in the stores. We can't get coal and the things we need. I am obliged to draw his pay. Blacklisting him is no good. I'm not going to have the children live on the town and have him spend his money. I can't stand it any longer. I can't go out working and keep my children from school. Please don't give him a cent. I have to pay my grocery bills.
Truly, MRS. A. MORAN.

ITS SEQUEL.
[From the North Chicago Times-Review.]

Anthony Moran, who lived near here and who had beaten his wife at their home outside the city limits of North Chicago on Twenty-second street a Friday night in February, was arrested, indicted by the grand jury, tried, and convicted of assault with intent to kill, although he sticks to the statement that he "did not know what he was doing." He was sentenced to the penitentiary for fourteen years.

The above letter and the sequel were introduced as evidence of the character of the saloons of North Chicago and Waukegan when an investigating committee from the Illinois senate met yesterday with Commandant W. A. Moffett of the naval training station to discuss the bill to provide a five mile dry zone around the training school campus.

The letter came to the Chicago Hardware and Foundry company from the wife of one of the employés. The company tried to get the saloons to stop selling liquor to Moran, and, failing, held his wages for his wife. Then the husband "beat her up."

E. P. Sedgwick, secretary of the foundry company, said he employed 600 men and that trouble such as illustrated in the Moran case was frequent.

Seventy-five Saloons in Vicinity.

Senators John Dailey, Albert Olson, and Morton D. Hull constituted the investigating committee. There are seventy-seven saloons in Waukegan and North Chicago. The training station is about eight miles from Waukegan.

Mr. Dailey considered evidence in Commandant Moffett's office for thirteen minutes and left for Peoria.

Mrs. Scott Durand was among the twenty-five citizens who met the committee. She staged a verbal combat with Senator Dailey, who said the only theory upon which the legislature would make the territory dry was protection to the government school. Prohibition was a matter for the citizens to decide.

Gardiner Bade Him Watch.

"I came here last September," said Commandant Moffett, "and following a query from Secretary Daniels I began to watch the influence of the 'joints' on my boys. In January two of our cadets while in full uniform and walking along soberly were insulted by some men in front of one of these places. During the fight that followed one of the boys was severely beaten.

"I tried to get action by State's Attorney Dady, but he advised me to drop the case. When the state's attorney was asked what could be done toward eliminating those places he smiled and said, 'Practically nothing.' Upon invitation I visited the senate committee at Springfield. This trip today is the result. I don't know whether they are going to pass that bill, but if they do not I am going to forbid my boys from going to North Chicago or Waukegan. Also I shall direct that as little business as possible be done in those towns. There are 1,200 persons here, and I think they miss some legitimate business.

"Naval men must be efficient, and no man who drinks has a place in the ranks of the fit so far as our navy is concerned."

Some Princeton Seniors Declare They "Never Wanted to"—Others Object on Hygienic Grounds.

Princeton, N. J., April 24.—Declaring they were "watchfully waiting" for the right girl, 22 per cent of Princeton university's seniors said today they had never been kissed. A few "never wanted to," while others said they objected to kissing for "hygienic reasons."

ALLIES CHECK GERMAN DRIVE IN FLANDERS

Will Irwin Tells of Desperate Battle Fought Near Ypres.

CANADIANS HEROES.

BY WILL IRWIN.
[COPYRIGHT: 1915: BY THE NEW YORK TRIBUNE.]

NORTH OF FRANCE, April 24.—There is no doubt that the action which has been proceeding about Ypres for a week and which probably will be known in history as the second battle of Ypres is the hardest and hottest yet developed on the extreme western frontier.

Indeed, no battle of the war has developed so much action on so concentrated a front.

It is the third desperate attempt of the Germans since this war began to break through the combined British and Belgian lines and take the important city of Calais.

From an attack on one small but important hill the action has spread until it involves at least half of the British-Belgian line, and it is widening hourly.

BRITISH WIN MINING "RACE."

It began a week ago in an attack on Hill No. 60, where the Germans held positions of great importance to the use of their artillery.

There had been mining and countermining. Had the British not fired the three mines which precipitated the action, the Germans, before the day was done, would doubtless have blown up the British positions at their front.

Through severe fighting the British secured the craters and held them against strong counter attacks. At the present time, contrary to German reports, Gen. French's army retains all this hill except the portion, strategically important, on its forward slope.

GENERAL ATTACK STARTED.

During the fight for this hill the British counter attacked several times in order to prevent the Germans from drawing off reinforcements to the critical point.

This series of attacks and counter attacks, running along the whole line, developed into that general attack on the British lines which the Germans probably had been planning ever since matters began to come to a deadlock in the Carpathians.

The Germans, making full use of their artillery, launched infantry attacks in their old manner—close locked. As formerly, the British and French slaughtered them heavily with machine gun and rifle fire.

Then, on Thursday, the Germans suddenly threw in that attack with asphyxiating bombs which will doubtless become famous in that they succeeded in breaking the line of French near Bixschoote, although not to such an extent as the Germans claim.

CANADIANS RECOVER GROUND.

The Canadian contingent of the British army, fighting with desperate bravery, succeeded in recovering part of the lost ground. They are still at it today.

The nature of the gases carried by the German asphyxiating shells remains a mystery. Whatever the gas is it spreads rapidly and remains close to the ground. It is believed not to be specially deadly. It overpowers its victims and puts them hors de combat for a few days without killing many.

The effect at Bixschoote may have been due to the panic caused by the new device. Its composition and manner of discharge probably are not a mystery to the scientific artillerists of the allies.

That such devices might be used in war has been known for a long time, but the positive prohibitions of The Hague conference prevented most of the nations of Europe from going far with experiments in this line.

MILLION MEN ENGAGED.

(By Cable to The Chicago Tribune.)

LONDON, April 24.—The most desperately fought battle of the war in the west is in progress today in Flanders, where the allies are engaged in an effort to beat back the Germans and recover the ground lost yesterday.

Along a front ten miles long, extending from Bixschoote in the north, to St. Eloi in the south, French, British, and Belgian troops are hammering at the kaiser's army.

OFFICIAL PAPER DENIES GERMANY WILL ASK PEACE.

Brands Rumors Absurd and Malevolent Invention, Citing Strong Position of Nation.

(By Cable to The Chicago Tribune.)

LONDON, April 24.—The North German Gazette officially repudiates rumors of German preparations for peace negotiations with the allies as a whole, with the allies separately, or the conclusion of a separate peace with England. It says:

"No sensible person would think of sacrificing a war situation so favorable to Germany for a premature peace. We must use every advantage of the military situation in order to create such security that nobody again will dare to disturb our peace.

"The rumors of any German inclination toward peace, considering our undiminished determination to conquer, are absurd and malevolent invention."

MAYOR CABINET LIST APPROVED WITHOUT HITCH

COUNCIL ACTS MONDAY

Representatives of Chicago's banking, manufacturing, professional and general business interests yesterday indorsed Mayor-Elect William Hale Thompson's cabinet slate at a meeting at the Hotel Sherman.

The nearly complete slate went through with hardly a discordant note. Harry A. Wheeler of the Union Trust company and former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce broke in on the set program at one point to suggest that Commissioner of Public Works Lawrence E. McGann be retained as a reward for faithful and efficient service.

List Generally Approved.

Former State Treasurer John F. Smulski also had a Polish constituent for president of the board of local improvements who was not on the approved list.

Otherwise the slate went through a-sailing, with James B. Forgan, president of the First National bank; William A. Tilden, president of the Fort Dearborn National bank; E. D. Hulburt of the Merchants' Loan and Trust; Charles G. Dawes of the Central Trust company, and other bankers and conspicuous business men and real estate leaders approving the list with some enthusiasm.

About 100 of the city's well known business leaders sat down to the luncheon in the crystal room prior to the big business of committing themselves to the new cabinet.

Chances to Smile.

Old time political generals smiled as the slate went through. Even some of the dignified bankers sniggled behind their hands now and then as the big assemblage could find but one candidate for the important positions.

And stoical Fred Lundin, the hero of a thousand conventions in the days when they knocked them down and dragged them out, beamed and smiled on all.

This was the meeting called in response to the new mayor's appeal the day after election to all the people of Chicago to help him frame a cabinet of high class business men.

Pelouze on the Job.

W. N. Pelouze, the new mayor's brother-in-law, who had charge of the arrangements for the conference, presided when it came to taking up the slate.

He explained the business men of Chicago had been called together to aid the next chief executive in selecting high grade men for the cabinet jobs. He then called for nominations for controller.

James B. Forgan, president of the First National bank, arose and extolled the virtues and capabilities of the man he had in mind. He named Eugene R. Pike, one of the mayor's campaign managers.

Leroy A. Goddard of the State Bank of Chicago arose and cordially seconded the nomination of Mr. Pike.

Healey Has Clear Field.

Chairman Pelouze called for other nominations. There were none. He passed to the next. He asked business men to suggest a man (or men) for chief of police.

Nelson N. Lampert of the Fort Dearborn National bank got up and told what a wonderful traffic squad director Capt. Charles C. Healey is.

John P. Garner, who said he knew something about the efficiency of Capt. Healey and his remarkable ability in traffic managing, asserted Chicago's mounted police had the reputation of being the best in the world. There was applause. No other name for chief of police was suggested.

Cheers for Moorhouse.

Mr. Pelouze again requested the bankers to aid the mayor in selecting a man for the important office of commissioner of public works.

Robert J. Dunham, representing the Armour packing interests, was assigned this nominating speech. He spoke for some minutes on the importance of the position, the most important, he thought, in the whole city service. He finally named William R. Moorhouse, a brother-in-law of Attorney Daniel Schuyler, who is the law partner of State Senator Samuel A. Ettelson, one of the "big three" on the inside of the Thompson campaign.

W. A. Tilden proposed a cheer.

H. H. Hitchcock of the First National bank seconded the nomination.

Mr. Pelouze was about to pass on to the next when Harry A. Wheeler of the Union

Trust company arose, and, with a smile, declared he might be guilty of heresy by proposing some other name, but if that were heresy then he was a heretic. He proposed that the new mayor retain in his present post Commissioner McGann, who, he said, had earned the confidence and esteem of all the people of Chicago by his ability and honesty.

Former State Senator Albert C. Clark then arose and made a speech that was not on the program. He advised the naming of an able man for chief assistant to the commissioner of public works. He forgot to name the man. He is, however, William N. Burkhardt, for many years private secretary to Mr. Thompson.

Folsom Gets a Boost.

Mr. Pelouze then passed to the office of corporation counsel and again asked that the business men aid the new mayor in picking a high class man for this post.

Mitchell D. Follansbee, president of the Chicago Bar association, made this nominating speech. He named Richard S. Folsom, former law partner of United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis and general counsel for the school board, a position that becomes automatically extinct on July 1.

Frederick Countiss, James B. Forgan of the First National bank, and Medill McCormick seconded this nomination.

Again Harry A. Wheeler arose and while the other bankers smiled and he smiled himself he said he was going to risk the heresy charge once more. He suggested the new mayor not overlook one of his own Republicans for this job—former Corporation Counsel Edward J. Brundage.

Dr. Robertson Boosted.

Then they passed on.

Mr. Pelouze asked whom they would have for health commissioner. Dr. A. C. Cotton, venerable looking under his shock of snow white hair and bowed frame, delivered a long speech to the effect that this was the most important cabinet position Mayor Thompson would have to fill. He finally named Dr. John Dill Robertson, one of the founders of the Lincoln league.

Dr. C. P. Caldwell, former president of the Chicago Medical society, delivered a warm seconding speech, declaring Dr. Robertson had come up from the bottom and made his way along a pathway strewn with successes.

There was some little uneasiness over this nomination. Finally George H. Taylor arose and suggested the mayor might consider the name of Dr. Albert T. Jacobson for health commissioner. There was no debate, however, and again they passed on.

Selections Come Fast.

Mr. Pelouze asked for suggestions for city collector.

Alexander Johnson, also one of the founders of the Lincoln league and a well known Swedish newspaper publisher, presented Charles J. Forsberg, former alderman of the Thirty-third ward.

Again they passed on.

The mayor wanted a first class man for city purchasing agent. John R. Thompson, former county treasurer and an anti-high cost of living advocate, took great pleasure in naming Virtus Rohm, one of the original band that started with Thompson and one of the managers of the campaign.

On Down the Line.

Mr. Pelouze wanted the name of a good man for president of the board of local improvements. E. G. Pauling, real estate man, was assigned this nominating speech. He presented the name of Michael J. Faherty of the Twenty-fifth ward, former president of the Irish Fellowship club and one of the city's widely known building contractors.

They were about to pass on again, when John F. Smulski arose and suggested the name of Walter Schrojda, former county commissioner, for this place. It is understood, however, that Schrojda will be satisfied with a membership on the board.

Hurrah for Capt. Coffin.

Nominations for president of the civil service commission were called for.

Chancellor J. Jenks made this nominating address. He served with the boys in the Spanish-American war and he extolled the virtues and the genial character of Capt. Percy Coffin, formerly secretary of the commission under Mayor Busse and one of the press agents in the Thompson bureau in the recent campaign. No other candidates appeared.

Herbert Angster, president of the Rotary club, named Morton MacCormac for member of the civil service commission, and E. D. Hulburt of the Merchants Loan and Trust company suggested the retention of Elton Lower as a member.

Harry B. Miller Listed.

Next came the office of prosecuting attorney.

Brode B. Davis, representing the Morris packing interests, presented the name of Harry B. Miller, who was secretary of the organization committee in the Thompson headquarters in the mayoralty campaign.

The Rev. John P. Brushingham presented a number of letters of indorsement of the present prosecuting attorney, Albert J. W. Appell, and suggested he was willing to remain as an assistant under the chief to be named by Mr. Thompson.

Mayor Elect Thompson, in dismissing the assemblage, again declared he intends to keep his ear close to the ground to hear what the people want.

As he left the room the new mayor announced he probably would name nearly all of his cabinet members on Monday night.

Doings at the Luncheon.

Before they got to the business of hearing suggestions for cabinet jobs the representatives of the bankers, commercial associations, real estate board, and Chicago plan commission enjoyed a luncheon.

Mr. Pelouze, who was master of ceremonies, briefly addressed the gathering. He named the four big business and commercial interests of the city, and declared this combined power, working in harmony, would do wonders for the city of Chicago. He presented E. A. Potter.

Mr. Potter paid a high tribute to the new mayor and referred to the old football days. He said 400,000 votes for this "sterling young business man" told of the esteem in which he is held by the people more eloquently than he could do in words. He predicted Thompson would make the best mayor Chicago ever had.

"With the support of you men," said Mr. Potter, "he can't go wrong."

Mayor Elect Thompson was then presented, and was given an ovation. He also referred to the old football days and said the team won the national championship, not because he happened to be captain, but because there were eleven good men on the team.

"Team work won that championship," he said, "and that is what we want now."

Will Recognize Negroes.

Mr. Thompson said he fully realized he couldn't please all the people. He said he had been criticized for not inviting the women, and that another criticism had come from the negro voters. He said he would call them in later.

"I realize it will be I who will be criticised if my cabinet members do not deliver the goods," he continued. "If I should name a dishonest man to a single position and he should begin dishonest work I would suffer, not you. And that is why I have asked you gentlemen to aid me in selecting high grade men for all these places."

Mr. Thompson reiterated his faith in the future of Chicago, recalling the faith that his grandfather and his father had before him.

"And with your help," he added, "we will revive the old Chicago spirit that will win."

Wacker Pledges Support.

C. H. Wacker, chairman of the Chicago Plan association, was the next speaker. He pledged to Mr. Thompson the undivided support of the association, based on his pledges made to the people the night of his election.

Charles Dering, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, congratulated Mr. Thompson in bringing into one room for the first time in the history of Chicago the political and civic spirit for progress. He declared the Association of Commerce would stand solidly behind the new mayor.

Mr. Dering suggested the new mayor might get behind the proposed building of a great new convention hall in Chicago as one of his first acts. He didn't care particularly where it was located, but suggested the north side. He also paid a tribute to Mayor Harrison and said that if the new mayor did as well by the association as the retiring mayor they would do big things for Chicago.

McCormick for Home Rule.

Medill McCormick spoke on the utility proposition. He declared Chicago could not work out the big things in this line unless it has home rule. He said he is satisfied the present state utilities commission is not equipped to handle these big questions here in Chicago.

"I want to say to you gentlemen," he said, "that there is as much politics in Springfield and in the state utilities commission as there ever was or can be in Chicago."

Capt. Charles Ffrench read a letter from Sir Thomas Lipton congratulating Chicago on the election of Mr. Thompson.

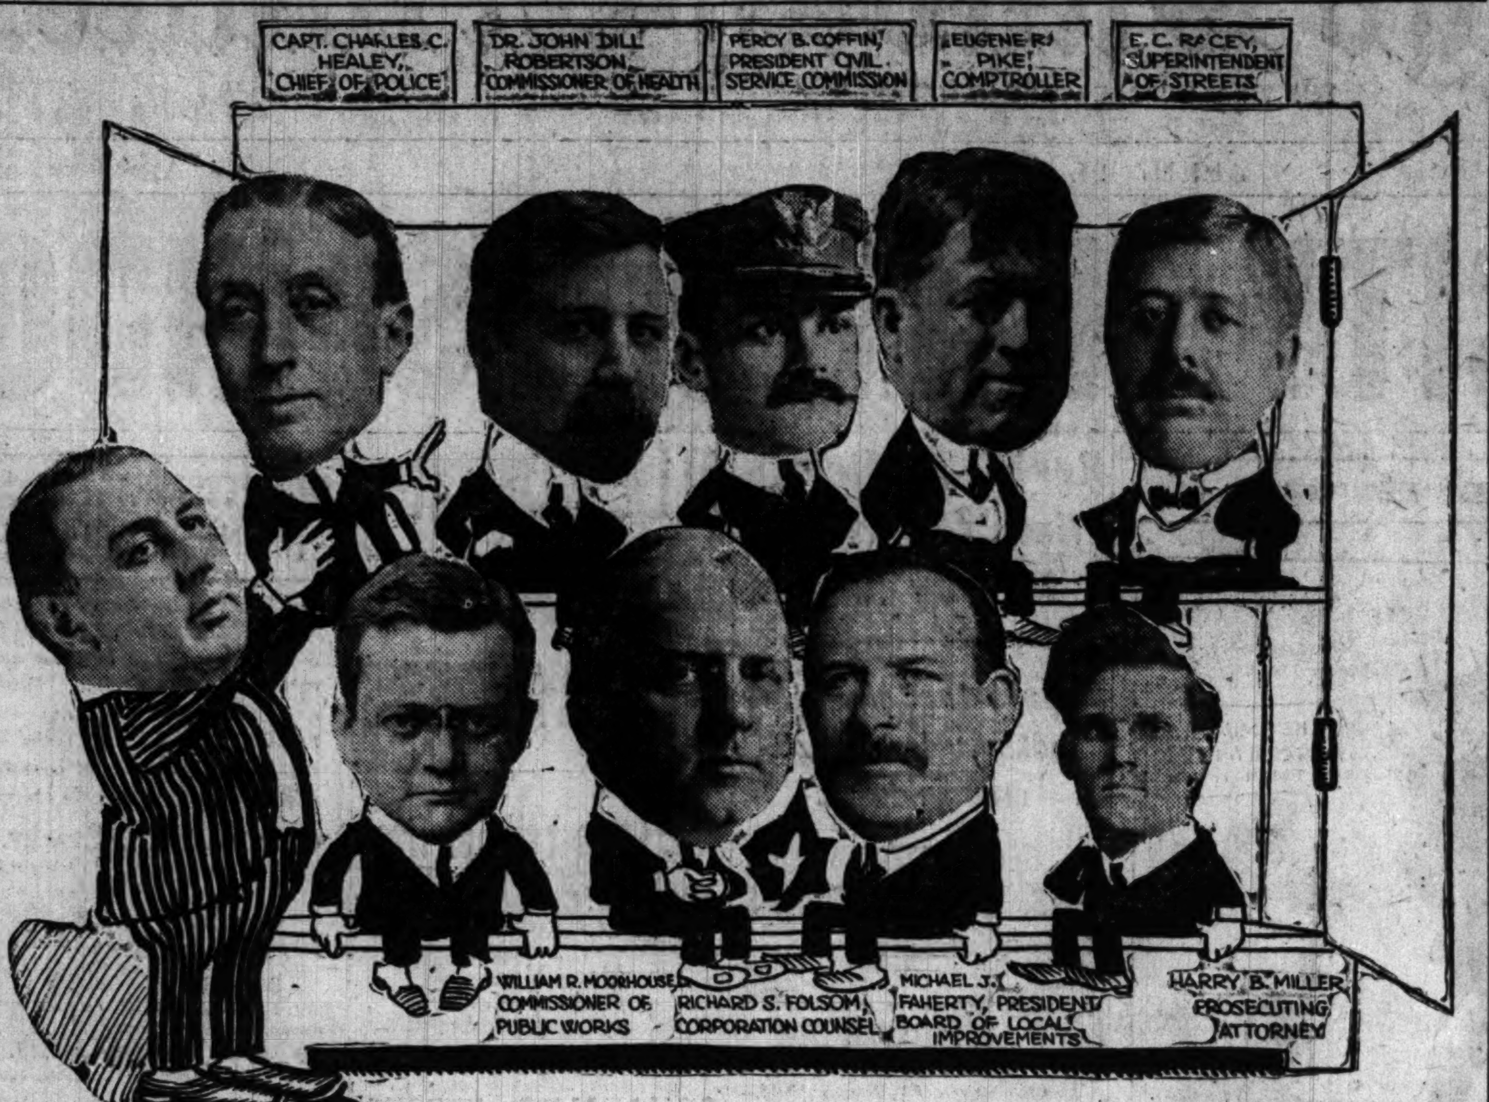
Some Proposals for Mayor Thompson's New Cabinet.



CAPT. CHARLES C. HEALEY, CHIEF OF POLICE
DR. JOHN DILL ROBERTSON, COMMISSIONER OF HEALTH
PERCY B. COFFIN, PRESIDENT CIVIL SERVICE COMMISSION
EUGENE R. PIKE, COMPTROLLER
E. C. RACEY, SUPERINTENDENT OF STREETS
WILLIAM R. MOORHOUSE COMMISSIONER OF PUBLIC WORKS
RICHARD S. FOLSOM, CORPORATION COUNSEL
MICHAEL J. FAHERTY, PRESIDENT BOARD OF LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS
HARRY B. MILLER PROSECUTING ATTORNEY

"What I Would Do as a Member of Mayor Thompson's Cabinet."

Six big men picked for big places in Mayor Elect Thompson's cabinet were asked last night to give their views on the administration of municipal affairs and the policies they intend to pursue if appointed. They gave "The Tribune" the following interviews:

BY CAPT. CHARLES C. HEALEY.

There are two views I always have held in connection with the administration of police affairs. One is that the police should not antagonize the violators of the law by inflicting unnecessary punishment, and the other is that detectives and thief catchers are born, not made.

I always have contended persons should not be served with warrants and placed in jail overnight when a summons will do the business and leave the offender with a greater respect and admiration for the law.

I believe a thief catcher's ability lies in deeds and not in written words on the examination page or on book learning. Many a college professor would make a poor policeman and many policemen have been failures just because they were out of their sphere. If appointed chief I would do all in my power to keep the city clear of vice and crime.

BY DR. JOHN DILL ROBERTSON.

I believe this city can be made and kept clean and that would be my greatest aim. But a health commissioner's hands are tied unless he has the coöperation of the medical profession and the people themselves.

I have been asked if I would advocate beer as a substitute for water. I never have advocated such a thing. Once, in a speech at a brewer's convention, I stated that beer at that time was less harmful than the water of most cities. I said it more more sterile because it was boiled.

As to that story about not bathing, I want to say that I never have discouraged bathing, but always have and still do insist that bathing in the winter time presents a great problem and extreme care should be used. It is my belief that in the winter time especially every one should take an oil rub after the bath to keep the pores in the proper condition and avoid the danger of colds. I always have maintained that and will continue to urge it to my people.

I should be just as persistent as other health commissioners in urging frequent baths in the summer time, especially in the congested districts.

BY RICHARD S. FOLSOM.

I believe that if the next corporation counsel is able to establish as good a record as the corporation counsels of Mayor Harrison's administration, Mayor Busse's administration, Mayor Dunne's administration, and of nearly every administration since my admission to the bar he will be performing his duties admirably.

EUGENE R. PIKE.

As controller of Chicago I would keep the books balanced up to the minute and keep them open for inspection by the public at all times.

One thing I would urge, and that is the passage of a bill which probably will be introduced at Springfield next week providing for a substitute measure for the wheel tax declared unconstitutional by the Supreme court.

BY CAPT. PERCY B. COFFIN.

The law is very plain as to the duties of the president of the city civil service commission. There is absolutely nothing to do but to follow it, and that is all that can be said. I happen to know the law from A to Z.

BY HARRY B. MILLER.

As prosecuting attorney I would prosecute the persons before me in the way my judgment dictates. It is not justice simply to soak your victims as hard as you can.

Who's Who In New Cabinet.

Capt. Charles C. Healey, who leads Mayor Elect Thompson's "business men's cabinet slate" with a billet as chief of police, began his career as a brakeman for the Northwestern railroad. Later he became a special agent for the railroad and in 1884 he transferred his activities to the insurance business.

The following year, 1885, gave him his start toward the chief's desk. He was made chief of detectives of the old town of Lake. While at the Hyde Park station he was made captain of the mounted squad.

For years he has been known as a friend of the children; the "Off the Streets" boys' club regards him as its patron saint.

Eugene R. Pike, named for controller, is a native Chicagoan; he was born here Dec. 23, 1868. After attending all the classes he could find in the Chicago schools he went to Yale and graduated there in 1890. Then he came back to Chicago, took courses at the Union College of Law, at Northwestern university, and at the Kent College of Law, and was admitted to the bar in 1892.

Richard S. Folsom, who will be corporation counsel if the political heavens don't fall in the next twenty-four hours, is another dyed-in-the-wool Chicagoan. He was born Aug. 5, 1872, at the corner of Twenty-fourth street and Prairie avenue and now lives at 2218 Prairie avenue. Mr. Folsom was educated in the Chicago public schools and afterward attended Columbia university and Williams college, where he graduated. He studied law at the Northwestern university law school and was admitted to the bar in 1896.

William R. Moorhouse, who is slated for commissioner of public works, was born—also in Chicago—a year later than Mr. Folsom. The exact date is July 17, 1873. He attended the Chicago schools, went to Yale, where he graduated just before his twenty-first birthday. He started as a clerk for Spaulding & Merrick, the west side tobacco firm.

Dr. John Dill Robertson, the choice for commissioner of health, was born in Pennsylvania March 8, 1871, and is a graduate of Rockford college. He received his doctor's degree at Bennett Medical college in 1896 and nine years later became its president. In the Cook county hospital he started as an interne and afterward was appointed to the staff of attending surgeons.

Charles J. Forsberg, named for city collector, is a former alderman from the Thirty-fifth ward. Subsequently he held an appointment as a deputy bailiff of the Municipal court.

Harry B. Miller, the new prosecuting attorney, is another native Chicagoan and the "boy wonder" of the cabinet. He was born here thirty years ago last month. He is a graduate of the Chicago Kent College of Law and has practiced law since 1906.

Michael J. Faherty, to be president of the board of local improvements, is a Ravenswood real estate man, at one time president of the Irish Fellowship club.

Capt. Percy B. Coffin, slated for president of the city civil service commission, was born in Chicago in 1871. Most of his business career has been spent with the real estate firm of Murphy & Campbell.

BREITUNG SAYS HE GAVE KLEIST CHANCE TO WORK

Millionaire Recites Troubles with Son-in-Law; Sought His Daughter's Welfare.

New York, April 24.—[Special.]—Edward N. Breitung, millionaire lumberman, miner, and ship owner, concluded his testimony today in the trial of the suit of his son-in-law, Max F. Kleist, for $250,000 for the alleged alienation of the affections of Breitung's daughter, Juliet, whom Kleist married secretly.

Breitung told how he tried to help Kleist by sending him to work in his mines in New Mexico while his bride remained in New York with her parents. But on cross-examination Mr. Crowley, Kleist's lawyer, tried to show Breitung was adverse, or at least skeptical, toward the youth from the first.

Mr. Breitung said his daughter had asked him to have the marriage annulled. He told her, without giving any reason, that it could not be done, he said.

"She said she wanted to get an annulment and get married again," he testified.

Admits Considering Annulment.

Then Breitung became nervous in the witness chair, rolled his handkerchief into a ball, dabbed his moist face, and gave other signs of mental disturbance as he admitted, under heavy fire, that he had from the beginning talked about annulling the marriage and about sending Kleist far away.

"Had you any hostility toward the plaintiff?" Breitung was asked.

"None at all. I wanted to do the best I could for my daughter," he answered.

"One of your maids testified you told your daughter you would have Kleist arrested for failing to support her. Did you make such a threat?"

"No; I never did."

"You hired detectives to watch Kleist?"

"Yes. I wanted to find out all I could about him."

Attorney Nicoll, representing the Breitungs, told the court the defense was willing to allow physicians to examine Mrs. Kleist other than those who yesterday testified she was a wife in name only. Judge Hough took this matter under consideration.

"Didn't you try to strike Kleist at one time?" Breitung was asked.

"Yes, I did, because he said my daughter was a dirty girl," he replied. "I'm sorry now I didn't strike him.

Q.—Why didn't you? A.—My wife interfered and held me back from him.

Q.—You wanted to strike him? A.—Yes; slug him.

Q.—Knock him down and kick him? A.—Yes. (Breitung said this quite calmly.)

Q.—And at the same interview you offered him a position in New Mexico? A.—Yes.

Q.—How long did it take you to get over your anger? A.—A few minutes.

Says Kleist Abused Daughter.

Q.—Did you dislike the boy? A.—No, I wanted to try him out and see if he would make good—if he had any yellow in him.

Q.—What did you have against him later? A.—The way he abused my daughter and me and said I was alienating my daughter's affections from him.

Mr. Crowley read in evidence a letter Breitung helped his daughter write to her husband, in which she said she did not love him. In contrast with this, Mr. Crowley read part of another letter, written by Juliet on the same day, but without the help or even the knowledge of her father. The letter began:

"Dearest Max: I am writing you this letter because I love you."

Court was adjourned until Monday morning.

DR. YOUNG HITS POLICE IN FAREWELL TO THE CITY.

Asserts Gleason's Department Failed to Find Men Prosecuted and Convicted at Much Expense.

In the last issue of the weekly health bulletin under his administration Health Commissioner George B. Young yesterday expressed his appreciation to the citizens of Chicago for their support and cooperation in aiding the work of the department during his regime.

The commissioner also took a parting shot at the police department for failing in many cases to find persons who had been prosecuted and convicted by the health department at great expense and labor. He adds that "comments are unnecessary."

"I go back to my work as an officer of the United States public health service," he concludes, "but I will never hear the name of Chicago without just a little tug at my heart strings."

JOHN SIMAN SAVING MONEY.

New City Clerk Improves on Record of Predecessors in Producing Coin.

John Siman, the new city clerk, announced yesterday he had saved the city $8,000 in his eleven days of office holding. The big item was a $6,000 reduction in the bill for printing the city council proceedings. When the bids were opened yesterday John F. Higgins was awarded the contract with a bid of $1.50 a page. Last year he also had the contract, at a bid of $2.85 a page.

The city clerk also announced the 25 cent fees which his office obtains from the sale of hunting and fishing licenses at $1 will be turned over to the city treasury.

"The sale of the licenses does not necessitate having any special clerks, and I cannot see why I should pocket the money myself," he said.

GLEASON MAY QUIT MONDAY.

Will Resume Charge of Austin District—Schuettler to Act as Department Head.

Chief of Police James Gleason probably will retire from his position tomorrow and resume the duties of captain in the Austin district. He would not say yesterday where Capt. John Rehm of that district would be transferred. If the chief leaves tomorrow, First Deputy Superintendent of Police Herman F. Schuettler will be head of the department until a new chief is named by the new mayor, William Hale Thompson, and confirmed by the council Monday evening.

JEAN HURFORD

James W. Calley, superintendent of the bureau of employment of the department of public welfare, last night announced that the agitation by THE TRIBUNE for public gardens is attracting people from as far away as Austin and the north shore to work gardens in the school board's ninety acre tract at Cragin.

One hundred and ten applications for plots already have been received and Mr. Calley estimates the entire quota of land will be allotted in a few days.

In a meeting at Cragin yesterday, Mr. Calley formed the gardeners into a coöperative marketing society to raise crops which have commercial value and will command ready sale to grocers and others. It is planned to rent a motor truck on the coöperative plan for the marketing.

"The first crops will be of quick growing vegetables, such as radishes, peas, and lettuce," said Mr. Calley. "This probably will be followed by tomatoes or golden bantam sweet corn. We have put two carloads of fertilizer on the land and plan to cultivate it intensively."

TELLS SCOPE OF HIS NEW BOOK

L. Hamilton McCormick Will Deal with Character Analysis.

L. Hamilton McCormick, formerly of Chicago and now and for some months past a visitor here, writes to "Cinderella," in care of THE TRIBUNE, apropos of her announcement that during his stay in this city—at the Virginia—he is writing a scientific book concerning phrenology and bumps on the head.

Mr. McCormick says his book will deal with phrenology only "in a critical way. The ancient bump theory that you mention, is, as we all know, long since an exploded idea."

Treatise of Broad Scope.

"What I am at work at," Mr. McCormick writes, "is a book on character-analysis viewed from a broad, comprehensive and scientific standpoint, and it includes all the leading sciences on this and allied subjects, such as physiognomy, pathognomy, craniology, and pathology, but I wish it clearly understood that phrenology, as heretofore known, has nothing to do with my writings.

"If it would be of interest to you or to your readers I might say that character delineation has been a matter of the deepest interest to me ever since my boyhood days, and that for the last thirty odd years I have been gradually accumulating a vast amount of information on this subject.

Library on the Subject.

"I have also gathered together what is probably the largest private library regarding character analysis in existence, numbering some hundreds of volumes. In addition to digesting the books which I have personally acquired while in England for the last sixteen years, I have reviewed the large collection of similar works that are in the British Museum library, in the London library, as well as other libraries of Europe.

"I have been assisted greatly in my work by the courtesy of the directors of the anatomical museum of the University of Edinburgh, the trustees of the Anthropological museum of Paris, and the College of Physicians and Surgeons in London, so that the work that I am engaged upon, to say the least, will be comprehensive as well as revolutionary as far as many of the ideas in the past on this subject are concerned. I regret to say that it will probably be some time before my work is ready for publication."

MOVIE ROMANCE CLOSING SCENES IN DIVORCE COURT

Youth Weds Minister's Daughter, School Girl, After Thirteen Days' Wooing.

In the story books it is the minister's son, wayward and debonair, who more often than not bows his father's head in patriarchal sorrow. It took a Chicago divorce court to bring to light this tale of a minister's daughter.

Raymond H. Frendel of Milwaukee met her in August at the Orpheum theater, in South State street. She was Margaret Smith, slim, vivacious, and blonde, playing truant from school to see the "movies." He was in Chicago visiting friends, and he was captivated. A day or two later she suggested an elopement. Then, and only then, he learned that Margaret's father is the Rev. Ernest C. Smith of La Grange, secretary of the Western Unitarian Ministers' association.

She Was Game.

That gave Raymond pause, but Margaret trilled a careless laugh and said it didn't make a bit of difference. Minister's daughter or not, she was game. So school was abandoned, there was an elopement to Milwaukee, and thirteen days after the meeting in the "movie" theater the two were established as man and wife in the home of Raymond's parents.

What followed was told yesterday in a cross bill for divorce filed by Raymond in the Circuit court. Developments, it appears, came faster than the young bridegroom had anticipated.

The Rev. Mr. Smith came to Milwaukee and tried to have the marriage annulled. Failing in this, he remarried the couple, "for some reason unknown to Frendel," and brought them back to La Grange. After many trips back and forth Raymond says his mother-in-law met him at the door one day and announced grimly, "You can't see Margaret. The doctor's been here and says she must take a trip east."

That was the end, except for a bill for divorce, filed on Margaret's behalf Feb. 25. Raymond had a cross bill prepared. He charges four days after their marriage his bride had improper relations with his brother, Robert Frendel, in Milwaukee.

Greiner Files Amended Bill.

Arthur W. Greiner, former automobile racer and man about town, filed an amended bill for divorce against Mrs. Gladys M. Greiner, making statutory charges.

Mrs. Norene B. Lay, who attracted attention the other day by her plaint that death is preferable to life on a paltry $300 a month, was granted a $50 increase in her allowance.

Stipulation in Henley Case.

Attorneys representing Mrs. Sarah A. Henley and her divorced husband, William J. Henley, former president of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad, appeared before Judge H. Sterling Pomeroy with a stipulation which would close the proceedings started by Mrs. Henley to compel her former husband to pay her back alimony. The stipulation was presented to the court, but not filed, as the attorneys were unable to agree upon all the terms of the stipulation. After nearly an hour or argument by counsel Judge Pomeroy continued the case until May 17.

Judge Charles M. Walker intimated he would give a decree of divorce to Mrs. Harvey M. Vreeland on statutory charges. Mr. Vreeland, formerly connected with the American Tobacco company, now is employed by a wholesale tobacco company at a salary of $200 per month, Mrs. Vreeland said.

Albert Woodward filed an answer to the cross-bill for divorce filed against him. He says: She wouldn't wash for me. She wouldn't cook for me. She often stays out until 3 o'clock in the morning, and if she is weak and sickly, that is the reason.

Charging that Arthur O. Bond, collector and appraiser of the South Side Savings bank, used the door and the door jamb as a means of torture, Mrs. Lottie F. Bond filed suit for divorce against him. She charges that he pinched her fingers between the door and the door jamb; that he refused to support her, and that he has otherwise abused her.

GIRLS VANISH IN OLIVE AUTO

Rogers Park School Pupils Last Seen in Car with Two Young Men.

Two young men, both wearing light colored gray suits, are being sought by the police of Chicago and nearby towns. The men are said to have enticed two 16 year old Rogers Park girls to accompany them on an automobile trip, late Friday evening. The girls have not returned and their parents are frantic.

The girls, Winifred Kuist, of 1718 Estes avenue, and Gladys Pokorney of 7629 North Ashland avenue, were last seen riding with two youths in a seven passenger, olive colored, touring car. They were headed north, according to witnesses. The same men were seen with them earlier in the day.

They Pack Up and Vanish.

Miss Kuist accompanied Gladys home to dinner Friday evening. About 8 o'clock they both left the Pokorney home. Bruno Pokorney, father of the girl, and owner of a foundry at 136 South Clinton street, said he thought his daughter was taking the Kuist girl to the street car.

Later he discovered she had taken a suitcase and some clothes. Instead of returning, the police say the girl went to the Kuist home and helped Gladys pack a suitcase with clothes.

Victim of Wilson Avenue "Dudes"?

Miss Kuist is the daughter of George B. Kuist, assistant manager of the Holland Creamery Butter company. He said he believes the girls were lured away by "dudes," whom he says hang around the corners of Wilson avenue.

Mr. Pokorney said the girls had been attending the Pierson Business college together.

"I don't think my daughter eloped," he said. "She is too young to do that. These young men must have enticed them, and you know they are both 16, which is the romantic age with girls.

WOMAN VICTIM OF PHOTO MAN

Only $1.98 for Transforming Process—but $32 for "Suitable" Frame.

KEEPS SON'S PICTURE.

"I am from the Art institute," a young man called up the tube to Mrs. Eugene Valentine at 1453 East Fifty-sixth street. Mrs. Valentine admitted the smiling stranger.

"Have you seen our new Aquarell painting, value $25?" he inquired. "We place only a limited number—in exclusive neighborhoods where people appreciate them, you understand," he said, exhibiting two striking miniatures.

"$1.98—a Trifle."

"The cost of producing this new Aquarell art is $1.98, a trifle," he said. "The process is wonderful; you will not regret that trifling amount."

He looked at a photograph of Mrs. Valentine's son when he was a choir boy. Mrs. Valentine was persuaded to drop $1.98 into the smiling stranger's palm for a "wonderful transformation" of the photograph by the new process. Then she learned that it was Manhattan Art institute, at 526, 431 South Dearborn street instead of the one in Michigan avenue.

On being assured she in no way would be obliged to order a frame, she did not cancel her order for a miniature and received a contract with a guarantee of safe return of photograph and other stipulations.

Calls with Frames.

In a few days the representative of Aquarell art called again. This time he was accompanied by two husky youths. One carried a suitcase containing ornate frames. Mrs. Valentine was requested to view the uncompleted sketch of her son. This was a black and white sketch, 1 by 20 inches in size, instead of a miniature. The new process required a frame to hold the colors, she was told. It was necessary she order her frame that the process might be completed. The youth with the suitcase displayed several frames, ranging in price from $32 to $16.

Mrs. Valentine balked. She would order no frame. The three young men were much annoyed.

"Not on your life will you get this," the agent said, picking up the black and white sketch and retreating. "You will have to call for the photograph if you want it. We shall not return it."

HE FINDS $3,000 NOTE AND THEN GIVES IT AWAY!

Car Passenger Turns Handbag Over to Conductor and Woman Loser Recovers It.

Mrs. Morgan T. Jones of 6072 Stony Island avenue, alighted from a Stony Island avenue car at East Sixty-first street last night, leaving in her seat her handbag containing a bunch of keys, a bank book, and a note for $3,000 payable to her husband. Mr. Jones is a member of the firm of Morgan T. Jones & Co., inspection engineers, 53 West Jackson boulevard.

It was not until Mrs. Jones arrived at her home that she noticed the disappearance of her handbag. She went to the Woodlawn station. The police communicated with the street car company and learned the handbag was being held at the car barns at East Ninety-third street and Cottage Grove avenue, waiting an owner. The handbag was found by a passenger, who gave it to the conductor.

400 PASTORS IN PLEA FOR SUNDAY FUND IN PULPITS

Will Urge $100,000 Contribution Today; "Billy" Wires His Attitude.

BY THE REV. W. B. NORTON.

Requests for a $100,000 guarantee fund for the expenses in connection with the "Billy" Sunday revival campaign will be presented today in 400 Chicago pulpits.

Arrangements also are under way for a luncheon next month to be addressed by Mr. Sunday when the final plans of the campaign will be laid.

W. A. Peterson, chairman of the finance committee of the Sunday evangelistic campaign body, yesterday received a telegram from Mr. Sunday, who is in Paterson, N. J.

Billy Sunday's Telegram.

It reads:

"A great responsibility rests upon the representative men of a large city if they are leaders worthy of the name. They are in duty bound to encourage and inspire all that is loftiest in the city's life.

"They are the ones who decide what shall be suppressed and what shall be expressed of all the varied emotions and convictions that slumber in the hearts of the masses. This is particularly true with reference to the religion and great religious movements and enterprises. It is up to them to promote religious and moral enterprises. Those best able to feel the spiritual pulse beat of the more than 2,000,000 Chicagoans insist that the time is ripe for a united effort on the part of all the Christian forces of the city to reclaim the masses who are no longer loyal to the church, to redeem from sin, the 1,000,000 and more who are still strangers to God and to rid the city of the vices and evils that threaten the community.

Up to Chicago.

"The outcome of this desire for a religious awakening will depend upon the reception that Chicago's business and professional men, her editors and officials, and men of affairs gives the committee that has in charge the inaugurating of the campaign. WILLIAM A. SUNDAY."

Telegrams also were received from John Wanamaker, W. T. Ellis, and George C. Shane of Philadelphia describing the beneficial results of the Sunday campaign in Philadelphia.

ALLIES REPRESS GERMAN ATTACKS IN FIERCE FIGHT

Will Irwin Describes Battle Near Ypres Which Stops Drive on Calais.

of Germans centered at this point at 500,000 men. The number of allies is not known, but is thought to be at least as great.

No estimate of the casualties has been made, but an idea of their probable extent may be gained when the present engagement is compared with that by which the British gained their advance at Neuve Chapelle. In that battle, with much fewer men engaged, the Germans lost 18,000 and the British 12,000 men in dead, wounded, and missing.

Trains Filled with Wounded.

A dispatch received from Amsterdam says more than twenty-five trains of fifteen cars each have carried wounded from the front to Liege, the new German base, on each of the last two days.

Every hospital in Liege and most of the great factory buildings which have been idle since the initial onward rush of the German army last August, are crammed with wounded German soldiers.

The number runs far into the thousands, the censored dispatches indicating that the figures are almost unbelievably large, and it is stated that they comprise only a part of the entire list, many of the wounded being in too grave a condition to be moved to the rear.

Strike at French Seacoast.

The Germans are pouring troops into Flanders to press the attack, which at the beginning forced the allies back to the Yser (Ypres) canal to the north of Ypres.

This movement, according to reports reaching Holland, has assumed even greater dimensions than those which preceded the battle that raged for more than two weeks in this same region last October.

On that occasion the operations ended in the discomfiture of the Germans, who had declared their intention of pushing their way through to Calais.

It appears that the Germans have a similar aim today and have set out to capture Ypres, which is described as the key to the French coast ports.

While the attack originally met with considerable success, it is said to have been already checked, and at some places the allies have recovered a large part of the ground lost.

The British report does not say how much ground they recovered, but the statement in the Berlin official report that a British attack at St. Julien was repulsed shows that they are well back in their old positions, for this town, which is on the main road between Ypres and Poelcappelle, is immediately south of Langemarck, from which point the German attack was launched.

The Germans, however, still maintain their hold on the Yser canal further north, for they speak of storming the village of Lizerne, which is across the canal between the towns of Steenstraate and Het Sast, which they took in their first rush.

The German attack to the south of Ypres, which was made simultaneously with that to the north, apparently has failed.

Von Hindenburg in Command?

These engagements, desperate as they are, are believed to be only the opening of a greater battle, which, with both sides strongly intrenched, promises to be the bitterest and bloodiest of the whole war.

There is a widespread belief here that Gen. von Hindenburg has been summoned from the Russian front to conduct the German operations. Several well known German military correspondents hinted two weeks ago that Von Hindenburg soon would be heard from, but until it was deemed advisable to let it be known where, they could only say that he would strike a mighty blow soon.

The attack on Hill No. 60 by the British is believed to have precipitated the move ahead of time, but the German attempts to regain the hill are believed to resemble Von Hindenburg's strategy before Warsaw, while making, as was done then, the heaviest blow elesewhere.

It is the Canadian contingent, most of them facing fire for the first time, to whom Gen. Sir John French gives credit for "saving the situation" for the allies. Their efforts on the extreme left of the British army described in the following statement:

"The loss of the ground between Steenstraate and Langemarch laid bare the left of the Canadian division, which was forced to fall back in order to keep in touch with the right of the neighboring troops.

"In the rear of the latter had been four Canadian 4.7 guns, which thus passed into the hands of the enemy. But some hours later the Canadians made a most brilliant and successful advance, recapturing these guns and taking a considerable number of German prisoners, including a colonel.

"The Canadians had many casualties, but their gallantry and determination undoubtedly saved the situation. Their conduct has been magnificent throughout."

RUSSIAN ARMIES RESUME ATTACK ON UZSOK PASS

Petrograd Reports Taking of Series of Important Hills and Austrian Repulses.

LONDON, April 24.—Despite torrential rains the Russians appear to have resumed their attacks on the Austro-German positions guarding Uzsok pass in the Carpathians. The capture by the Russians of Hill 1,001, it is claimed, will greatly facilitate their operations, reducing in importance Hill 992, which the Austrians still hold.

Confirmation of this new Rusiasn offensive is contained in the Austrian official report, which records fighting on Turka road, which traverses Uzsok pass.

Russian Official Statement.

PETROGRAD, April 24.—The following Russian official statement was given out tonight:

"In the Carpathians during April 22 and the night of April 23 the Austrians, after long preparations with heavy guns, delivered a series of attacks against the heights occupied by us in the region of Polen, but they were repulsed with enormous losses. The Austrians also failed yesterday in attacks on our positions in the region of Volosate.

"Today we progressed in the region of Telepotch and farther southeast at Stanka. Our troops after desperate fighting captured a series of important hills."

Austrian Official Statement.

VIENNA, April 24.—The war office gave out the following statement today:

"At some points near Uzsok pass heavy artillery engagements are proceeding, with some Russian day attacks, which were repulsed. Russian night attacks along the Turka road failed."

ITALY UNBENDING IN ITS LAND DEMANDS ON AUSTRIA.

Franz Josef Makes Further Concessions to Preserve Rome Neutrality, but Fails to Win Grace.

ROME, April 24.—The council of ministers which was to have been held this afternoon to discuss the international situation was postponed. This was interpreted to mean that Baron Sonnino, minister of foreign affairs, was not ready to communicate anything definite regarding the negotiations with Germany and Austria.

It is reported that Austria has made further concessions in the endeavor to preserve Italian neutrality, but it is said these are not satisfactory to Italy. It is stated that Baron Sonnino is obdurate in the demands representing a minimum of what Italy expects.

KAISER AUGMENTS FLEET; SEEKS TEST WITH BRITISH?

Battle Craft Roving North Sea, Berlin Reports, and Greatest Naval Fight of Ages Is Brewing.

BERLIN, via The Hague, April 24.—There is a general belief that the German nation is on the verge of great things on the sea. The battle fleet is admittedly cruising in the North sea. It has been greatly augmented, how greatly will not be known until British Admiral Jellicoe accepts the gage of battle.

The greatest naval battle of the ages, looked for since King George sent Admiral Jellicoe to sea on Aug. 2 last with instructions to "capture or destroy" the German fleet, can hardly long be avoided.

Already the German fleet has steamed far from its Helgoland base, and it is predicted that when the great clash comes England will receive a surprise. The British dreadnaughts and heavy guns are to be met with equally powerful craft, officials say.

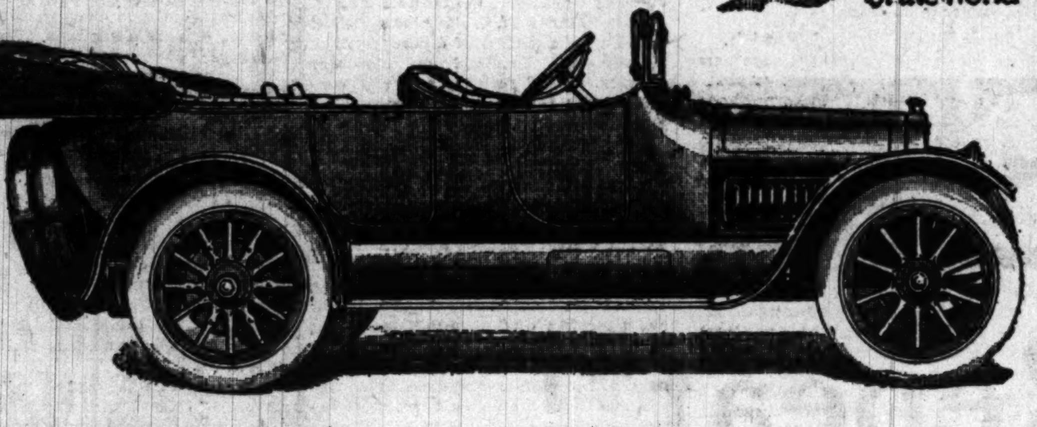
A fine car deserves intelligent care. The Cadillac "Eight" and Foster Service insure you a continuously satisfying car.

Cadillac Standard of the World



Serviceability is the striking characteristic of the Eight Cylinder Cadillac. It is better designed for endurance than any other type of car. Its very simplicity makes it less liable to get out of adjustment.

"Simplicity?" you say. Yes, the V-type Eight Cylinder motor is just as simple as a "four" and much simpler than a "six." It is merely a pair of Cadillac four-cylinder motors—whose dependability you would not question. As one customer puts it: "If anything could be better than a four-cylinder Cadillac motor, it would be two of them—and that's what the 'Eight' is."

But simplicity is not all of serviceability. A one-cylinder motor is simple, but it soon vibrates itself to uselessness. In other types all good motors are made of the same materials. These materials will stand just so much wearing and pounding and jerking. Obviously the motor doing the least wearing and pounding and jerking will last the longest. Other things being equal, the smoothest motor will be the most serviceable.

That is one secret of the serviceability of the Cadillac "Eight"—its smoothness. Its well oiled parts just slide and turn with never a jerk or jar. Some of the test cars have already run 100,000 miles and show no diminution of power or smoothness. There seems to be no wear out to this new Cadillac. Its designers foresaw it to be more enduring than any other motor. What they did not expect is the ever increasing evidence that the serviceability of this car is even more wonderful than its flexibility.

As you drive—now slowly, now dashing ahead—forgetting you have a gear lever—forgetting even that you have a motor in this supercar—it is mighty satisfying to remember that this wonderful performance will last for many years.

The zest of this new kind of motoring—the pride in possessing the leading car of the world—the satisfaction of knowing that Foster Service stands back of it—these are the things that stand foremost in wise men's minds today.

Can you get your Cadillac "Eight" when you want it? Yes, if you will give the word now. But delay will surely disappoint you.

GERMANY TO ASK FREEDOM OF SEA AS PEACE PRICE

Dr. Dernburg Cites Underlying Causes of Gigantic War and Means to End It.

New York, April 24.—That there are underlying causes for the present war far more significant than the assassination of an archduke or any other one incident was the substance of an address tonight by Dr. Bernhard Dernburg, former German colonial minister, at the University club of Brooklyn.

Desire for territorial expansion, jealousy over commercial supremacy, and distrust of Great Britain's control of the seas are all elements in the situation which must be settled to the satisfaction of all the nations, the speaker declared, before there can be lasting peace.

Belgium's Fate Up to British.

Germany's intentions regarding Belgium attracted the most attention of anything said by Dr. Dernburg. He declared that Germany had no intention whatever of territorial aggrandizement in Europe and would get out of Belgium willingly at the close of the war if guaranteed the freedom of the seas. If it had no such guarantee it would stay in Belgium in order to have a fortified port close to the English channel.

"It rests with England," he said, "to determine Germany's course in regard to Belgium."

He declared that he spoke with no authority from the fatherland, that he was merely a private citizen who had formerly been a high official and had sat in the councils of the empire and knew the situation and the feelings of his countrymen.

Germany Must Have Room.

That Germany is cramped within its borders and must have an outlet for its growing population was his principal contention. He dwelt upon the fact that Germany has ten times the population per square mile that the United States has, 200 times the ratio that prevails in Canada, and 280 that of Australia. It cannot expand in Europe, he said, but wants to do so elsewhere, particularly in Africa, but has been thwarted and hampered at every turn.

"You cannot force a nation to stop producing babies," he said. "Every baby that is born has a right to enough soil and air and water to live decently and comfortably. The German baby has the same right as the English baby or the Russian baby, but he is not getting it."

Shows British Naval Bases.

Pointing to a map of the world, Dr. Dernburg showed the points in every direction where Great Britain has naval bases. He showed that there are half a dozen such stations closer to the Panama canal than the nearest American point. Key West, a statement which caused surprise.

He argued that the so-called neutrality of the high seas is a fiction; that in reality they are British, and said that there can be no real peace until the absolute freedom of the seas is guaranteed to all peoples.

"This is a world war," Dr. Dernburg said. "There can be no end to it until there is a world peace, under conditions which will make such a peace absolutely certain."

Countess to Sell Lace Here.

COUNTESS MARIE DE HEMPTINNE

Countess Marie de Hemptinne of Ghent, Belgium, who comes from recent visits to New York, Washington, and Philadelphia, will conduct a sale of Belgian laces at the home of Mrs. R. Hall McCormick at 660 Rush street for the benefit of the women and children of her country on Tuesday afternoon.

While there have been many different war funds instituted recently, this movement is unique in its inception. For the plan is to keep some 80,000 lacemakers busy at the art that is distinctly their own, and thereby support at least 100,000 children who might otherwise go hungry.

The countess comes from Queen Elizabeth, and with high recommendations from the eastern cities she has visited.

GERMAN CRAFT SINK FOUR SHIPS; CAPTURE A PAIR

Submarines Rake North and Baltic Seas; One Steamer Wrecked by a Mine.

(By Cable to The Chicago Tribune.)

LONDON, April 24.—Four ships sunk by German submarines, one by a mine and two others made prizes by Teuton warships—that was the news sent to London today on sea activities.

Three of the four ships sunk were torpedoed in the North sea and the other in the Baltic.

The Norwegian barks Oscar and Eva, flying the Danish flag, were overhauled 170 miles northeast of the Longstone. The crews, which were given ten minutes to board lifeboats, were put aboard the Danish steamer Anna and landed at Drury island, Scotland. The barks were bound for a Scottish port and were loaded with pit props.

Submarine Sinks Britisher.

The freighter Ruth was sunk by a German submarine when about 100 miles east of May island, in the North sea. The crew was rescued and was landed at Leith, Scotland.

The sixteen members of the crew were all Swedes. They drifted about in small boats for twelve hours before being picked up.

The Finnish steamer Frack was torpedoed and sunk in the Baltic by a German submarine. It is believed the members of its crew were saved.

The Frack carried a cargo of iron ore and was on its way to Abo, Finland.

Mine Sinks Steamer Caprivi.

The Norwegian steamship Caprivi, which sailed from Baltimore April 6 for Christiania by way of Ardrossan, Scotland, struck a mine at a point fifteen miles northeast of Tory island and sank. The crew of the Caprivi was landed at Inishtrahull today.

The Caprivi had a net tonnage of 1,872 and was built in 1892. The vessel was 350 feet long, 40 feet beam, and 20 feet deep.

Germans Capture Two Ships.

The Danish steamer Nidaros, 631 tons net, has been captured by a German warship in the North sea and taken into port at the island of Sylt, one of the North Frisian islands. The Nidaros sailed from Aarhus, Denmark, for England, with a cargo of agricultural products.

The Morning Post's correspondent at Christiania telegraphs that the Norwegian steamer Brilliant, which left Fredrikstad, Norway, April 16 for London with a cargo of granite, deal plants, and paper, has been captured by German war vessels and taken into Hamburg.

The statement issued in Washington by the German ambassador claiming that in the latest German Zeppelin raid on the Tyne a British battleship was seriously damaged was officially denied by the admiralty tonight.

FAMINE IN CHINA; MANY STARVING

Thousands in Szechuan Face Same Fate; Others Commit Suicide.

USE CLAY AS FOOD.

Washington, D. C., April 24.—Many are starving to death, others are committing suicide to escape the terrors of hunger, and thousands are on the verge of starvation in the province of Szechuan, China, according to mail advices to the state department received today from E. Carleton Baker, American consul at Chung-King.

The famine is due to a protracted drought, particularly in the region of Fuchow and Chung Chow.

"Many of the poorer people are already dying and others are on the verge of starvation," says the memorandum to the state department.

"The price of rice has more than doubled. Some of the people are so desperate that they are eating roots and bark from the trees and even clay.

"Others are commiting suicide to escape the terrors of starvation."

It is not thought that conditions will improve until the next harvest in the late summer, Consul Baker's message stated.

President Yuan Shi Kai is said to have authorized an expenditure of $100,000 for relief of the sufferers.

The letter to the department was dated March 10.

GREECE AWAITS INVITATION TO JOIN ALLIES IN WAR?

Paris Paper Publishes Story That Nation Is Ready to Operate in Dardanelles if Asked.

PARIS, April 24.—Christakis Zographos, foreign minister of Greece, is quoted today by the Information as declaring that Greece was ready to unite with the allies in the operations at the Dardanelles if invited to do so.

The Information says that M. Zographos made this statement to Hubert Jacques, a correspondent of this newspaper. Up to the present time, he said, Greece had not been asked to coöperate with the allies.

The foreign minister is quoted as saying that in respect to this question the policy of his cabinet is identical with that of M. Venizelos, the former premier, whose retirement has been generally understood to have been brought about by his desire for participation in the war by Greece on the side of the allies.

"It is simply a question of the propitious moment," the foreign minister is quoted as saying.

ARMENIANS MASSACRED BY TURK POLICE FORCE.

Twenty-three Refugees from Arzish-Kaleh and Suckham Bring Tale of Atrocities to Dyadin.

TIFLIS, Trans-Caucasia, April 23, via Petrograd, April 24.—A telegram received here from Dyadin, a town near Bayazid, in Turkish Armenia, dated April 21, relates that twenty-three men have arrived there from Arzish-Kaleh and Suckham, near Lake Van, in Turkish Armenia.

They bring a recital of the shooting and massacring by the police, on orders received from the Turkish authorities, of local Armenians. These twenty-three men succeeded in escaping.

The Turks have told the people about the clashes between Armenians and Mussulmans in Van, and particularly the massacres of Armenians.

The Armenians of Arzish-Kaleh and Suckham have been called upon to provide supplies and assistance for the great number of refugees it is expected will come from the vilayet of Van.

DUNNE'S SCHEME FOR WATERWAYS GIVEN BIG BOOST

Mayor Elect Thompson Comes Out Strong for Governor's Plan at Hearing.

Gov. Dunne's eight foot waterway bill negotiated formidable support yesterday at the public hearing had by the joint waterways committee of the Illinois senate and house of representatives at Hotel La Salle.

The sentiment advanced by manufacturers, merchants, and representatives of financial and business interests generally was so nearly unanimous as to warrant the statement from waterway boosters that the Dunne bill is now pretty near a sure thing at Springfield.

If anything was needed to increase their optimism it was the affirmative presence of Mayor Elect William Hale Thompson. Fresh from a personal inspection of the waterway route on his vacation trip, Mr. Thompson went clear to the front for the Dunne project. He appeared before the committee, said that the barge-carrying canal is a commercial and economical necessity for Chicago and the state generally, and urged that the bill be passed.

Secretary Makes Statement.

R. W. Thompson, the secretary of the Illinois waterways committee, embracing the commercial and civic organizations of Chicago and of all of the valley cities involved, gave out this statement last night:

"There now remains no serious objection, as we see it, to rapid advancement and passage of the waterway bill. Such objections as may be raised validly by communities along the route of the channel, involving purely engineering difficulties, are on the high road to satisfactory settlement and mutual adjustment.

Opposition Dwindling.

"The temper of the commercial interests and men who are in position to speak for the broader concerns of the state in Chicago and in the state generally is now demonstrated as conclusively and definitely for the eight foot project."

Chairman Michael L. Igoe of the house committee, said, after the adjournment, that the committee will be called to meet Tuesday at Springfield with the probabilities existing that the bill will be reported favorably, with a few minor amendments and that it might get to a roll call in the house some time next week.

Basis of Thompson Support.

Mayor Elect Thompson based his support of the project upon observations made while he was traveling down the river last week.

"I always have been for a waterway," the mayor elect said. "I am more strongly for one now than ever before and I don't care whether it is deep or shoal, just as long as it is sufficient to carry the business that Chicago and the manufacturing centers of Illinois have waiting for it.

CARTWRIGHT TO HAVE NO RIVAL

Supreme Court Justice Will Be Named Without Opposition at Rockford.

CARTER'S FIELD CLEAR.

Justice James H. Cartwright of the Illinois Supreme court will be renominated without opposition for reëlection at a convention to be held tomorrow in Rockford.

No candidate has appeared against him within the Republican party, and the Democrats have determined to hold no convention and permit Justice Cartwright's reëlection unanimously.

In the Cook county district developments yesterday tended to crystallize rapidly the feeling that there will be no opponent, partisan or independent, against Justice Orrin N. Carter, and it now seems likely that he will have no organized opposition in June.

Reports from the Springfield district tended to indicate that Justice Frank K. Dunn of Charleston, renominated by the Republicans, will have no opponent in June. The Democratic convention in the district nominated J. J. Morrissey of Bloomington, against the latter's wish, it is understood, and the feeling seems to prevail that Mr. Morrissey will withdraw and leave the field clear for Justice Dunn.

In the Vandalia district Republicans, spurred on by partisan victories over the state and country, are attempting the defeat of Justice William M. Farmer, renominated by the Democrats.

Justice Farmer's friends assert he is a candidate simply upon his record in the nine years he has been on the Supreme bench.

SUMNER BETTER, HE WIRES.

Bishop of Oregon Sends Message to Dr. W. A. Evans—Sure He Will Recover.

In response to an inquiry as to the failing health of Bishop W. T. Sumner of Oregon, formerly dean of the Cathedral SS. Peter and Paul, Dr. W. A. Evans of THE TRIBUNE staff received this telegram yesterday:

"I dividend the week between two hospitals, threatened with tracheotomy. I left the hospital yesterday, against the doctor's advice, but am keeping my engagements without preaching. Feeling fine. Throat much better—not quite well yet, but will be. Gratefully,

"W. T. SUMNER."

BALLOT REFORM THIS YEAR LOOMS IN LEGISLATURE

Joint Committee Holding Hearing Here Indicates Speedy Action Is Certain.

Direct primaries for the nomination of governor, state officers, congressmen, members of the legislature, and county officers, to be held in April, 1916, instead of September.

Establishment of one day of registration, with a permanent four year registration set of books, cutting out all intermediate registrations and revisions.

Trimming out of much of the present system of "notices," "election laws," and other printed matter which cannot be read or is disregarded as a general proposition by the voters.

Immense reduction in the number of "specimen" and "sample" ballots, in connection with the various primaries and elections.

Net saving in Chicago alone of more hundreds of thousands of dollars annually in election expenses and a corresponding proportionate decrease in all the downstate counties.

Five Essential Reforms.

These five big and highly important propositions were shoved forward yesterday as immediate essentials in reform of the general and primary election laws at a joint session of the senate and house committees on elections, which came up from Springfield to listen to arguments.

The sessions were held in the offices of the board of election commissioners, presided over jointly by Senator Kent E. Keller and Representative E. C. Perkins, the chairmen of the two legislative committees.

Plan Sweeping Revision.

Notwithstanding the extent to which legislation has proceeded at Springfield and the approach of sine die adjournment of the general assembly, the eighteen senators and representatives present indicated the intention of getting through a complete and practical revision of the present conglomeration of election acts covering primary and general elections. The indications were that composite bills, covering the several score of pending bills now in the two election committees will be reported out as rapidly as they can be codified and assembled.

The big thing, politically, is the idea that the September primaries, now provided in the primary act, shall be held in April. It means that the governorship primary instead of being sixteen months away is less than eleven and that the bitter Republican gubernatorial contest now in prospect will be staged coincidentally with the presidential preference primaries.

Scully and Egan Heard.

Chief Clerk Dennis J. Egan of the board of election commissioners, backed up thoroughly by County Judge Thomas F. Scully, produced figures and exhibits tending to show that a single and permanent registration, once every four years, with proper methods of correcting the registry books from time to time, would mean a net saving in expense, without loss in efficiency or endangering the purity of the voting lists, of not less than $500,000 annually.

The elections committees will meet in Springfield on Tuesday to endeavor to agree upon two main bills intended to bring up to date and codify all existing laws, amended to catch the trend of the times.

JOB GRAFT RULING DUE.

Judge Sullivan to Pass Tomorrow on City Watchman's Suit Against Democratic Leader.

Judge Dennis Sullivan will be called on to decide tomorrow whether Henry Phillips, a night watchman in the county building, is entitled to the return of $100 which he said he paid in order to obtain a job as day watchman in the building. The defendants are John P. Tansey, former secretary of the Democratic central committee, and Joseph Strauss, his partner.

In his amended bill of complaint filed yesterday Attorney Adolph Marks, representing Phillips, declares that on Nov. 13, 1914, Phillips paid Tansey $100 to have his job changed.

Tansey denied it. He said he pushed Phillips out of his office when Phillips refused to stop arguing with Mr. Strauss.

NINETY LOSE COUNTY JOBS.

Treasurer Stuckart Discharges Employes on Ground that Efficiency Precedes Politics.

Efficiency precedes politics in the county treasurer's office. Henry Stuckart, county treasurer, yesterday discharged ninety employés who were found to be incompetent to do the work in the treasurer's office. The discharged men are said to be proficient ward political workers, but Mr. Stuckart found that they didn't come up to his standard as employés of the county.

SUGGESTS BOARD ON BASIC LAW

Lawyer Urges Dunne to Name Commission to Aid Legislature.

ECHO OF DEADLOCK.

Tentative revision of the Illinois constitution by a commission of seven or nine, to be named by the governor, as a preliminary to a constitutional convention in 1919, is the latest suggestion to be made in connection with the conditions which have produced a constitutional amendment deadlock at Springfield.

Harry S. Mecartney, a Chicago lawyer, offers the suggestion in an open letter to Gov. Dunne.

Gov. Dunne. In it he said:

"While our present constitution provides for only two methods—a convention, or specific amendments to be submitted by the legislature directly to the people at large—the commission plan and practically all its advantages can still be availed of and appropriated—viz.: in the way of an advisory commission to the legislature.

"The present assembly could request the governor to appoint a commission, which could work during the summer months and make a report by next fall. The governor could then summon the assembly to meet in special session, say next January (1916), to consider alone the subject of constitutional changes and to act upon the commission's report."

DUNNE APPOINTMENTS O. K.

Senate Expected to Confirm Selections Long Held Up, Except Three Progressives.

Report was current yesterday among legislators in Chicago that all of Gov. Dunne's recess appointments, now being held up in the senate, will be confirmed this week, with the possible exception of the three men appointed as Progressives to boards and commissions. The three are

FRANK H. FUNK, public utilities commission.

GEORGE W. DOWELL, Court of Claims.

CHARLES W. ELLIOTT, Manager Pontiac reformatory.

The rumor is that enough senators are now determined that Republicans should be appointed to these positions on the ground that the Progressive party no longer exists as the minority party in the state.

Recount at Record Speed.

The subcommittee of the house elections committee handling the Ostrom-Walsh contest in the Third senatorial district proceeded at record speed yesterday. Thirty-five precincts were counted.

The other streets of this subdivision have been built in harmony with this one; and the whole property with its improvements is one of the most complete and beautiful home properties ever offered here or in any other city.

Fair Oaks Terrace is bounded on the North by North Avenue, on the East by Austin Avenue, on the South by Greenfield or Hirsh Avenue and on the West by Ridgeland. Austin, or 60th, Avenue is the city limits of Chicago; therefore it may be seen that our property is just outside the city of Chicago and is the last piece of property in this district ACCESSIBLE TO FIVE CENT CAR FARE TO THE LOOP.

IMPROVEMENTS The whole property will be improved with cement walks, shade and fruit trees. Shrubs will be planted on front and rear of lots and all streets will be graded. Sewer and water pipes will be laid this year, the assessments for same being in ten annual installments of about $7 per year for both improvements. The purchaser will pay no taxes until May, 1916. There is a beautiful playground for children in the center of the property.

MANN'S FRIENDS OPEN CAMPAIGN FOR PRESIDENCY

Lowden and Smith Republican Rivals for Governorship Primaries.

Prospects for a "slate ticket" for Republican state primary nominations in 1916 practically vanished yesterday. The state campaign, opening for general political purposes with the arrival in Chicago of almost all the candidates, announced and prospective, from governor down, apparently is to be a free for all race.

Precipitation of the presidential contest for control of the Illinois delegation of fifty-eight in the next national convention seems to have forced open hostilities all along the line.

Mann's Friends Busy.

Congressman James R. Mann's friends fired the first shot when they began circulation of his presidential preference primary petitions during the week.

The significant development of all of the gossip turned loose without restraint is that the Republican state committee is now almost evenly split between Frank O. Lowden and Frank L. Smith. Col. Lowden has not announced his candidacy for governor, but is now likely to do so, even before the legislature adjourns, according to reports. Col. Smith is an announced candidate.

Col. Smith and Col. Lowden were in Chicago during the day. They had important conferences with their downstate lieutenants.

Minor Aspirants' Views.

Republicans who aspire for places on the state ticket below the governorship suggested conditions are such that the state organization, headed by State Chairman Garrett Kinney of Peoria, cannot agree upon a complete slate and that the aspirants for minor places do not want an organization ticket with the situation continuing as it now exists.

Arriving Republican leaders from downstate brought in the information that the race is not necessarily between the two colonels. Important strength is assigned politically to former Speaker Charles Adkins of Piatt county in Congressman McKinley's district. It is now admitted Adkins will have the unqualified support of the McKinley organization and probably of the Cannon forces in eastern Illinois, to which Mr. Adkins' friends add a farmer strength said to exist in almost every downstate county.

Mayor Bennett May Run.

Dry Republicans, particularly those associated with the Anti-Saloon league, conceded that Mayor W. W. Bennett of Rockford is a certain starter and is sure of all the force that can be delivered by that element. The Bennett candidacy is not particularly pleasing to the Lowden men in northern and northwestern Illinois.

There seems to be no question about the open candidacy of State Treasurer Andrew Russel. Pursuing the political tactics which he has used in former campaigns, he is aligning with no element or faction, but his gubernatorial contest is in full swing.

STATE VICE BILL TO BE THRASHED OUT IN CHICAGO

House Committee Plans to Give Hearings on Abatement Measure Here.

Springfield, Ill., April 24.—[Special.]—Chicago real estate owners and social workers are making a vigorous effort to get an early report of the subcommittee of the house judiciary committee on the abatement and injunction bill introduced by Representative John H. Lyle of Englewood.

The bill is aimed at commercialized vice and gives the citizens and law officers power to drive prostitutes out of flats and buildings where the owners assume an indifferent attitude. Several representatives of reform organizations in Chicago appeared before the judiciary committee in behalf of the bill.

Plan to Come to Chicago.

A subcommittee was appointed by Chairman Holaday of the judiciary committee. It was announced today that the subcommittee is considering a visit to Chicago next week to hear members of the Cook county real estate board and other advocates of the bill and to hear opposition to the bill if any appears.

The chief opposition to the bill so far has developed among the followers of Lee O'Neil Browne of La Salle. Browne has announced that he will oppose the bill when it comes up for consideration in the house on the ground that he favors segregated vice.

Reform Leaders for It.

Samuel P. Thrasher, superintendent for the Committee of Fifteen of Chicago; Dr. Effa V. Davis, representing the women's organizations of Chicago; Harriet Vittum of the Woman's City club, and others from Chicago appeared before the committee to speak for the bill. Robert McCurdy explained its legal phases.

The apartment building managers of Chicago have indorsed the bill. They adopted resolutions favoring it.

BILL AIMED AT RESORTS.

Samuel P. Thrasher said last night that the proposed law was aimed to stop commercialized vice and the operation of resorts in Chicago. Such a law, he said, would give residents of clean neighborhoods an opportunity to keep their communities respectable.

"The bill means that any citizen," Mr. Thrasher said, "having sufficient evidence that a building, apartment, or place is being conducted as a resort, may send notice to the owner thereof and if he does not within reasonable time use due diligence to abate the nuisance complained of the citizen may apply for a bill for a preliminary injunction and finally for a perpetual injunction."

MAYOR REVOKES 5 LICENSES.

Saloon Owners Under Arrest Ousted and Two Poolrooms Ordered Discontinued.

As Mayor Harrison finished cleaning out his desk yesterday he revoked the licenses of three saloons and two poolrooms.

For the third time he revoked the saloon license of John P. Collins, at 670 West Madison street, where unescorted women congregated.

He also revoked the license of Stanley Czierwiec at 2258 West Nineteenth street and that of "Mike" Tytlewski, 2258 West Eighteenth street. Czierwiec is under arrest charged with counterfeiting and Tytlewski and his bartender, Martin Walters, are held for robbery.

JIMMIE, 13, WON'T "SQUEAL."

Boy Taken as Burglar Refuses to Tell Name of Little Partner Who Escaped.

Jimmie McManus, 13 years old, 1111 South Racine avenue, is a burglar bold, he admits, but sticks to the honor code of his craft not to "squeal" on his partner. He was caught in a barn at 2234 West Harrison street yesterday and locked up. A small boy with him escaped. Neither threats of the police nor pleadings of his mother would induce him to tell the other boy's name.

EPWORTH LEAGUE PROTESTS AGAINST BOXING BILL.

Resolutions Charge Promoters of 10 Round Bouts Aim at Money Making, Not Clean Sports.

Resolutions protesting against the passage of the boxing bill now under discussion in the state legislature at Springfield were adopted yesterday at the convention of the Western District Epworth league in the Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal church at Park avenue and Robey street. Sixty churches were represented.

The resolutions charge the promoters of the boxing bill are acting for money making purposes, that in effect the ten round boxing provided for is essentially prizefighting, and would be made a convenience for gambling and other forms of vice and graft.

The resolutions also declare in favor of clean sports.

Don't Take Changes—Summer Is Coming

IS there moisture on the food-chamber linings of your refrigerator? Did you ever wipe it off with a towel and note the smudge? Do you want your family to eat this smudge regularly—every day? PLAN FOR TRUCE OF SLATE MAKERS PROVES FAILURE Aldermen on Homeward Bound Train Cannot Get Together on the Committees.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Memphis, Tenn., April 24.—[Special.]—Any idea of reconciliation between the Republican and Democratic members of the Chicago committee of slatemakers was exploded at a conference between the two factions tonight on the homeward bound Illinois Central train.

It was the first meeting attended by all six aldermen since the Democrats took French leave of their associates at Biloxi, Miss., and framed up a slate of their own. The possibility of a unanimous report was suggested in tonight's meeting, but the Democrats rejected overtures of any kind.

"We have our slate and we are ready to battle for it to a finish on the floor of the council," said the Democrats.

Bitter Attack on Democrats.

The Democrats were made the subject of a sharp attack in an interview given by Republican slatemakers, who also have a slate ready for Monday night's council meeting.

"The Democrats have broken their compact with the Municipal Voters' league," said Ald. Albert J. Fisher. "They have failed to keep their pledge to work out a nonpartisan committee slate.

"They say we refused to retain Ald. John A. Richert as chairman of the finance committee. That is not true. We asked them what their attitude would be towards other chairman if Richert were agreed to and they quit right there. Their action was partisan in the highest degree. They are sailing under false colors. They took the conference slate of the committees which had been agreed upon by Republicans and Democrats alike and issued it as their own, making only a few changes."

Three Changes Are Made.

The Democratic and Republican slates practically are the same with the exception of three chairmanships. The big fight is over chairman of finance. The Republicans named Lipps and the Democrats insist on Richert.

For head of schools, fire, police, and civil service the Republicans nominated T. J. Lynch and their opponents selected Charles E. Merriam.

The Republicans sprung a surprise in placing Ald. Eugene Block in the chairmanship of the special park commission, where the Democrats named Thomas Doyle. Block was deposed from local transportation by both factions and Ald. Henry D. Capitain is assured the post if either slate carries.

Ald. Stanley Walkowiak, one of the slate makers, withdrew as candidate for head of the buildings committee and Ald. Joseph H. Smith is the unanimous choice.

PEACE REIGNS IN SUFFRAGE BODY

Mrs. Thompson Unopposed for Presidency of Political Equality League.

VOTE NEXT SATURDAY.

Next Saturday's election at the Chicago Political Equality league may be one of the quietest affairs of that kind held by the league in many years. So far there is only one ticket in the field and no organized opposition has made itself heard.

Mrs. Harriet Thompson is the candidate for president, to succeed Mrs. Harriette Taylor Treadwell. The one appearance of a contest seems to be in the matter of a change in the bylaws in regard to the appointment of delegates. It is an echo of the last state and national suffrage convention. The Political Equality league sent nearly 100 delegates to the state convention pledged to Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout, and the league held the balance of power in the convention.

Suggested Bylaw Change.

Dr. Anna Blount, who is bitterly opposed to Mrs. Trout in suffrage matters, presented the following change in the bylaws:

"All delegates to other organizations to which the league is auxiliary shall be nominated and elected from the floor at a regular meeting. No person shall be privilegd to nominate more than two such delegates."

At present the board of directors selects the body of delegates and the list is voted on as a whole by the entire organization.

The Other Candidates.

The candidates besides Mrs. Thompson on the regular ticket are:

Mrs. Katherine Knowles Robbins, first vice president; Mrs. Milo B. Randall, second vice president; Mrs. Judith Loewenthal, recording secretary; Mrs. Maud Cain Taylor, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Florence V. Gray, treasurer; and Mrs. Treadwell, Mrs. Trout, Mrs. Willard McEwen, Mrs. Sophia Delavan, Mrs. Julius Loeb, Mrs. Sara M. Butcher, Mrs. Louis E. Yager, directors.

The candidates for chairmen of sections are: Mrs. Stella S. Jannotta, propaganda; Mrs. Ida Darling Engelke, study; and Mrs. Albert H. Schweizer, legislative.

Miss Anna Okeson, chairman of the sanitation committee, has started a "Chicago beautiful" movement among children. Cards are being distributed throughout the city and in some of the downstate cities with the words: "Make a garden, plant a tree; don't break windows; make window boxes; pick up paper."

GALLOWS RATHER THAN LIFE

Conductor's Alleged Slayer Pleads He Would Sooner Die than Be a "Lifer."

Joseph Esposito, under conviction for the murder of William Laird, street car conductor, pleaded before Judge O'Connor yesterday that he would rather be hanged than be sentenced to the penitentiary for life.

"If you intend to imprison me for life I would rather be hanged tonight," he shouted. "I am innocent and if you give me time I will produce witnesses to prove it."

"You have been found guilty," answered the court, "but I will give you a week's time."

REMOVE ROBERTS AS MAYOR AFTER HE'S IN PRISON

Terre Haute (Ind.) Council Impeaches Official Convicted of Election Frauds.

Terre Haute, Ind., April 24.—Mayor Donn M. Roberts, recently found guilty with twenty-seven other Terre Hauteans of conspiracy to corrupt the election here on Nov. 3, 1914, was impeached today by the city council by a vote of 7 to 3.

Roberts was not present at the trial, being in the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kas., serving a six year sentence, fixed by Judge A. B. Anderson in the federal court at Indianapolis.

The vote was taken after a day and a half of hearing testimony concerning the charges of the council that the mayor had illegally ordered warrants drawn to pay attorneys' fees in personal cases.

Other charges were that he had attempted to bribe city councilmen to vote for a boundary ordinance recently before the council; that he had neglected the city's business by absenting himself for long periods; that he had caused persons to be arrested and held without bond on trivial charges, and that he had been convicted of a felony.

Roberts Declines to Comment.

Leavenworth, Kas., April 24.—"I have nothing whatever to say," Mayor Donn M. Roberts declared when informed this afternoon of the action of the Terre Haute city council in impeaching him. The information was given to Roberts by prison officials, who had received it over the long distance telephone.

Judge Faces Impeachment.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 24.—State's Attorney General Richard M. Milburn filed today in the state Supreme court proceedings for the impeachment of Eli H. Redman as judge of the Vigo county Circuit court. It was said to be the first case of the kind ever filed in Indiana.

Redman, with Mayor Donn M. Roberts of Terre Haute, and other city and county officials, was convicted here in the federal court in the Terre Haute election conspiracy case and sentenced to the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kas. The complaint states that fact and asks not only that Redman be removed from office, but that he be disfranchised.

Newcastle, Ind., Mayor Indicted.

Newcastle, Ind., April 24.—[Special.]—James Leb. Watkins, mayor of Newcastle, was indicted this afternoon on three charges by the Henry county grand jury. He is charged in all three counts with accepting bribes, Ollie Skinner, a prisoner in the county jail, being the giver of the bribes, according to the indictments.

In addition to the indictment Watkins is made defendant in a civil action filed by the grand jury in impeachment proceedings. In this action Watkins is charged with malfeasance in office.

The true bills state that Watkins accepted a bribe of $240 from Skinner, $200 at another time, and $10 at still another time for protecting Skinner while the latter operated a "blind tiger" and ran a gambling game. Mayor Watkins tonight declared that the whole affair is a frameup because he sent Skinner to jail.

TAR DAUBER SHOT IN LEG.

Joseph Hartman Captured by Police After Fusillade in Pursuit Before Retaken.

Joseph Hartman of 668 North Clark street, one of two men who daubed the windows of Zimmer & Kasch's bakery in Maywood with tar early yesterday, was shot in the left leg by Policeman Charles Ritt and captured. Ritt saw the men leaving the bakery with a bucket of tar and a brush and noticed that the front of the store had been defaced.

A week ago the bakery was smeared with red paint. Ritt arrested Hartman and the other man, who gave the name of Miller, but both broke away and ran toward Oak Park. Ritt fired several shots and Hartman was hit. Miller got away. The police believe labor troubles are responsible, although the bakers of Maywood and River Forest deny they have had any difficulty with the unions.

DICKINSON SOLE RECEIVER IN SOME ROCK ISLAND AFFAIRS.

Former Secretary of War Will Handle All Business of Receivership in Which Mudge Is Interested.

Judge Carpenter in the federal District court yesterday issued an order in the receivership proceedings of the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad making Jacob M. Dickinson, former secretary of war, sole receiver in all matters in which H. U. Mudge, president and receiver, is interested as a defendant in court suits and claims.

President Mudge has been included in the list of defendants in the suit filed in New York by the Amster minority committee of stockholders to recover $7,500,000 which, it is charged, wrongfully was taken from the treasury of the operating company for the purchase of the Frisco stock, which later was sold at a big loss to the railroad company. The money was borrowed from the operating company in 1909 and all the directors, including D. G. Reid and the Moore brothers, are included in the list of defendants.

Jacob Newman, attorney for the minority interests in the action taken to prevent the annual meeting of stockholders on April 12, said he had received instructions as to the course that the minority interests would take locally, but that he was pledged to secrecy for the time being. He predicted, however, the fireworks would start again next week. It is understood the minority interests have abandoned the original of attempting to set aside the receivership.

Warrants for Farmers.

At the request of District Attorney Clyne Judge Landis yesterday issued bench warrants for Henry Johnson of Barrington, Ill., and Tony Price of Du Page county, farmers. They are charged with resisting quarantine officers sent to inspect cattle suspected of being infected with the hoof and mouth disease. The farmers are charged with chasing the federal officers off their farms with shotguns.

HUDSON $1550 F.O.B. Detroit

3-Passenger Roadster

HUDSON $1550 F.O.B. Detroit

For Pride's Sake

Drive a Hudson This Year

For pride of ownership, for this is the class car in the Light Six type. For pride in your judgment, because 12,000 owners have proved this car right. And for joy in motoring—that depends on fine engineering, on freedom from trouble, on lightness, economy and beauty.

A New High Mark

In this latest Hudson, Howard E. Coffin has set a new high mark in designing.

In this car he created the Light Six type—the dominant type of today. In this car he has brought out the final refinements, after four years of work.

Here is the lightest 7-passenger Six. Here is the car that stands out among all in its class for beauty, luxury, finish and equipment.

The Years at Stake

Remember the years at stake—the years you will drive your new car. Any extra weight means a constant tax. Any mistake in designing, any weakness or shortcoming means constant trouble and expense.

You know the Hudson is right. Any owner can tell you. And 12,000 owners have driven this Light Six 30 million miles. This is the only model of this new-day type which has had time to prove itself faultless.

No Shortage Now

Last spring thousands of men had to wait weeks for this Hudson. There will be delays this spring for late comers. They cannot be avoided.

But our winter output and trebled capacity enable prompt delivery now. You can get the car you want without waiting. Come while this condition lasts.

This year there are many Light Sixes. Few are attempting to sell anything else above $1,100. But the demand for the Hudson is greater than when it stood alone. For Hudson was first. It has proved itself out. It is a Howard E. Coffin model. And our years of start have given us time to bring out perfection in this type.

You will prefer it for a hundred reasons which you can see yourself. We urge you to prove this now.

Wall Paper 5¢ and 10¢ nothing higher

Our prices do not tell the story of QUALITY offered in this unique store. Others are charging TEN to TWENTY times as much for the identical papers we sell at 5c and 10c.

A visit will convince you that this statement is true and that our regular retail prices are greater values than any "bargains" or "sales" offered by other shops or department stores.

Our One Thousand Beautiful Patterns are exhibited on large display screens, which show them just as they would appear on the wall in your home. This means that you will not be disappointed with what you buy in this store. We are able to show our papers in this way because they will stand inspection.

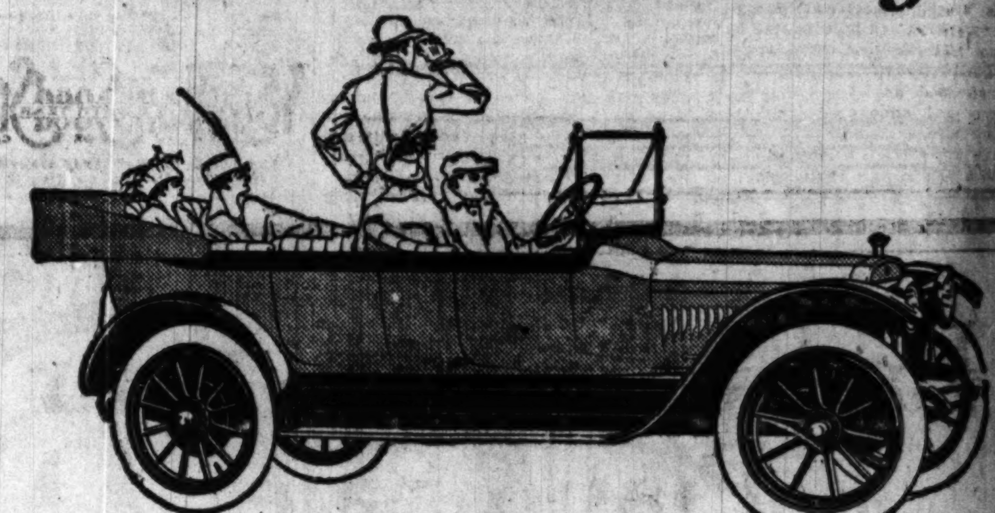
Clothed in Beauty



If Paquin's gowns were all alike, who would want one? It's the individuality that counts. And individuality counts even more in your automobile. Cars that look alike and need license plates to tell them apart, never give you the zest you enjoy when you own a Winton Six. Every Winton Six buyer may have his individual car finished to his personal taste. That makes an ideal possession—a car of excelling merit, clothed in admirable beauty.

ROCKEFELLER JR. ENTERS DENIAL OF WALSH CHARGE

Asserts Wrong Inferences Have Been Drawn from Correspondence on Strike.

New York, April 24.—John D. Rockefeller Jr. gave out a statement late today in reference to the correspondence between himself and L. M. Bowers, chairman of the Colorado Fuel and Iron company, which was made public yesterday by Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the United States commission on industrial relations.

Mr. Rockefeller characterizes as false the conclusions which Mr. Walsh drew from the correspondence. He asserts Mr. Walsh had drawn inferences without ascertaining whether they were correct, a "proceeding which is wholly indefensible." He said further that he would be glad to appear to give additional testimony before the commission at any time, "for we are desirous that the public shall have all the facts."

Second Offense by Walsh.

The Rockefeller statement follows:

"On Feb. 18, soon after the hearings in New York of the United States commission on industrial relations, I felt called upon in justice to myself to point out to the public a gross misstatement concerning my evidence which had been given out by Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the commission.

"Mr. Walsh today makes another long statement containing many misrepresentations and unwarranted inferences. The public is entitled to the facts concerning the allegations which Mr. Walsh makes, but it is impossible to assemble all the data in time for the Sunday morning papers. I am preparing a statement which will be available for publication on Monday morning.

Ready to Testify Again.

"In reference to Mr. Walsh's announcement of his intention to call my associates and myself to give further information in regard to the Colorado strike, I need hardly say that we shall be glad to appear at any time, for we are desirous that the public shall have all the facts.

"To that end we have already testified with great fullness, have waived all our legal rights, and have supplied the commission without any subpœna duces tecum all the information which has been asked for, including a mass of private correspondence.

Calls Walsh Statement False.

"Mr. Walsh has taken that correspondence, had drawn from it certain inferences, and without ascertaining whether his inferences are correct, has made statements and announced conclusions which are false.

"Such a proceeding, I submit, is wholly indefensible on the part of the chairman of a body holding a commission from the government of the United States."

Ammons Denies Charges.

Denver, Colo., April 24.—"Lie" was the word former Gov. E. M. Ammons gave out here today to the statement credited to Chairman Frank P. Walsh of the federal industrial relations committee that Ammons took orders from John D. Rockefeller Jr. or his press agent, Ivy Lee.

"I never had correspondence with Mr. Rockefeller or any one representing his interests. I did not know any of these men, not even his local representative, Mr. Bowers.

"Once I conferred with McKenzie King (Rockefeller's industrial welfare agent) regarding the possible settlement of the strike, but as for any letters passing between me and them or coming from them to be forwarded by me to the president or governors, it is an unqualified lie."

STRIKERS' WIVES BATTLE POLICE WITH PICK HANDLES.

Fifty or More Women of Stamford, Conn., Refuse to Disperse at Command of Mayor—Fight Results.

Stamford, Conn., April 24.—Wives of striking laborers here to the number of fifty or more, armed with broomsticks, pick handles, and salt, had a hand-to-hand fight with the police today when the latter attempted to disperse them after a demonstration at the town hall. One arrest was made.

About 800 laborers, including nearly all of those employed by the city and local contractors, are on strike for $2 a day, an eight hour day, and recognition of their union.

The women marched in a body to the town hall and when Mayor Brown appeared called on him to concede the strikers' demands. The mayor explained that only the common council could act, and asked them to disperse, and when they refused, directed the police to disperse them. The fight followed.

TELL OF LUDLOW BATTLE.

Testimony in Trial of John Lawson, Labor Leader, Turns on Contests Around Jail.

Trinidad, Colo., April 24.—Testimony that the battle between deputy sheriffs and striking coal miners on Oct. 25, 1913, in which John Nimmo was killed was begun when a party of deputies was fired upon by a crowd of armed men near the Ludlow depot, was given today in the trial of John R. Lawson on a charge of murder.

Lawson is accused of being in command of the strikers on the day of the battle. The defendant is the district No. 15, member of the international executive committee of the United Mine Workers of America.

Charles L. Fanning, a cow-puncher, was the witness who told of the beginning of the battle.

GIRL IS A 'BUM' TO AID FATHER

TRAMPED 100 MILES.

Chester, Ill., April 24.—To plead for the liberty of her convict father, Ruth Abbott, 13 years old, ran away from her home at Staunton, Ill., and after a journey of more than 100 miles, covered by foot, wagon, train, and boat, she arrived here while the board of pardons was in session and told her story.

It was a story of the cruelty of a stepmother, the mistreatment of several half-sisters and half-brothers, and the gibes of playmates who knew that she was the child of a convict.

The desire to see her father grew stronger each day, until, weeping, Ruth went to the mines where he had been employed and told the miners of it. They gave her $8 for railroad fare to Chester, but her mother took this away, Ruth said. She then set out afoot and was assisted occasionally by travelers.

After appearing before the pardon board Ruth saw her father, Salmon Abbott, at the penitentiary here. Abbott was sentenced for the murder of Emil Bawie, whom he shot while Bawie was in a buggy with Mrs. Abbott.

AID TO RETIRED MINISTERS.

James B. Hobbs Leaves $25,000 to Methodist Episcopal Church Pastors.

The retired ministers of the Methodist Episcopal church will receive $25,000 from the estate of the late James B. Hobbs, who for many years was prominent in Methodist church activities.

DISAPPOINTMENTS PILE UP FOR HARRY KENDALL THAW.

New York State Appeals from Court Decision to Permit Jury to Decide Sanity of White's Slayer.

New York, April 24.—Harry K. Thaw, who went to sleep in the Tombs prison last night elated by his belief that he had won his long fight for a jury trial to test his sanity, awoke today to learn that he must await a decision of the Appellate division of the Supreme court before such a hearing would be granted.

This new check in his attempt legally to obtain his freedom from the Matteawan asylum, to which Justice Page had ordered him returned, was due to the announcement by Attorney General Woodbury that the state would make application to the Appellate division for a writ of prohibition against the order for a jury trial granted yesterday by Justice Hendrick.

The attorney general contends that Justice Hendrick does not possess power to grant a jury trial on the writ of habeas corpus obtained by Thaw.

Mrs. Falkenstein Better.

Mrs. Esther Falkenstein, head of the settlement bearing her name, was reported in a slightly improved condition last night at St. Mary's of Nazareth hospital. Mrs. Falkenstein underwent a serious operation more than a week ago and she has since lost her sight in one eye. Her attendants believe she will recover, though her condition is still critical.

INDICT CASHIER HORN OF DUQUOIN PRIVATE BANK.

Accused Man Disappears—True Bill Against His Assistant, Frank Wells, for Embezzlement.

Duquoin, Ill., April 24.—[Special.]—The grand jury today returned indictments against Henry Horn Jr., cashier of the defunct Duquoin bank of Henry Horn, and Frank Wells, an assistant in that institution.

Horn is charged with embezzlement and working a confidence game, while Wells is indicted only for embezzlement. Fourteen indictments were returned against Horn and four against Wells.

Wells was arrested this morning and released under $500 bond for his appearance at the July term of city court. Horn has disappeared, but will be tried at the July term if found before that time.

TEXAS MOURNS FLOOD DEAD.

Fatalities Estimated at About Fifty and Austin Lays Plans for Funeral Services.

Austin, Tex., April 24.—The state capital tonight was a city of gloom. With its flood death list reckoned at fifty or more, and its discovered dead already forty-five, the city was planning for single funeral services for the identified victims. The waters are receding.

SMALLPOX AT PENITENTIARY HITS HONOR MEN'S BAND.

Joliet Prison Under Quarantine After Musician Is Seized with Attack—No Spread Expected.

Joliet, Ill., April 24.—A strict quarantine was put in effect at the penitentiary today, following the discovery that a member of the honor men's band was suffering from smallpox.

No one is allowed to approach even as far as the warden's office and extra guards surround the entire place.

It is believed the quarantine will be in effect about four days. No extensive spread of the disease is expected, as every inmate was vaccinated upon entering.

The quarantine will prevent the second public performance by the honor men's band, and will delay, according to Warden E. M. Allen, the beginning of road work. The first squad of fifty honor men were to have begun work on the roads of Livingston county next week.

The smallpox patient will be removed tonight to an isolation hospital.

Feared Teacher; Drowns.

Topeka, Kas., April 24.—Because she feared her teacher would send her mother a note that she had written to her boy sweetheart, it is said, 12 year old Violet Woods, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Woods, leaped from a bridge into the Kansas river and drowned.

The Biggest Big Car

The Thomas B. Jeffery Company — Jeffery — Kenosha, Wis. U.S.A.

Built for the man who frankly wants the utmost in size and power—the best of everything and the most of it—that's the Jeffery "6"-48.

We have had but little to say about this Jeffery model. This is, in fact, the first advertisement of this car which we have published.

Yet, you find today, here in Chicago, this Jeffery model being driven by scores of the most discriminating users of "big cars."

They have found it out, and they buy it, without special effort from us, for what it is.

Why?

That's simple enough.

This great "6"-48, the largest of all Jeffery models, seven-passenger capacity, 133-inch wheel base, is produced under the same policy that made possible the famous Jeffery-Four and the Jeffery Chesterfield Six.

This policy comprehends the production, first of all, of cars of the utmost quality, regardless of price. Then it means the production of those cars in a debt-free factory, where extravagant margins to meet costly overhead and interest charges are not necessary.

Consequently we can say to you who are looking for a "big" car that this Jeffery "6"-48 is—

First, the last word in motor-car building, the peer of any car in the world.

Second, it is sold to you at a price $1200 to $2800 less than you must pay elsewhere for cars of the same class.

The car is here to prove it.

That's all.

The Jeffery-Four Now $1150. This, as we predicted, is the sensation of the season. A car actually worth $1550, sold at that price in Chicago by the hundreds—now yours at a saving of $400; prosperity has made it possible to cut costs. No car selling at around this price can possibly be compared with it—it's by all odds the one best buy.

which Mayor Thompson will bring to Chicago will be jobs for about 1,500 men, who will start to work tomorrow morning. The Prosperity day committee sent letters to a large number of Chicago employers a few days ago. Answers have been received from nearly a hundred of these. Some stated they would give employment to one additional man; others said they would employ fifty additional men. These are all offers from private employers and corporations.

Commercial organizations throughout the state have been invited to send representatives to Chicago for the parade.

Limit on Participants.

Owing to the desire of every ward marching club to turn out in large numbers the committee was forced to hold down the foot delegations, and only representative bodies were able to procure places. No political banners will be allowed, and "Come on, prosperity," has been adopted as the official slogan.

An elaborate plan has been laid out to handle the mobilization. Under Commander in Chief Racey and Chief of Staff John V. Clinnin 300 mounted orderlies will go through a drill today in Grant park, and get acquainted with the position of each division section and the point assigned to each delegation. Foot delegations will enter by the way of Monroe street, while autos, floats, and horse drawn vehicles will enter at Peck court. Warning has been issued by the committee that all bodies should form outside of Grant park and report in a body.

Order of the March.

The marching order will be as follows:

Motorcycle police.

One hundred mounted police, Capt. C. C. Healey.

One hundred and fifty Chicago police drill squad on foot.

First division—Capt. Edward C. Bittel, marshal; Pullman band of 150 pieces; unions, crafts, and trades.

Second division—Capt. Horace J. Mellum, marshal; band, school teachers, and women's marching clubs.

Third division—Capt. Nicholas J. Buddinger, marshal; Loyal Order of Moose band, 120 pieces, and fraternal organizations.

Fifth division—Jay Rossiter, marshal; First Regiment band, athletic clubs, yacht clubs, and miscellaneous organizations.

Seventh division—Harry N. Fowler, commander; Oliver S. Temme, marshal; Harry Cooper, adjutant; band and automobile division.

Motorcycle Squad Leads.

The motorcycle squad will start on the way to cut off traffic and following will come 100 mounted police and the divisions in the order named. The line of march from Grant park will be Monroe to State, State to Randolph, Randolph to La Salle, La Salle to Jackson boulevard, to Peck court, where the foot marchers will fall out. The autos and floats, however, will continue to Thirty-third street and Michigan avenue.

Ample police protection will handle the crowds, and, under the command of Surgeon General W. E. Buehler, M. D., and Assistant Surgeon General Ira E. Hoffman.

Forty bands, all told, have been registered with the committee, and there is bound to be plenty of music, even if the committee did insist on neutral airs and ruling out those not American, including "I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier."

In the evening fireworks will be touched off from a barge anchored just off Grant park. At the moment Mayor Harrison turns the city over to Mayor Elect Thompson a man on a telephone in the council chamber will send a flash to parade headquarters and a rocket will be discharged as a signal to the crew on the barge to turn loose an immense display of set pieces and fireworks.

WALL PAPERS for BEDROOMS

should be chosen carefully. It is no exaggeration to say that health and happiness are promoted by having sleeping rooms suitably decorated.

The walls of a bedroom should above all things be bright and cheerful, as well as restful. If the lighting conditions are not ideal, there are wall papers that will assist in remedying the defect.

The paper should not make the furniture unduly conspicuous, but should produce a pleasing combination.

Whether your furniture be of the design of a certain period or of the miscellaneous or nondescript variety, we have the papers that will harmonize and satisfy, and we only await the opportunity to show them to you. One visit to our showroom will convince you that there is no reason why your wall decorations should not be a source of pride and satisfaction to you.

Insure your satisfaction by selecting your wall papers at this new and up-to-date store of a long established firm.

Smithfield, Ill., Man Finally Gives Up to Officers, However.

MERCHANT IS VICTIM.

Canton, Ill., April 24.—[Special.]—Joseph Day, senior partner of Day Bros., merchants of Smithfield and Cuba, was shot and killed in his store at Smithfield late today by Ben Pearson. The motive is unknown.

Following the shooting Pearson ran through the town and barricaded himself in a hollow, where for two hours he held off many townsmen. Deputy sheriffs rushed to the scene from this city and at once opened an attack upon the slayer. The battle had scarcely begun when Pearson threw away his gun and surrendered.

Late tonight feeling in Smithfield was so intense that the prisoner was removed from the town lockup and taken to the county jail at Lewistown.

ROADS TO PROTECT ALIENS.

Immigrants to Be Under Watchful Eyes Until They Reach U. S. Care.

The usefulness of Chicago's new immigration station will be increased materially by a new arrangement between the government and eastern railroads entering Chicago. Dr. P. L. Prentis, immigration inspector in charge, announced yesterday contracts have been signed with the railroads by which immigrants bound for Chicago will be furnished coupons for a bus ride direct from the railroad station to the immigrant station at 845 South Wabash avenue. The new system will go far toward preventing unscrupulous expressmen and confidence workers from intercepting the new arrivals and swindling them.

8,000 NEW YORK COPS PARADE TO MUSIC OF BANDS

Police Force in Annual Review Before Mayor Mitchel—Six Medals for Conspicuous Bravery.

New York, April 24.—Eight thousand policemen marched to the music of twelve bands in annual parade down Fifth avenue from Central park to Washington square today.

At Madison square they were reviewed by Mayor Mitchel and other city officials. As the parade passed the reviewing stand the highest honor men of the department wheeled out of line and stood before the mayor, who pinned on each man's coat a medal for conspicuous bravery.

Six medals were presented and eight other men were given honorable mention for valor.

DR. A. P. HEINECK WINS SUIT

Appeal by Civil Service Commissioners Holds Up Court's Order, However.

Judge Fornoff in the Circuit court yesterday entered judgment in favor of Dr. Aime Paul Heineck, directing that a writ of mandamus issue against the county civil service commissioners ordering them to set aside the order eliminating the examination for attendant physicians at the County hospital in 1911. An appeal from the court's order was taken by the defendants, and the effect of the order was thereby indefinitely postponed. Dr. Heineck, who had passed the 1911 examination, sought by his suit to be appointed to the attending staff of the hospital.

NEWS PURELY PERSONAL.

GUGLIELMO MARCONI, head of the Marconi system, and now an Italian senator, arrived at New York. He came to inspect the Marconi wireless stations and said his stay would depend upon Italy's action in the European situation.

WILLIAM HEIMKE, chief of the division of Latin American affairs of the state department, has resigned his office effective May 17 after forty-three years of government service, eighteen years in the army and twenty-five years in the diplomatic and consular service.

B. F. TRACY, former secretary of the navy, will celebrate his eighty-fifth birthday tomorrow by attending a business meeting.

ORDERS THEATER LICENSED.

Judge Honore Delays Execution Until Higher Court Passes on Case.

Judge Honoré in the Circuit court yesterday directed the city of Chicago to issue a license to Frank Nahser for operation of his Fifty-third street theater. An appeal was immediately taken by the city to the Supreme court and a stay order by Judge Honoré delays execution of the mandamus until the Supreme court acts. Opposition to the opening of the theater was particularly raised by the Hyde Park Presbyterian church.

Germany Gets Big U. S. Credit.

BERLIN, via London, April 24.—The Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung officially announces that an American banking group has taken $10,000,000 of the nine months imperial exchequer bonds and placed them among their customers. This step was taken to strengthen German credit in the United States.

FINKEL WINS GAMING CASE.

Plaintiff in Action Brought After Poker Session Not Furniture Firm Employe.

Judge Uhlir in the Municipal court yesterday held that money borrowed to pay a gambling debt after the close of the game can be recovered in court. At the same time he asserted that had the money been borrowed during the game he would throw the case out of court.

A verdict for $150 in favor of Sol Finkel of 4545 South Michigan avenue was entered by the court against S. A. Springer of 1818 South Halsted street. Finkel charged that he loaned Springer that amount to "settle up" after a poker game in the Finkel home Jan. 10.

At the last hearing of testimony it was wrongly reported that Finkel was connected with the Illinois Furniture company, 804 West North avenue.

BRYAN APPEALS FOR PUBLICITY IN GOVERNMENT

Secretary Says All Good Citizens Must Unite to Fight with Evils of System.

Baltimore, Md., April 24.—Publicity is as essential to honest administration of the government as freedom of speech is to representative government, Secretary William J. Bryan told members of the City club today.

"The government being the people's business," he said, "it necessarily follows that its operations should be at all times open to the public view."

Governments approach perfection, the secretary declared, in so far as they are coöperative, "in proportion as they adjust with justice the joint burdens which it is necessary to impose, and distribute with equity the incidental benefits which come from the disbursement of the money raised by taxation."

Urges Union Against Evil.

Secretary Bryan spoke on "Rules for the New Voter," but he also discussed the duty of every citizen, which, he said, was "to exert himself to the utmost to reform every abuse of government and to eradicate every evil in government, remembering that abuses and evils are more easily corrected in their beginning than when they have become fully established."

Secretary Bryan then referred to Lincoln's Gettysburg speech, appealing to his countrymen to consecrate themselves to the unfinished task that lay before them that a "government of the people, by the people, and for the people might not perish from the earth."

All Citizens Must Help.

"That task," said the secretary, in conclusion, "is still unfinished, and it is the duty of every citizen to carefully study the principles and methods of government, as they arise, and then give his country the benefit of his judgment and his conscience.

"To this end he should not only express himself at elections but faithfully attend primaries and conventions where candidates are chosen and policies enunciated."

Taft Speaks After Bryan.

Former President Taft made three addresses here today. He spoke on "The Opportunities of Citizenship" at the City club a few hours after Secretary of State Bryan had given advice to new voters at the same place.

The former president then went to the Johns Hopkins university, where he gave an intimate view of "The Presidency—Its Powers, Its Functions, and Its Responsibilities."

"I have often thought it would have been better," Mr. Taft said, "to have made the term six or seven years, with ineligibility for reëlection.

"But I don't want to tinker with the constitution. There are so many people who think it ought to be radically changed that I prefer to have a few spots on the sun rather than run the risk of its going out altogether."

ROWDY POLICEMAN SEEKS OLD JOB IN DEPARTMENT

Ousted Bluecoat Sues for Mandamus Compelling City to Reinstate Him.

Otto Klein, a former policeman, who was a member of a crowd of drunken rowdies who terrorized the village of Oak Lawn on the night of Feb. 1, 1913, filed a petition for a writ of mandamus in the Circuit court yesterday commanding the city to reinstate him as a patrolman.

Klein, Policeman Walter Briggs, Oscar Erickson, a saloonkeeper named Long, and half a dozen others drove out to the village on the night in question in two automobiles and tried to force their way into a mask ball being given by the town officials, their wives, and daughters. The policemen were intoxicated. They were told their presence was not wanted. They forced their way into the place and insulted the women and girls.

A battle followed, in which Klein's badge, revolver, and club were taken away from him, and he was ejected. Several shots were fired at townspeople by the unruly visitors. Finally they were driven from the village by outraged citizens, a battered and a beaten crew.

The story was disclosed by THE TRIBUNE, and as a result of the published accounts Chief McWeeney suspended the three policemen and had charges filed against them before the trial board. All three were discharged a week later.

GENERAL FAVORS GOMPERS' VIEWS ON U. S. DEFENSE

John A. Johnston Indorses Labor Leader's Advocacy of Preparedness.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., April 24.—[Special.]—That the sentiment of the voters is rapidly crystallizing into a demand for a military policy which will prepare the country to defend itself is indicated by a letter from Gen. John A. Johnston, president of the Army league, to Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor.

Gen. Johnston expresses his admiration of the recent interview of President Gompers on the question of national defense and sets forth the belief that congress will take some action at its next session.

In his letter Gen. Johnston declares that the benefits of military preparedness were never better expressed than when Mr. Gompers said:

"The power to enforce right is a tremendous element in establishing justice," and that under present conditions "it would be suicidal for any one nation to begin disarmament."

Gen. Johnston agrees with Mr. Gompers in declaring that the subordination of the military to the civil power is made effective by our constitution and guarantees us against militarism.

Appeals to Patriots.

"Your interview will appeal to every patriotic citizen," Gen. Johnston wrote, "and your statement that 'nations must be able to make effective their best conceptions of what will promote the welfare of nations and continued progress of civilization' shows clearly that you have been a close student of the history of the world.

"In this nation the principle that civil must ever remain supreme over military power, to the exclusion of so-called militarism, is ground into the mental fiber of all graduates of West Point and Annapolis, as doubtless it is or should be in all other institutions of learning, in harmony with the inborn understanding of the people, and it is indeed timely that you should invite attention to the fact that the subordination of the military to the civil power is made effective by our constitution.

Dictates Use of Military.

"The policy of the civil authorities, under the constitution has always dictated the use of the army or national guard whenever or wherever employed.

"It is indeed gratifying to know that such a distinguished labor leader entertains the same general ideas on the question of national defense as the advocates of military preparedness both in civil life and the army.

"I am firmly convinced that you voiced the sentiment of the country at large in your interview, and under such conditions congress with the military authorities at the next session will be able to work out a military policy which will prepare the nation to defend itself."

PAIGE

"The Standard of Value and Quality"

Service and Satisfaction

These are distinctly Paige days in Chicago.

Every one is talking about the handsome big Six "46"—admiring it—and taking advantage of every opportunity to ride in it.

Everywhere you will find incontestable evidence of Paige satisfaction.

You have only to note the proud, smiling faces of the Paige "Six" owners as they roll down the boulevard. There are more than 330 such owners in Chicago alone.

Ask them, if you would understand the reason for this car's tremendous popularity.

Then remember that this great car carries the Bird-Sykes unqualified endorsement and guarantee—quite as well as the guarantee of the manufacturer.

Selling motor cars is our business, but satisfying owners is the insurance of our investment.

The character and the service-guarantee of Bird-Sykes are of just as much importance to you as the character and guarantee of the car you buy.

We are organized not only to sell motor cars but to keep these cars in continuous, uninterrupted service for our patrons.

We sell motoring—which means a great deal more than merely selling painted bodies mounted on four wheels.

Service is a very much abused—a sadly misinterpreted—word these days. But Bird-Sykes service is a tangible thing supported by tangible evidence and expressed in a tangible policy.

We repeat, "ask any Paige owner." We are quite confident to rest our case in such hands.

GOTHAM QUACKS BEG IMMUNITY

Rush Pell Mell to Reveal Secrets of Exploiting Disease Victims.

TRUST IS NATION-WIDE.

New York, April 24.—[Special.]—Alleged quacks and their agents, rounded up Wednesday by the police and the New York County Medical society, rushed today to see who could get first to the office of George W. Whiteside, counsel for the society, to exchange their information for immunity from prosecution.

"More than six," according to Mr. Whiteside, conferred with him during the course of the day. Mr. Whiteside said he got a thorough knowledge of the workings of the "museums" and "medical offices" and learned details about national operations of two men under investigation.

Mr. Whiteside consulted District Attorney Perkins and arranged for the coöperation of the prosecutor in efforts to drive quacks out of business.

Trust Heads in New York.

Both so-called "trust heads" are in New York. One, according to Mr. Whiteside, has four offices here, three in Philadelphia, and others in Chicago, St. Louis, East St. Louis, Baltimore, Toledo, and San Francisco. The other man has or has had offices here, in Pittsburgh, Baltimore, Newark, Detroit, White Plains, Wilkesbarre, La Salle, Ill., Wheeling, and St. Louis.

An interpreter in one of the offices told Mr. Whiteside the average profit was from $5,000 to $6,000 a month. Mr. Whiteside figured the total profits of the establishments at more than $1,000,000 a year.

How Museums Are Run.

According to Mr. Whiteside's informants each museum or office is usually in charge of five men. The first distributes advertising literature. The "case maker" circulates among visitors to convince them they are suffering from some disease which requires immediate medical attention. Then to the "case maker" the patient tells his symptoms and the "case maker" diagnoses and attends to financial arrangements.

At last the victim is ushered before a doctor, who, if he expects to keep his job, must act according to instructions on a slip he receives from the "case maker." Mr. Whiteside says the doctor is used solely to avoid legal technicalities, and he and the distributor are the poorest paid persons in the museum, while the "case maker" gets big commissions or salary.

How Victims Are Extorted.

The financial arrangements provide for weekly payment of as much as the case maker decides the victim will stand. Mr. Whiteside was told failure to pay or return for treatment often was met with a threat to expose to the victim's friends and family the nature of the disease from which he was suffering or alleged to be suffering.

A statement from a man now employed in the courts of Cook county, Illinois, who worked as an interpreter in one of the so-called trust offices, was obtained today. After saying the drug mixer in the place was a negro who knew nothing about drugs, he continued:

"But he could not make any harmful mistakes, because all the drugs were colored water."

Do Your Tires

Protect You in These Five Important Ways?

If they do, they are Goodyear Fortified Tires, for no other tires are like these.

If they don't, consider these features—all exclusive to Goodyear. Judge if they warrant you in asking for Fortified Tires.

Our No-Rim-Cut feature best combats rim-cutting. Millions of tires have proved that.

Our "On-Air" cure saves so many blowouts that we spend $1500 per day on it.

Our 126 piano wires, vulcanized in each tire base, make the tire secure.

Our All-Weather tread, tough and double-thick, gives you maximum tread wear. It minimizes punctures. And its sharp-edged grips are resistless.

These are Extras

There are several tires which, in rubber and fabric, approach the Goodyear standard. There are many which fall below.

But the point we make is that no other tire contains one of these cited features.

These are all extras, and all are exclusive to Goodyear Fortified Tires.

Long ago those extras won top place for Goodyears. Last year they sold about one Goodyear tire for every car in use. But never in our history have new users come to us as fast as they are coming this spring.

Prices Much Lower

Our mammoth production now gives you in Goodyears values never before known in tires. Our last price reduction, on February 1st, made the third in two years, totaling 45 per cent.

We promise you that present prices do not mean skimped tires. Not a feature is omitted. Not a reduction has been made in quality, thickness or ply.

On the contrary, the tires have been bettered. We have this year made three important improvements, each of which strengthens these tires.

Never before was it so important as now to insist that your dealer supply Goodyear Fortified Tires. Any dealer will supply you if you ask.

U.S. TRADE PLANS A BIG INVASION OF FIELD ABROAD

Business Men Will Ask New Commission to Co-operate with Them.

[BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

Washington, D. C., April 24.—[Special.] Formal announcement by the federal trade commission that it proposes to hold hearings in the principal cities of the country with the object of ascertaining the views of exporters as to the most effective methods of developing American foreign trade has been received with great satisfaction by the business interests throughout the country, according to reports received here.

The hearings on foreign trade possibilities undoubtedly will result in a recommendation by the trade commission that the department of justice countenance combinations of various concerns in one business for the purpose of using a joint selling agency in foreign markets. Similar combinations in case of home markets, where the public will be served better, also will be recommended in all likelihood.

What Business Men Propose.

At the hearings of the foreign situation the business men of the country are going to present a novel proposition. Briefly stated it is this: They will make all of their plans known to the commission in advance of their operations. Then they will ask the trade commission to assign one of its members or one of its representatives to confer with them from time to time to make suggestions, to offer advice, and to guide them in the proper conduct of their affairs.

In other words, the exporters, as intimated during the conference last week between the commission and the committee representing the chamber of commerce of the United States, are desirous of forming a partnership with the federal trade commission in order to obtain all of the advantages presented in the present unparalleled foreign situation.

Commission's Attitude Problem.

Whether the trade commission will consent to participate in such an arrangement is problematical. It probably will not go as far as the business men desire. However, it will go far enough to assure them of its great interest and of its spirit of fair play and justice.

It is quite apparent from proceedings thus far that the majority of business men prefer to follow the wishes of the trade commission and of the department of justice to being prosecuted for violations of either the Clayton or Sherman laws.

PENSION RECORD SHOWS PAYMENT IN QUEER CASES

One Man Served South, Then Played in Union Band, and Gets Monthly Reward.

SECOND NEVER IN THE ARMY.

This article is the first of a series by Mr. Hyde giving the results of an inquiry into the workings of the government's pension system for ex-soldiers. Five billion dollars have been paid in pensions since the civil war closed. Are these pension expenditures decreasing? Are they likely in the near future to decrease? If not, why not? Mr. Hyde will undertake to answer these questions.

BY HENRY M. HYDE.

Washington, D. C., April 24.—[Special.]—When the first echoes of the great civil war reached the remote mountains of Buncombe county—there was something prophetic about that name—Melville W. Capps was a more or less care free boy. But he heard the call of his native south and in September, 1861, he volunteered as a soldier in company H, Twenty-ninth North Carolina infantry.

There is nothing to show that while he wore the confederate gray Capps was not a good soldier. At any rate he suffered from "measles and chills and fever" in the service and doubtless had little enough to eat, though he seems to have escaped gunshot or other wounds. He served with the army of Lee until the winter of '63. Then without stopping for the formality of a discharge he went back home—deserted, whether or not in the face of the enemy, the records fail to show.

Lee Hunts for Soldiers.

During 1864 the south was hard up for soldiers. Gen. Lee had searching squads out to find and arrest deserters from his army. One of these squads penetrated into Buncombe county and Capps was forced to "hide out" on the mountains to escape them. Perhaps the exposure incident to those nights spent in the big woods had something to do with the multiplicity of diseases from which he was later to suffer. At any rate the searching parties did not catch him.

Along in October, 1864, when the war was beginning to draw towards its close, the union people became more active in North Carolina. One of the union regiments organized was the Third North Carolina mounted infantry. There is no record to show that bounties were paid to men who would enlist, though they were almost universal in the last years of the war. Perhaps he had only grown tired of "hiding out."

Musician in Union Army.

He came in and enlisted for the second time, now as a musician in the union regiment of mounted infantry, changing his coat from gray to blue and laying down his rifle to pick up a cornet. With this change seems also to have come a change in name, for he appears on the records of the pension department in Washington as M. W. Capps, alias William J. Capps.

Several times during the '90s Capps, now a resident of Erwin, Tenn., applied for a federal pension. He was always turned down, since the department did not believe that a man who had voluntarily served two years as a soldier in the confederate army in an attempt to destroy the government, should be later entitled to draw a pension from that government because, after deserting the confederacy, he had blown a horn the last six months of the war in a union regiment—particularly as there was no claim that he had ever been wounded in the service.

But M. W. Capps—alias William J. Capps—got a pension just the same, by means of a special act of congress, along with some 45,000 other men, women, and children who have had special pension acts passed in their favor since the brave days of '61.

Never Served; Gets Pension.

From Tennessee also comes another case which is even more remarkable. It is the case of William C. Chandler, who draws a soldier's pension in spite of the fact that there is no claim he ever enlisted or served in the army of the United States or in any other.

Apparently Mr. Chandler was given a pension on the strength of his statement that he would have enlisted if he hadn't been locked up by a bunch of Confederate guerrillas.

On some of the records of the pension office William C. Chandler is described as "late of Company B, Third regiment Tennessee volunteer cavalry." He was apparently so "late," however, that he never caught up either with company or regiment. It appears from affidavits submitted that one day during the war Chandler left his father's farm and started off across country with some other boys with the idea of enlisting in the Union army. Before they got anywhere in particular they ran into a gang of Confederate guerrillas who took some dozen of the boys into camp and locked them up.

It is further set out in affidavits that Chandler was sent to Richmond and locked up there in Castle Thunder. When he applied for a pension the war department made a search of all the records. It could not find his name on the rolls of any Tennessee regiment or on any list of prisoners of war. It did appear, however, that one William Chandler—notice the lack of middle initial—had at one time been in the prison hospital at Richmond.

The pension department refused to grant the pension asked for, so it was put through by special act of congress. Since 1901 William C. Chandler has been drawing $12 a month.

What is more to the point Mr. Chandler seems to be a citizen of considerable importance in the state of Tennessee. He joined the G. A. R. and rose to be vice commander of the state organization. When the commander recently died and Mr. Chandler automatically took his place some of the comrades made objection on the ground that the head of their order should really be a man who had served in the army.

Case of John C. Black.

For the first twenty years after the end of the war pensions were only paid to men who had been shot or disabled in the service. The great republic, whose life these men had saved, was proud to recognize its debt, and there was none to find fault. But even the plan of awarding pensions for disability received in the service has sometimes worked out queerly. Witness the case of Gen. John C. Black of Chicago.

The military record of John C. Black is brilliant. Enlisting as a private, he rose to the position of brevet brigadier general, and was severely wounded in action. He has been awarded the medal of honor for gallantry in the field.

In 1878, by special act of congress, a pension of $100 a month was given him on the ground of total disability. Affidavits submitted at the time set forth that he was a physical wreck and totally incapacitated for labor of any kind. Since 1878 Gen. Black has drawn about $45,000 from the government as a totally disabled soldier.

Candidate for Senator.

In 1879 he was a candidate for United States senator from Illinois. The next year he ran for congress. In the years 1885-9 he actually served as commissioner of pensions at Washington. Since then he has served almost continuously, until his recent retirement, as congressman at large, as United States attorney at Chicago, and as member and president of the United States civil service commission at Washington.

During the time he has been on the pension rolls as a totally disabled soldier it is estimated that he has drawn from the United States government as salary more than $110,000.

The pressure on congress for the passage of private or special pension bills is so great that the house of representatives has set apart the second and fourth Tuesday of each legislative month to be devoted to their consideration.

But private pension bills are after all but a drop in the bucket. The big fact is that since the surrender of Lee the United States government has paid out about $5,000,000,000—five billion dollars—for the relief of its soldiers and their families. That sum is so great as to be incomprehensible. At the close of the civil war the total debt of the United States was only three-fifths as great. The total expenditures of all the powers in the present greatest war in history are probably no greater up to April 1.

Contrary to general opinion, pension expenditures in the immediate future are not likely to decrease. If congress is permitted to follow its own will at the next session they will almost certainly increase—as will be shown in future articles.

CALIFORNIA IN MOSQUITO WAR

One City Has Tag Days to Raise Cash to Fight Dangerous Pests.

California has set an example to Chicago and Illinois in systematically fighting the disease breeding mosquito.

The city of Oroville has had two tag days for securing funds for mosquito control and other California communities have raised funds for the same purpose by popular subscription.

School children, Boy Scout, and other organizations have been enlisted in the work of finding and oiling the places where mosquitoes breed.

Men are being trained in the University of California as "mosquito fighters."

The biggest item of expense in an efficient anti-mosquito campaign is the salary of the field agent—an expenditure small in proportion to the saving in health and comfort for the community.

Health at Low Cost.

Experience in California showed that the cost of controlling mosquitoes in an area about ten miles square has been about 75 cents per day per square mile.

In a ten mile area in Illinois where the mosquito season may be considered to last six months, the cost would be in the neighborhood of $1,250.

In figuring their anti-mosquito expenditures as downright economy, the Californians took the low average of 100 families within the ten square miles, and estimated doctors' bills at $20 per family, plus 25 per cent reduced earning capacity per family, with an average income of $800.

The total loss on this basis in six months would be $12,000. It is considered feasible to reduce the amount of sickness 50 per cent in a single season by means of an energetic anti-mosquito campaign.

Net Saving, $4,750.

Thus the campaign itself would save $6,000 at an expenditure of $1,250, making a net saving to the community of $4,750 as the result of using oil.

The foregoing estimate of cost is exclusive of permanent improvements such as ditching and draining. Permanent work of this kind is an economy in the end, however, for it renders much of the work of oiling unnecessary.

It is urged that the work start promptly in the spring to stop the first brood of mosquitoes from getting in its work, and that two oilings be done late in the autumn to kill off as many as possible of the mosquitoes that hibernate over winter.

Louisiana Fights Pests.

The Louisiana state board of health in its bulletin for April points out that there is much diversity in the breeding places of mosquitoes. Measures suggested by the Louisiana authorities for fighting the pest include drainage, filling in low places, removal of tin cans, bottles, tin or wooden boxes, etc. Mosquitoes will breed in clogged roof gutters, tanks, urns in cemeteries, water in vases or pitchers not emptied regularly, sewer traps, pipes under washstands, fire buckets, water barrels, cess pools, and in the cups of water used to keep table legs and refrigerators free from ants.

There has been much discussion over the length of flight of mosquitoes. One celebrated expert found that half a mile was about the limit of safety; however, in the Panama canal zone, adult mosquitoes of the malaria bearing species were stained and liberated and afterwards collected on the opposite side of the river, 4,700 feet from the liberating station.

LOSES $10; FEARS BEATING.

Mrs. Julia Newman, Afraid of Husband, Seeks Work and Is Forced to Appeal to Police.

Because she lost $10 with which she was to have paid a dentist's bill, Mrs. Julia Newman, 20 years old, 1622 McReynolds street, was afraid to return home Wednesday for fear her husband would beat her, she told police last night.

She procured work in a factory, but was unable to make a livelihood. Last night she appeared at the Chicago avenue station and asked to be given lodging.

"I was afraid to go home when I found I had lost the $10," Mrs. Newman told Sergt. Babbington. "My husband had beaten me before and I feared he would do it again."

GOOD NAME HURT; $25,000?

Woman Asks Damages Because Men Charged She Sought to Defraud Them.

Twenty-five thousand dollars for damage to her good name is asked by Mrs. Harriet Richards, 62 years old, of 1921 George street, in a declaration to a suit filed in the Superior court yesterday against Clifford N. Bliss of 3524 Broadway and John H. Maginn of 859 Oakdale avenue. Mrs. Richards charges the defendants libeled her when they filed in the county recorder's office an affidavit charging that James D. Richards, Mrs. Richards' son, had conveyed certain realty to his mother in order to defraud the affiants out of money due them.

OBREGON'S AGED BROTHER EXECUTED BY GEN. VILLA.

Carranza General Wires New York Consul It Was Revenge for Celaya Defeat.

New York, April 24.—Francisco S. Elias, consul for Mexico under the Carranza faction, announced today that he had received a telegram from Gen. Obregon asserting that Gen. Obregon's brother, Francisco, taken prisoner by Villa and sent to Chihuahua, had been shot by Villa's order. Gen. Obregon brands the execution revenge for his Celaya victory. Francisco Obregon was 70 years old and an invalid.

INVENTOR BROKE; LEAVES HIS BODY TO PAY DEBTS

Worried by Small Bills, Writes Letter, Turns on Gas.

Debt is a curious thing. With some men it jogs along as a friend, smiling encouragement, asking little attention, promising always to vanish at the magic touch of the bankruptcy court.

Debt didn't smile on J. A. Brown. The other day he borrowed $5 from a friend. He was a week or two in arrears for his room rent at 100 North Ashland avenue. His last laundry bill was unpaid. A promised job didn't materialize. But his creditors must be paid.

Brown cast about for a solution of the problem. Yesterday he found it. He wrote a letter, locked the doors of his room, and turned on the gas. His landlady, Mrs. Mary Moran, found the letter and his dead body at the same time.

"To make my obligation good to you," he had written, "I wish to donate my carcass to you for sale to the medical colleges.

"I hope you can realize enough to well repay you and, if possible, to give Mr. Foley the $5 I borrowed from him and P. G. H. laundry. So all my obligations will be cleaned up if it takes my body to do it."

Brown was an inventor. He had patented an improved hydrant and was interested in a bit of mechanism for automobile trucks. But the checks from his inventions stopped some time ago.

HERE'S REAL GOOD THING FOR RIGHT YOUNG MAN.

Wholesale Grocer Wants to Locate Son of Woman Who Nursed Him to Health Years Ago.

Daniel Boosing of Buffalo is getting on in years. His big wholesale butter, egg, and cheese business is calling for new blood, younger nerves, unfagged brains. Daniel Boosing is looking about for the right young man, who, provided he acquits himself creditably, may come into a good thing some day. His search led him to place this advertisement in THE TRIBUNE the other day:

PERSONAL—WANT TO FIND OUT NAME and address of Miss Culbert, who took care of me in the St. Catherine's hospital in 1888; I left there about the 1st of June. Kindly write to D. BOOSING, 154 Michigan-st., Buffalo, N. Y.

Mr. Boosing acknowledged a big debt to the former Miss Culbert. If it hadn't been for her, he says, he would be the proprietor of no wholesale house today. Without her he says he never would have won his battle against disease and the rigors of the Canadian winter.

Miss Culbert has married and quit nursing. She has a boy 17 years old, Mr. Boosing hears. And that boy is just the one he wants in his business.

COUNTRY CLUB GOES ON A ROLL

Old South Shore Building Will Sit by Pier and Swap Tales.

The gray old South Shore Country clubhouse, sliced neatly away from its foundation, and mounted upon rollers, is on a long pilgrimage towards the south recreation pier, where it can sit and trade tales with the sad sea, of the reckless days of its youth, of brave drinking bouts and nights when miladi's little boots slithered to the fiddles over its waxed floors.

The last dance has been called, the last function staged, and the contractor's dust settles on the floor, covering up the talcum powder of the regime.

And scarcely will the old building clear its foundations before workmen will scramble into the pit and begin construction of the new clubhouse, which is to cost $285,000, and will have a floor space of 1,537,000 cubic feet. It is proposed to have the new building, which will be of concrete and steel, ready for occupation by the last of October. Construction will begin not later than May 1. The work will be done by the McLean Construction company.

Of Immense Capacity.

Everett C. Brown, president of the club, declared the architects have done their best in designing a structure that shall be cozy, and at the same time provide ample room for the big balls and dinners that are in season during horse show week.

The largest room in the new clubhouse is to be 50x104 feet. But capacity for large entertainments will be obtained through the arrangement of the long corridor which links the ballroom located at the south with the dining room at the north, a distance of 335 feet, the length of a football field. It is estimated the new club will be able to entertain 1,750 at dinner.

Moving a Big Undertaking.

The moving of the old clubhouse is the largest undertaking of the sort ever attempted in Chicago and perhaps in the United States, according to Herman F. Friestedt, who is supervising the work for the L. P. Friestedt company.

The building was first fenced off four weeks ago to keep spectators from walking into danger. Then with pneumatic apparatus the concrete foundations were cut through, the building was then jacked up, 575 jack screws with a total lifting capacity of 57,500 tons being employed. A track was laid under the building for the rollers and the capstans and pulleys rigged.

By the use of a number of pulleys, multiplying the draft power, six horses were able to move the structure after several of the smaller wings had been lopped off and rolled down to place.

The old building is 320 feet long by 239 feet deep, and moving will be completed in ten days. The distance to the new location is 500 feet.

Mr. Brown said it would be used at the recreation pier for a golf and bathing locker room, swimming pool, and boathouse.

HOSPITAL PATIENT ENDS LIFE

Frank Pal of 1944 Seminary avenue, a patient in St. Elizabeth's hospital, ended his life last night by hanging himself with a bed sheet to the window sash on the fourth floor of the building and dropping out of the window.

WHEW! MERCURY UP TO 87.

Hottest April Day but One in History of Chicago Since 1873, Records Show.

The mercury touched the 87 degree mark at 3:30 o'clock yesterday, within one degree of the hottest April day since 1873. In 1899 it reached 88 degrees and in 1910 touched 86. New high records were set in other portions of the middle west. And the weather man says no relief is in sight today or tomorrow, but the torrid spell may be driven away on Tuesday.

MORE TROUBLE IN LABOR WORLD FEARED MAY 1

Neither Side Expects Quick Peace in Carpenters' Strike.

Contractors and labor leaders alike cannot see peace in the building industry in Chicago for several weeks. Some go so far as to predict that building operations have been curtailed until midsummer.

Although there are indications that the carpenters will settle with the contractors, that settlement is not expected for some time.

But other difficulties are arising which will be important in the building operations. The agreement of the structural iron workers with the contractors expires May 1 and already the union leaders are demanding new conditions in the contract.

Oppose Uniform Agreement.

They also are offering strenuous objections to the uniform agreement which has been approved by the Chicago Building Trades council and the Building Construction Employers' association. This agreement, embodying the eight cardinal principles, must be signed by every building trades union before the men will be permitted to work.

The bricklayers' agreement expires soon also and trouble between this organization and the marble setters is expected. The bricklayers are demanding that the marble setters be a part of their organization.

Action Affects Laborers.

Action was taken yesterday by the executive committee of the Building Construction Employers' association and nine allied organizations which will affect the status of 18,000 building laborers when their agreements expire May 1. The employers' association is demanding that all contracts with laborers that affect its members be made through its organization. No increased wages are to be offered and the uniform agreement is required.

The Lumber Dealers and Mill Owners' association joined with the contractors during the day. A resolution announcing that they would stand with the carpenter contractors was given out.

The resolutions are in effect an announcement that the lumber yards and material yards of the city will be shut down until the building situation is cleared up. It was pointed out that 85 per cent of the material is used by the carpenter contractors and since they are not working it is needless to keep them open.

The strike question was discussed at length by the carpenters' council, but no action was taken. The arbitration committee reported that the demand for 70 cents an hour had been renewed and every effort would be made to obtain the advance.

ATHEIST DOUBTS HIS OATH.

Man, Who Says He Is Unbeliever, Thinks His Swearing to Tax Schedule Worthless.

Michael K. Sheridan, secretary of the board of assessors, yesterday received the following letter in the mail:

"Gentlemen: Inclosed please find schedule of personal property.

I sent the boy over with it last week, but he brought it back as it was not sworn to. The reason I did not swear to it is because I am an atheist and as such I thought my oath could not be legally binding."

The letter was signed 'James J. Behounek, 208 West Madison street, a tailor."

2 CENT FARE LAW IN COURT.

Ann Arbor Railroad Holds Michigan Act Is Unconstitutional and Seeks Injunction.

Detroit, Mich., April 24.—Claiming that the state law fixing passenger fares on Michigan railroads at a maximum of 2 cents a mile is unconstitutional, the Ann Arbor railroad has started suit in federal court here asking a permanent injunction restraining state officials from enforcing the law.

Thrill Spillers Feast and Play; Form New Band

'STUFF' SELLING WELL

Chicago, the city of wheat corners and meat trusts, witnessed another naughty combine when twenty-six authors wiggled their fingers at the Sherman anti-trust law and corraled all of the divine afflatus, temperament in the Society of Midland Authors, at a dinner in the Auditorium hotel last night.

There they sat, the boys and girls who put the haemaglobin in the magazines, and it would have done your heart good to see them stoking the fires of genius with things en casserole and otherwise regardless, even imbibing some of the rare old vintages with which they occasionally deluge a bibulous bohemian story. Certainly you would have enjoyed it, for they were your favorite author, whether you incline to fiction, autobiography, travel yarns, historical novels, or spring poetry.

They Run the Gamut.

They have written in the tears of the shop girl, the blood of the patriot,\the slime of the sinful, with an occasional sprinkling of saltpeter as the western hero sinks the villain with his trusty six shooter.

It might have added to your pleasure to know that not always have they dined thus. From printer's devil, desk, shop, kitchen, and farm they came originally, and it was a long struggle for some before they got their appeal past the boneheaded editors and publishers to the great pulsing heart of the public.

But here they all are, safely through their struggles, with reputations and limousines and sealskin coats, and they can laugh ha-ha at the tyrants of the blue pencil, for the public has come to their rescue and the sniveling editorial villains are foiled.

Sit Together Peaceably.

Incidentally the new society includes practically all of the men and women who have really stood up, head and shoulders, over the ruck in recent American literature. And, though every soul present had sincere convictions concerning the greatest living American writer, none expressed them and the organization was effected very peaceably.

"Chicago is the logical center of literary art in the United States," said Hamlin Garland, author of etc., etc. (no use, you know 'em). "Practically all of the stuff written in recent years, which can classify as literature has been dripped or pounded out up in these old states of Illinois, Kansas, the Dakotas, Michigan, Ohio, and Indiana. The stuff is printed in New York—but that is all. It comes from Peoria and Kankakee and Brooks, Ind., and Chicago."

Finds Sellin' Good.

Edna Ferber declared that the market for literature now is better than ever, "the editors waiting on the doorsteps to pluck anything with distinction and individuality out of the air."

"The moving pictures have not touched the business," she said, "and I don't think they can be classed as serious competitors to legitimate writing." (And Miss Ferber writes for the common people.)

Mrs. Margaret Hill McCarter of Kansas, who brought her husband with her to the dinner, said that Kansas lived and suffered under a great injustice.

"Folks outside think our only products are hogs, corn, Carrie Nation, and William Allen White," she sighed.

Clarence A. Darrow, who defended the McNamaras and has written several books, said that what is needed in American literature is democracy. He said the people should educate themselves so that authors wouldn't have to be troubled about guessing what the public wanted.

Malloch on the Job.

As Douglas Malloch expressed it in a little ode to the occasion:

"We authors write the books ourselves,
The printer man supplies 'em,
The dealer puts 'em on his shelves—
God bless the man who buys 'em!"

The society was formed for the purpose of encouraging juvenile American letters and giving American literature a definite body and purpose. The eligibility qualification is that the applicant must have written a book of fiction, travel, poetry, autobiography, or history.

It must have been published in the regular course of trade, as the authors don't want any get-rich-quick folks horning in by publishing a book at their own expense and clambering among the immortals. A position in the society can be smudged only with ink; it cannot have the taint of pork, or soap, or trade.

These Officers Elected.

Following are the officers elected:

COMPLAIN OF BAD STREET.

Numerous Persons Hurt Because of Condition of Diversey Parkway, Coroner Hears.

Coroner Hoffman has received numerous complaints about the condition of Diversey parkway between the Chicago and Northwestern railway tracks and the river, a distance of about four blocks. Several accidents have resulted from the poor condition of the paving, he said. The parkway is a boulevard under control of the Lincoln park board, and the matter has been taken up with Gov. Dunne, who ordered an investigation, according to the coroner.

POLICE TOTTER ON 16 STORY SILL, BATTLING WOMAN

Struggle to Save Foe of Mrs. Meder on Fire Escape of Skyscraper.

CROWD SEES DIZZY COMBAT.

A newsboy standing across the street from the old Union hotel building in Randolph street yesterday saw a woman, apparently middle aged and rather stout, open a window on the sixteenth floor of the Ashland block and climb out on to a slender fire escape. For an instant she seemed to hesitate as she clung to the iron pipe railing, her skirts flapping in the breeze.

The boy shouted and a crowd gathered and craned their necks skyward. They saw two men leap through the open window just as the woman flung her arms upward and uttered a piercing shriek. The men seized her arms. The woman screamed and fought and kicked. The three swayed back and forth on the narrow grating and once or twice it seemed as if one of them would topple over the rail and plunge to the roof of the Union hotel, twelve stories below.

Saved, Fighting and Screaming.

While persons along the rialto watched the dizzy struggle policemen and detectives hurried to the office of Attorney John B. Dandridge, whose window opens on the escape. When they arrived they found the men had succeeded in dragging the woman inside, but she was still fighting them fiercely and screaming hysterically.

They learned the woman was Mrs. Marion Brockington of 4800 St. Lawrence avenue, and that her captors were Detective Sergeants N. J. Loose and Cobden Gray, who had been sent to take her to the detention home on a lunacy complaint issued by County Judge Scully.

Mrs. Brockington was arrested recently on complaint of Mrs. Leonora Z. Meder, commissioner of public welfare, who said the woman had written her threatening letters and finally had appeared in her office and tried to extort money from her.

Released on Writ.

Mrs. Brockington was sent to the psychopathic hospital, but was released on a writ of habeas corpus issued by Judge Cooper. Policewoman Alice Clement appeared in the County court and signed another complaint, and the detectives went to the office of Mr. Dandridge, former counsel for Mrs. Brockington, to ascertain her whereabouts.

While they were there Mrs. Brockington came in. She became hysterical and accused the attorney of withholding certain papers, but Mr. Dandridge insisted she was laboring under an hallucination. Mrs. Brockington then told the detectives she was sure the lunacy complaint had been quashed by direction of Assistant State's Attorney Morris Schaeffer, and asked that he be communicated with by phone.

Listens on Extension.

While the policemen were phoning the woman went into the lawyer's private office and listened on an extension phone. When she heard Mr. Schaeffer announce that the complaint had not been quashed she climbed out on the fire escape.

Mr. Dandridge said he did not know whether Mrs. Brockington intended to commit suicide or escape down the fire escape. She was taken to the Psychopathic hospital.

BROOKLYN POSTOFFICE BARS "BRYAN, RESIGN," POSTALS.

Campbell Says Nothing Like That Will Be Done Here Until Department Rules So.

Postmaster Campbell yesterday received notice from the Brooklyn postoffice stating that postal cards bearing an invitation to Secretary of State William J. Bryan to resign are barred from the mails. Mr. Campbell said no such cards had been received at the Chicago postoffice.

The cards placed under the ban bear the legend, "For the sake of your country, resign." Then follows the signature of the sender. The cards were addressed to William J. Bryan, Secretary of State, Washington, D. C. So many of these cards were dropped in the mails in Brooklyn that the authorities decided to bar them as unmailable.

The bulletin received by Postmaster Campbell stated that such cards "are unmailable and, if received at this office, will be promptly withdrawn from the mails and forwarded to the superintendent of mails."

"So far we have seen no such cards in the mails here," Mr. Campbell said. "If they should appear we could not bar them from this office until we received a ruling from the department."

DIETZ WILL AIDS CHICAGOANS

Warren McArthur and nine other employés of the Chicago office of the R. E. Dietz company at 20 East Lake street will benefit from the will of the late Frederick Dietz of New York, who left a large part of his fortune to his employés. The amounts given to the Chicago employés vary from $50 to a few thousand. Six salesmen will benefit from the will. The amount of the benefits depends upon the length of service. Mr. McArthur has been with the concern for more than twenty-five years. He is the oldest in point of service connected with the Chicago office.

U. S. ROAD WILL OPEN IMMENSE ALASKA TRACT

Seward-Fairbanks Line to Unlock Empire of Vast Riches.

BY GUSTAV R. STAHL.

Uncle Sam, railroad builder.

That's his new title.

Having finished splitting the continents, he's going to plant a few million people in what forty years ago was considered an arctic waste of snow and ice, fit only for polar bears and a few Eskimos.

Uncle Sam is going to start in at the bottom of this business. He is going to build his own road in his own way on his own land and for his own use. It is to be on his great neglected farm up north. In Alaska, which he bought away back in 1867 and which he has treated as much like a "crown estate" as any monarch's property, and which he can sell without consulting the people living thereon, he is going to spend $35,000,000 on his latest experiment for the benefit of his people.

Congress Authorizes Road.

Under the law passed by congress last year authorizing the construction of a government oyned railroad system to cost $35,000,000, President Wilson has announced the selection of seaport and inland termini of the first trunk line. This will run from Seward to Fairbanks with a branch to the Matanuska coal fields.

Alaska has an area of 586,000 square miles, of which 100,000 are susceptible of agricultural use, grazing and tillage. Probably 30,000 square miles, or 5 per cent of the total area, can be made available for tillage. Four-fifths of the possible tillage is in the central plateau, of which the Tanana valley, to be tapped by the first trunk line of the government railroad system, offers the largest opportunities.

The federal homestead laws extend to Alaska except that instead of 160 acres, 320 may be filed upon. Very little of the available land has been surveyed but that work is now in progress.

It is not to be understood, however, that the land in these areas is of such character that every half section is a possible farm home. Except in the alluvial deposit areas bordering the larger streams, the topography of the possible tillable land is hilly, and in selecting homesteads care must be taken to procure a favorable slope, to get the full advantage of exposure to the sun. Many tracts must be cleared of timber and moss.

Inquiries Are Many.

With the announcement of the selection by the president of the railroad routes, a flood of inquiries came to Seattle and Alaska cities. Every steamer leaving Seattle is loaded to the guards with fortune seekers.

There are none of the wild hurrah boys, no gamblers, saloonkeepers, gunmen, and roughs. For Alaska now is a country under the reign of law.

In fact, so strict are the prosecuting authorities that not even moving picture theaters are allowed to show on Sunday. Saloons, of course, are closed. In fact, the Alaska territorial legislature has just passed and Gov. Strong has signed an act designating Nov. 4 next as the time for a vote of the people on the question of prohibition.

Towns on Tenterhooks.

"Soapy" Smith and his kind have no place in Alaska.

Ever since the Alaska engineering commission, designated by the president to examine routes and project the system comprehensively described as a line or lines of railroad connecting the interior valleys of the Yukon and Kuskokwim with ice free seaports, made its trip north last year every townsite of any pretensions on salt water has been on tenterhooks.

Cordova felt sure it would have the prize, but the fact that the Morgan-Guggenheim interests, Copper River and Northwestern railway, would have to be purchased was an obstacle. This line, perhaps the best constructed standard gauge road in the terrtiory, was very expensive to build; it is said it cost $20,000,000, and its only tonnage at present is the output of the Bonanza copper mine at Kennicott.

Seward Found Best Terminal.

Seward, the terminal of the Alaska Northern railway, successor of the defunct Alaska Central, believed its location on Resurrection bay the best. It also had another advantage in the fact that the seventy-two miles of the Alaska Northern were offered to the government at a bargain. So the government bought it for $1,150,000.

When the news was cabled to Seward most of the population of the town was at the ball game. The crowd adjourned immediately and for a day and night enthusiasm was given free rein. Cash registers were turned to the wall and a big celebation at which public speaking and other exercises were on the program was held at once.

Two years ago when I was in Seward it was a sleepy town of one street running up from the wharf. It had a population of about 500.

Today every boat is bringing from 200 to 300 people. Now buildings are going up. A bank has been established. The daily paper has become a spread-eagle sheet.

Start Forty Miles of Road.

The Alaska Northern line will be rehabilitated and this year forty miles of railroad construction will start from Ship Creek, on Turnagain arm, on the survey of the Alaska Northern, to Chickaloon in the Matanuska coal fields. This work will be done directly by the government and part under contracts let by the Alaska engineering commission, which will have entire charge of the whole work. The commission is composed of W. C. Edes, Lieut. Frederick Mears, U. S. A., and Thomas Riggs Jr.

These men are regular railroad builders. There are no frills about them. They are very serious and intensely absorbed in their work.

The survey of the government railroad follows the present line of the Alaska Northern, just purchased, to Kern creek, thence it skirts Turnagain arm and Knik arm, crossing the Little Susitna to the broad, well grassed Susitna valley, and thence through Broad pass, a low divide in the Alaska range, close to Mount McKinley and down the Nenana river to the Tanana and Fairbanks. The Broad pass region is one of the most highly mineralized in Alaska.

The town of Seward is well situated for a railroad terminal. It is 1,420 miles from Seattle. It is on Resurrection bay, first discovered by the Russians. The bay is about sixteen miles long from Cape Resurrection and the entrance is easy for shipping. The bay is always free of ice. The climate is mild and similar to that of Puget Sound, as it is warmed at all seasons of the year by the Japan gulf stream.

Fairbanks, the interior terminal of the railroad, is the metropolis of the Tanana valley, which is fifty miles wide and 300 long.

The growing season lasts well from March 22 to Sept. 22, when the Fairbanksan has 70.8 per cent of sunshine and only 29.2 per cent of night. Although the Alaska range cuts off the moist winds of the Japanese gulf stream from the interior and produces a condition of semi-aridity in the valley, it does not hamper the farmer, for the thawing of the ground gives nature's subirrigation system a chance to work. The thawing of the ground irrigates the plants from below.

The only obstacle is the cost of clearing the land of its vegetation and fibrous growth.

Fairbanks Small Metropolis.

Fairbanks is already a metropolis on a small scale. It has two daily newspapers, getting telegraphic dispatches from all over the world via the government military telegraph from Valdez, where it connects with the government cable to Seattle, churches, clubs, stores, theaters, and a warm and highly developed hospitality.

Farther down the valley at Hot Springs is a health resort for the social-jaded Fairbanksans. Here are wonderful gardens. The warm ground, heated by subterranean springs, is always free of ice, and the plants grow like in a hothouse despite the fact that a raging blizzard may be giving a lonely "musher" all the horrors of the "Frozen North" only a few miles away.

Fairbanks already has a small railroad, the Tanana Valley railroad, forty-five miles long, a narrow guage line running from the town to the gold mines on the creeks.

Practically all the land in the Tanana valley is still open to settlement. Less than 2 per cent of all the land in the territory of Alaska is in private hands, the government still holding title to 98 per cent.

Not only will the railroad open the mines and the farms but it will make possible a new "cow country." The "cows" in this case will be the reindeer and caribou.

TOSSETI ASSETS ARE SOLD.

Assets of the bankrupt Tosetti Brewing company, except the brewery itself, were sold at auction yesterday for $29,000. The assets included twenty-five saloon licenses, forty leases, seventy-five sets of fixtures, and icehouses in South Bend and Hammond.

Samuel Winternitz, auctioneer, conducted the sale, assisted by Attorney Michael Gesas, counsel for the receiver. As a result of the change in the ownership of the licenses, the saloons which have been kept closed on Sunday by order of Judge Landis probably will be kept open today.

Contempt proceedings against six saloonkeepers who disobeyed the closing order last Sunday and the Sunday before will be disposed of by Judge Landis tomorrow.

WAR TEACHING GOOD MANNERS TO THE BRITONS

Englishmen Learning How to Salute One Another in Proper Fashion.

BY EX-ATTACHE.

[Copyright: 1915: By the Brentwood Co.]

Although the present war is bringing unspeakable misery and ruin in its train and has plunged not merely thousands, but millions into mourning, it is not altogether devoid of redeeming features. Among its advantages is the one that it is teaching Englishmen manners. Above all, it is instructing them in the art of greeting one another.

On the continent of Europe a man, if a civilian, will doff his hat when he encounters an acquaintance, even if the latter belongs to the masculine persuasion. But in England this has always been deemed a foreign extravagance, and even as a piece of self-abasement, when the acquaintance thus encountered happens to be of the sterner sex, and the average Briton has been at a loss how to proceed.

Few have managed to emerge from the difficulty by an easy and friendly nod. Most content themselves with a smile; that too often savors of a grin which is so mechanical a contortion as to defeat its genial purpose.

Then there are, again, men who never get beyond a certain glare of recognition, which may be of the frozen, of the ferocious, or of the vacuous variety, according to the disposition and character of the performer.

Problem of Shaking Hands.

When to shake hands or to abstain therefrom is another problem which Britons seemingly find difficult to solve with any satisfaction to themselves. On this side of the Atlantic hand shaking is the rule rather than the exception. In England the reverse is the case, save in the city of London among business men, where even those who meet daily are accustomed to shake hands. Indeed, an Englishman foreign to the ways of the city and who happens to wander east of Temple bar for the first time would be apt to gather the impression that all financial and mercantile transactions are carried through entirely by the shaking of hands.

Nowhere in England is the prejudice against shaking hands more strongly imbedded than in the great universities of Oxford and Cambridge, where the average Briton is supposed to receive his culture and the finishing touches of his good breeding.

It is considered the worst of form to shake hands there. A newcomer is made to feel that he has been guilty of a faux pas if he violates through ignorance this unwritten law.

Uniform Makes for Politeness.

Since the beginning of the war, however, the Englishman has become vastly more polite and less constrained in his manner. This is due to the fact that so many men are arrayed in military uniform and are under military obligations to salute.

It is quite possible that this species of military salute may be retained even after the restoration of peace and the doffing of military uniforms. This would have its advantages, for it is doubtful whether the average Briton will ever learn how to bow correctly, this being indeed a Latin art.

The adoption of the military salute as a civilian form of greeting will, however, encounter much opposition, first of all on the part of the hatters and then on the part of the physicians. There is nothing that wears out a hat more quickly and that ruins its brim more speedily than to be constantly raising it from the head to greet friends and acquaintances. A hat that is not doffed will last ten times as long and the demand for new hats will be correspondingly reduced.

As for the physicians, their practice would be injuriously affected if the baring of the head as a salutation were abolished. Influenza and all sorts of other kindred ailments are proved to be due to the baring of the head in drafts, cold winds, and so forth.

French and Austrians Adepts.

An art it is, indeed, to know how to bow by saluting with the hat, and no foreigners are so adept therein as the French and the Austrians. In France, indeed, it attains its highest degree of perfection, and in Paris the process is usually accompanied by a slight protrusion of the chin, known as the "coup du menton." Nothing is more interesting than to observe the delicate graduation by which the courtly Gaul is wont to discriminate between his bow to a duchess and his bow to a "belle petite," between his salute to his tailor, when he owes him a heavy bill, and his salute to that tradesman after the account in question has been squared.

Let the Stewart Tire Pump do your hard work

WHY continue to pump automobile tires at home and on the road with a hand pump, when your engine is right there to quickly do this dirty work for you?

Why continue to use an old fashioned, unsatisfactory hand-pump, which almost breaks your back, makes you perspire and dirties up your clothes?

This is the day of labor saving devices for the automobilist. You push a button to start your car. You push a button to light your lights. You touch a plunger to sound your warning signal. Your clock is wound electrically. A glance at your speedometer figures the speed and mileage for you. One man can now put up a top. For the same reason, why not make your motor pump your tires?

Put a Stewart Tire Pump on the motor of your car and it will always be "on the job" to save you the dirtiest and most exasperating work and delays of automobiling.

Tire companies report that 90% of all tire troubles are DUE to UNDER-INFLATION.

The Stewart Tire Pump will quickly pay for itself in the increased mileage you'll get out of your tires by keeping them properly inflated, which also makes steering and riding easier, and consequently safer on any road.

The Stewart Tire Pump is correctly designed of exactly proper size to pump up any tire in a very few minutes without straining the motor, without requiring a lot of extra lubrication, without overheating or vaporizing the oil and passing it into the tires, where it will shortly rot them. Reliability is the most important feature. You want a pump that will be "on the job" every time you require it.

WILSON IN 1916 MAY HAVE CLASH WITH COLONEL

President and Roosevelt Favored for Nomination for Executive.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., April 24.—[Special.]—That the election of a president of the United States next year will be the most momentous political event in the history of the nation since Lincoln was chosen to guide its destinies is the view of a large majority of the public men in Washington.

Since the Spanish-American war the United States has been classed as a world power. What position it will occupy in the family of nations beginning with the end of the European war now in progress depends upon the political party in control of the government at the time and the president who translates its policies into action.

Questions Before Nation.

Here are a few of the questions to which the people will be required to give attention in deciding to what political party they shall intrust the fortunes of the republic:

The revision of international law, limitation of armament, and provisions for compulsory pacific settlement of international disputes.

The retention and extension of foreign markets for American goods created by the war and the promotion of American financing of the nations exhausted by the conflict.

The presentation of claims for damages and possibly demands for other satisfaction for infringement of American rights by belligerents.

The repression of animosities growing out of the dissatisfaction of belligerents with the conduct of the United States during the war.

The solution of the Mexican problem in which other governments will be likely to demand a hand when free of the war.

The preservation of friendly relations with Japan and the preservation of American rights in China.

Plan to Re-elect Wilson.

With contentment pervading the land, the Democratic leaders look forward to clear sailing in renominating and reëlecting Woodrow Wilson.

The opposition to the president in the Democratic party has been hoping against hope that he would not be a candidate for renomination. It recently went to some trouble to elicit an indication of his attitude by circulating a circumstantial story that he had decided to content himself with one term.

It succeeded in its endeavor, though not to its satisfaction, for the man who stands closest to the president in all his counsels immediately stated:

"The president will be renominated without opposition and will be reëlected."

The Democratic leaders believe that the people will indorse the policies of the president in dealing with the belligerent nations and that such indorsement will result in his retention in office as the man most worthy of entrusting with the handling of the even more important problems which will arise from the readjustment after the war.

Roosevelt Will Be in Race?

While there is a widespread belief among Republicans that Col. Roosevelt never can "come back" politically, there is a growing opinion here that the colonel will be a presidential candidate before the first primary elections are held next year.

The friends of the warrior of Oyster Bay are eager to get him into the fray. They contend that he is the only man in the country who stands a ghost of a show of defeating President Wilson, and that the trend of events is making Col. Roosevelt the logical candidate of the combined opposition to the Democratic party.

The Roosevelt men say that the question of foreign policies alone will narrow the contest down to a choice between Wilson and Roosevelt. The people, the Roosevelt boomers contend, will be called upon to decide whether they want the interests of the United States abroad handled in the mild, yielding, and vacillating manner of President Wilson or in the more forceful and aggressive spirit of the redoubtable colonel.

FINDS TWO DESERTED GIRLS.

South Bend, Ind., April 24.—[Special.]—Ruth McDonald and Elsie Steward, each aged 17 years and residents of Jackson, Mich., were found by George Cramer, a farmer, south of South Bend today. They told Cramer that they had accompanied a man from Jackson to South Bend and intended to go with him to Chicago, where they expected to secure work at fancy wages. The stranger deserted them after he had taken them into the country.

"ABSTRACTIST" ARTISTS TO HOLD EXHIBITION MAY 15.

Chicago devotees of art are destined for a new thrill. This time it is the "Abstractist Group" of the Palette and Chisel club which plans to give the first exhibition of "abstractistic" pictures on May 15 in the clubrooms at 59 East Van Buren street. In the meantime those members of the club who cling to the mantle of realism are holding their breath lest Gordon St. Clair, Samuel James Kennedy, David C. Hunter, and other daring ones shatter the club's reputation by the "advanced" character of their works.

"This is serious work," said Mr. St. Clair yesterday in his studio at 4 East Ohio street, where he was putting the finishing touches on a posteresque painting called "Any Maiden," in which the sharply conventionalized figure was represented as plucking the days and nights of her life in the shape of apples or something or other from a tree.

"We make no attempt at realism whatever. We're far beyond realism. Why, the Art institute jury wouldn't allow me to exhibit this year because I was getting too radical. We paint the idea and give it more punch and virility than can be had by the tamer methods of realism."

JURY GIVES GERHARDT $5,450

A jury in the Circuit court yesterday returned a verdict for $5,450 in favor of Paul Gerhardt, former county architect, for work in connection with the plumbing in the county hospital. Mr. Gerhardt sued for $6,100.

COLONEL PRIMES WORD HOWITZER FOR IVINS CLASH

Up Early to Confer with Attorneys; Added Political Power for Libel Suit Winner.

Syracuse, N. Y., April 24.—[Special.]—A recess in the case of Barnes against Roosevelt was as welcome to most persons intimately concerned as a calm after a tornado.

Five days with the colonel as a witness had fagged the mind and body of the lawyers on each side and of the newspaper men who had reported his torrential testimony.

Sleep had become a lost luxury and minds were beginning to skid—for all persons concerned, that is, except the colonel himself.

He showed not the slightest trace of exhaustion and there is no doubt in the world that he could have gone on the stand again today as vigorously mentally and physically as when he first began to match his wits against the subtleties of William M. Ivins.

Roosevelt Lively as a Cricket.

Mr. Ivins slept until noon, but the colonel was up at 7. He conferred with his lawyers and advisers about parts of his testimony which need to be smoothed out on their direct examination. He motored out into the country. He galloped one of his host's saddle horses for an hour. He read from the works of a favorite author—Theodore Roosevelt. He exercised his legs in a long walk.

It is altogether likely he will be on the witness stand for two days more.

The possible effect of the testimony brought in the last week is the sole topic of conversation.

Politicians are here from all over the state watching the trial with intense interest, convinced, they say, that its outcome will have a tremendous bearing on the future of the Republican party.

Their notion is that if Mr. Barnes wins a $50,000 verdict from Col. Roosevelt or gains any sizeable verdict, Col. Roosevelt's political career will be definitely at an end and Mr. Barnes will be near his goal, the United States senate.

They assume if Col. Roosevelt wins Mr. Barnes' influence as a state and national leader will be ruined, and that the colonel will inevitably rejoin his old party and take a commanding place in it, possibly as the candidate for president in 1916. These are precisely the views one hears expressed whenever men gather to talk about the case.

Penrose Contradicts Colonel.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 24.—United States Senator Penrose today said that Col. Roosevelt was in error yesterday when he declared upon the witness stand at Syracuse that he had prevented the selection of Penrose in 1904 as chairman of the Republican national committee.

Senator Penrose said he was not a candidate for national chairman in 1904, was not aware that he had even been suggested for the place, but if this was so the use of his name was without his knowledge or consent.

"I was strongly in favor of the nomination of Mr. Roosevelt in 1904," Senator Penrose said, "notwithstanding the secret efforts put forth by Mr. Hanna and others to defeat him."

"Our country! In her intercourse with foreign nations may she always be in the right; but our country, right or wrong."
—Stephen Decatur.

AMERICAN ISOLATION.

The most important thing for the American people to realize at this time is the attitude of belligerent Europe toward us.

The American capacity for creating a fool's paradise is unequaled. Our optimism is impregnable even to experience. We do not permit our comfort to be disturbed by unpleasant lessons of our own history or that of the world without our fortunate walls.

Has the shock of the war roused us to a sense of what our situation in the international complex may mean to us? Certainly not yet to a very wakeful sense. But evidence multiplies and becomes more and more pointed. Of German feeling toward the United States, if we may judge by German papers of the first rank, like the Hamburg Nachtrichten, Bismarck's former mouthpiece, and the Cologne Gazette, there is an unhappy certainty. In speculating upon the Arama incident and a possible war between Japan and America the Berlin post says:

"Germany would view such a war with mixed feelings. While we do not desire a victory of the yellow race over the white, nevertheless America has no claim to the love or respect of the Germans. We would be satisfied to know that this country, which first became a state at an expenditure of German blood and German energy, should from its present condition of unsympathetic contentment come to know the bitter necessities of war."

The hostility expressed is intense, passionate, and not likely to be dissipated by soft words. In Austria we probably are little better off. The recent note of Count von Bernstorff to the secretary of state elicited bitter comment in the Austria-Hungary press, and the Vienna Fremdenblatt, the organ of the foreign office, reminds us with diplomatic restraint that "the feeling of disappointment which the attitude of the United States has produced in Austria will not disappear for a long time."

From the American point of view this German reaction is unjust, excessive, and inconsistent. But at any rate it is humanly understandable since our interpretation of our neutral duties and rights in the circumstances of the war works to the serious military disadvantage of Germany and her allies.

Yet what do we find on the side to which these benefits of our policy accrue? Not the angry resentment of the Germans, of course, but a more and more evident impatience against us. The most astonishing expression of this comes from a Belgian, Dr. Charles Sarolea, professor of romance languages in the University of Edinburgh and an informal emissary of none other than King Albert. Dr. Sarolea, we discover from his address the other evening before a small audience of ardent pro-allies, comes to us with a complaint. It would seem that the United States and its people, although the latter have shown a commendable humanitarian impulse toward the Belgians which we are assured in passing they will never forget, have nevertheless fallen far short of their duty as the allies conceive it. Dr. Sarolea is so frank as to inform us that our course, while it has purchased us the hatred of the Germans, has not gained us the "respect" of the allies—the word is Dr. Sarolea's.

The definite cause of complaint is the failure of the United States government to lodge a formal protest against the invasion of Belgium. When asked if allied opinion went to the extent of demanding that the protest should be backed by military action or the threat of it, Dr. Sarolea seemed to be unwilling explicitly to admit this, but it is impossible to account on any other ground for the tenor and temper of his address, which, save for the brief allusion to American relief, was a complaint and criticism from beginning to end. The same conclusion is to be drawn from the criticism of the London Spectator, but it must come with special force from the subject of a country into which American relief has been poured to the extent of over $21,000,000. We have no desire to make a point of American giving. That was prompt, ungrudging, and we believe we may say substantial. Yet if in spite of this succor and in spite of the fact that our maintenance of a policy of neutrality and free commerce is one of the most vital factors of the allies' strength we are held to have fallen so far short of duty as to be without the "respect" of the allies, then it behooves Americans to face the fact. Without respect there is neither friendship nor, in the long run, security. Dr. Sarolea remarks that if we are not with the allies we are against them, and this frank admission seems to us to express not of course the reaction of all Britons or Belgians but the general temper toward us on the allies' side.

A remarkable manifestation of this feeling is reported from Australia. The representative of a concern which does a large business in American goods in Australia and New Zealand writes that sentiment against the United States, stimulated by the press, has become so strong as observably to affect the sale of American goods.

Japanese resentment over the anti-alien laws, though politely covered by officials, is natural and inevitable.

As to Latin-America, from the Rio Grande to Tierra del Fuego, we ought to have no illusions. The other day we were told of the feeling against us in Peru, where we were supposed to be less obnoxious than in other South American countries, but we need no such recent testimony to the mixture of fear, distrust, dislike, and contempt which seems to be the emotion roused whenever the Colossus of the North is in the Latin-American mind.

It is hard for the people of the United States to realize that they have become the object of an almost universal dislike, ranging from hatred to contempt. But it is most important that we do realize it, not to exaggerate nor to make ourselves the victims of unnecessary alarms, but to shape our policy and direct our actions with due caution, foresight, and practical effect. "Better to be despised for too anxious apprehension," says Burke in his essay on the French revolution, "than ruined by too confident a security."

READING IN TIME OF WAR.

The veteran philosopher and author, Frederic Harrison, has been giving advice, in a modest and tentative manner, concerning suitable reading at a time of storm and stress, perplexity and helplessness—a time of general warfare and slaughter.

Mr. Harrison acted as the average human did at the outbreak of the great conflict. But he tells us that soon thereafter he retired to his library. He did not order bundles of books on German militarism, European diplomacy, recent international history, Slav aspirations, Balkan puzzles, racial and commercial "backgrounds." No doubt he did considerable reading along these lines, but he passes it over in silence.

He retired to his library to seek solace and strength, fortitude and faith, in the classics, in works that exemplify human genius, human worth, beauty, and perfection. He took down from his shelves Homer, Sophocles, Virgil, Cervantes, Shakspeare, Milton, Defoe, etc. He compared original and translation in various cases, and became absorbed in the marvelous successes or comparative failures of the translators of masterpieces.

It may be doubted whether Mr. Harrison's solution of the problem of war reading has been or ever will be widely adopted. The adventures of the bold knight of La Mancha are no substitute for the adventures of the fighting men in the trenches and the mountain passes. Crusoe on his island is fascinating, but the conflict between man and nature will not divert attention from a bitter, sanguinary conflict between civilized man and civilized man.

The thoughtful person cannot forget the war or lose himself among masterpieces that have no bearing on the titanic struggle. But his very anxiety and pain will lead him to introspection, to heart searching, to reflection, and reëxamination of all he knows, or fancies he knows, regarding the human heart and the human mind. The most suitable war literature for the studious is literature on the meaning and reality of human progress, the rôle of war in history, the national mind, the emotions that govern conduct, the true inwardness and the direction of civilization. "Can such things be?" is the question we cannot cease asking ourselves, and since such things are, what are we, where are we bound, and what may we look forward to individually and collectively? Is there cause for despair or even pessimism, or is good to come out of evil, and the dead and maimed and bereaved will not have made their sacrifices in vain?

A world symposium on war reading would reveal the fact, doubtless, that thousands of men and women have been pondering questions of this sort and looking forward for answers in philosophy, psychology, history, and theology.

ARBOREAL VICTIMS.

The determination of the south park commissioners to make trees grow in treeless Grant park is as admirable a thing as one comes across often in this vale of tears, but for the trees there is bound to be a great deal of sympathy. Possibly in the course of time nature will produce a tree which can live in the gas and smoke with which the Illinois Central supplies the south lake front. Possibly the new planting which the board has done is of gas breathing stock. Upon what other confidence the endeavor is based we do not know.

Other experiments to put trees in this park, where they would do wonders for the appearance of the city's front yard, have resulted in the quick asphyxiation of the devoted victims. The tender hearted will turn away when they see new trees being put down in the gas and smoke zone, but the trees, even if they go the way of their predecessors, make their little protests against a steam railroad which bisects a city park and for electrification, which would permit that park to be a park, and not a deferred promise of one.

Editorial of the Day.

"THE DAY"; THE BETTER DAY.

[From the Minneapolis Tribune.]

What great fun it must be to be the czar of Russia and feel every day that "the gobbleuns 'll git ye if ye don't watch out!" Nicholas went to Helsingfors the other day to make a visit. Helsingfors, you will remember, is the capital of Finland. They were so glad to see him there that the police went to the trouble of taking down the names of all the people living within 600 feet of the railroad track, on either side, reinforcing the police several times over at every station and locating secret detectives everywhere. Then, to add to the hilarity of this joyful occasion, an enthusiastic demonstration was carefully worked up by reliable persons supplied with flags and posted at proper places along the way and instructed to wave and cheer. Owners of houses fronting the route to be taken were required to put candles in the windows, four to each window; but for some reason—Zeppelins possibly—they were not lighted. They had a jolly time, no doubt, and Nicholas must have felt "dee-lighted," but the correspondents say that nobody not in uniform took any part in the joyous outburst.

The fact is, no doubt, that Nicholas thanked his imperial stars when he was all through with it, for the Finns have the same affection for him that the devil is said to entertain for holy water. He has given them abundant occasion for it. Russia has heaped upon Finland every outrage and indignity that Russia bureaucracy could devise and has left undone nothing that could be done to break the spirit of the liberty loving people.

But this is the sort of thing that this war is expected to put a stop to. If it doesn't, it is not the last war. If the power of kings is not reduced to a plane of subordination to the will of the people as a result of this appalling exhibition of its reckless and wicked abuse, there will have to be another war to destroy it altogether. And if it must be, it will come soon.

But it will not be necessary. It cannot be that millions of lives shall have been sacrificed for any less result than the democratization of Europe and the early if not immediate establishment of a new order of things based upon the proposition "that all men are created equal; that they are endowed by their Creator with inalienable rights; that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; * * * that whenever any government becomes destructive of these ends it is the right of the people to abolish it." So, instead of contemplating only the horrors of the war, we can more profitably dwell upon the inevitable beneficent results that must come out of it.

EMPEROR FRANCIS JOSEPH, in his capacity as king of Hungary, has just bestowed the title of prince in Hungary, with the predicate of serene highness, upon Count Ladislas Batthyany, a member of the house of lords at Budapest and head of the entire Batthyany family.

The emperor has also authorized the new prince to adopt the additional name and arms of the old time counts of Strattmann, as heir to the Batthyany and Strattmann estates of the late Prince Edmund Batthyany-Strattmann, who died last fall at a very advanced age, without leaving any issue of either of his marriages, both of which were mésalliances.

The new prince, who is only very remotely related to old Prince Edmund, is a much more useful and admirable citizen in every way. Being a particularly skillful chemist and also a doctor of medicine and a surgeon, he has established in his château of Kopcseni, in the county of Wieselburg, a hospital for over a hundred wounded officers and soldiers. There he gives them the benefit of his medical and surgical services, while his wife, who was a Countess Therese Coreth and Dame du Palais, and her sister, Countess Lily Coreth, lady in waiting to Archduchess Maria Christine, take the lead in the nursing of the patients.

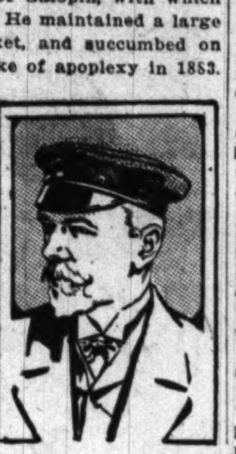
The conjunction of the name and arms of von Strattmann with the title of Prince Batthyany arises from the fact that in the latter part of the seventeenth century Count Adam Batthyany married Countess Eleanor von Strattmann. She was the only surviving member and heiress of the wealthy von Strattmann family, which was possessed of large estates, situated for the greater part in upper Austria.

The Batthyanys have played a very notable rôle in the history of Hungary, take their name from the village of Batthyan, in the county of Baranya, in the kingdom of Hungary, and claim descent from Urs III., who was chief of the Huns in 970.

They received the title of baron in 1628, and of count in 1630, and are a very numerous clan, their enumeration filling several pages of that volume of the "Almanach de Gotha," which is devoted to the Austrian, Hungarian, and German counts.

Both the late Prince Edmund, sixth of his line, and his father, Prince Gustav, before him, were more familiar figures in England than in their native land, owing to the fact that their wives were genealogically disqualified from admission to the courts of Vienna and of Budapest.

Prince Gustav Batthyany is best remembered in England as the owner of Galopin, with which he won the Derby in 1875. He maintained a large racing stable at Newmarket, and succumbed on the course there to a stroke of apoplexy in 1883.

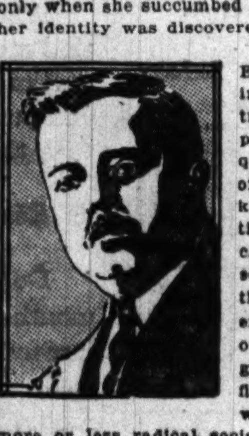


His son, Prince Edmund, was more devoted to yacht racing than to the turf, although he was a member of the Turf club. He was the first foreigner and the first Roman Catholic boy to be educated at Eton since the days of the Reformation; was honorary attaché of the Austrian embassy in London in the days of Count Beust, and was the only foreign member of the Royal Yacht squadron, as well as an honorary lieutenant of the Royal English Naval reserve.

He made his mark as a yachtsman with his cutter Kriemhilda, the first of her size and speed in the big cutter class, and the pioneer of the great racing yachts of today. As a prize winner she was the champion of the world for many years, and his racing flag, a black cross on a blue field, was among the most familiar at Cowes, where he repeatedly carried off the queen's cups.

Some of the Batthyanys have been very queer. Thus, not many years ago, the will of the colossally rich Countess Bela Batthyany was disputed in the courts at Budapest, on the ground that her mind was unhinged on the subject of her property. It was shown that she was convinced that she was doomed to dire poverty. This led her to have recourse to the most miserly devices.

Being informed by her doctors that a grave and costly operation was necessary to save her life, rather than pay for it she assumed the name and garb of her maid and underwent the operation without expense in one of the pauper wards of the Metropolitan hospital at Pesth. It was only when she succumbed there a week later that her identity was discovered.



Then there was Count Erwin Batthyany, who, in the course of his travels abroad, happened to make the acquaintance in England of Prince Peter Kropotkin, the Russian revolutionary leader, and became a convert to his socialistic and anarchistic doctrines. These he endeavored to introduce on his estates in Hungary, at the same time flooding the kingdom with many varieties of more or less radical socialist and anarchist literature.

This led to his being declared crazy, and while the courts placed him under "curatel," that is to say, judicially deprived him of all control and administration of his estates and fortune as well as of his civil rights, as if he were a minor, his relatives obtained his committal to the asylum for the insane at Budapest.

Perhaps the best known member of the Batthyanys in modern times was that Count Louis Batthyany who was prime minister of Hungary in 1848 and then forsook his allegiance to Francis Joseph in order to become one of the leaders of the sanguinary Magyar rebellion in 1849.

Less fortunate than his associates, such as Count Julius Andrassy, who managed to escape to England and who lived to become chancellor of the dual empire, he was captured and was sentenced to death by hanging.

To save him from so ignominious a fate a knife was smuggled into the prison by his wife some days before the date appointed for his execution. With this he inflicted several wounds on his throat, not sufficient to kill him—for he was too good a churchman to be a suicide—but quite severe enough to prevent his being hanged. The consequence was that whereas his fellow prisoners, including Count Nagy-Sandor, were sent to the gallows, he was shot.

BERI-BERI.

THIS disease is of no direct interest to the people living within the United States. To us it is a medical curiosity. Few of our people have it. Never in our history have many people had it. There is no likelihood that they will ever have it. Then why take the trouble to learn about it?

There are several reasons. We see in the fight against beri-beri one of the conquests of preventive medicine. From a study of the proved facts about beri-beri we get some facts that are of value on the general food situation.

Finally, beri-beri is somewhat like pellagra and infantile scurvy, and the fight against beri-beri may teach us something about these other diseases.

Since we took possession of the Philippines the United States army has maintained a small native army known as the Philippine scouts. These 5,200 natives are scattered in small companies throughout the islands. Although widely scattered, they are fed a uniform ration provided by the government.

The government spent six years in trying to develop a plan to combat beri-beri.

In 1908 618 cases and in 1909 558 cases of this disease developed in this small army. Some of these cases died, and some were invalided on account of disability.

By 1910 the army authorities had matured their plan, and in that year they got it going in earnest. In 1910 the number of cases dropped to fifty. In 1911 there were three cases; in 1912, two; in 1913, none, and in 1914 (the first six months), one.

Out of each 1,000 scouts in 1908, 121 were disabled from beri-beri—about one-eighth of the entire command. Out of each 1,000 in the last four years twenty-eight were disabled per year—about one for every 4,000. The last death of a scout from beri-beri occurred in 1911. In that year there was one death from this disease.

The largest number of admissions to the hospital for this disease in any month was in January, 1909—138. The last month in which more than one case was admitted to the hospital for beri-beri was August, 1910—two cases. No case was admitted to the hospital from June, 1912, to April, 1914.

There has been no case of beri-beri among white troops serving in the Philippines since January, 1910.

The United States army has succeeded in the last ten years in entirely controlling a group of very important diseases, not only in its own ranks but in the communities over which it has had control. These diseases are yellow fever, smallpox, typhoid fever, and beri-beri. These four diseases have been absolutely wiped out in the various divisions of the army. If the army has been able to wipe out these diseases, it will be able to wipe out others.

What we are more interested in is the next proposition. If the army can wipe out these diseases, then civil populations can wipe them out. They have already wiped out yellow fever. When will they wipe out smallpox and typhoid?

Furthermore, the army has demonstrated its ability greatly to lessen pneumonia, malaria, and venereal disease. The reports from Panama show that it has been able to lessen pneumonia to one-half and malaria to a tenth of its former rates. The statistics of the army itself show that it has lowered the venereal disease rate to one-third of its former rate.

If the army has accomplished this much with pneumonia, why should not Chicago begin? If malaria is lessening the price of land in Mississippi and malaria can be controlled, why does not Mississippi control it?

The army ration in use by the Philippine scouts when beri-beri was so prevalent consisted of fresh beef, twelve ounces; flour, eight ounces; baking powder, one-third of an ounce; rice, twenty ounces; potatoes, eight ounces; coffee, roasted and ground, one ounce; sugar, two ounces; vinegar, salt and pepper.

In place of fresh beef one of the following was substituted at times: Bacon, eight ounces; canned meat, eight ounces; canned or fresh fish, twelve ounces. In place of the flour and baking powder, hard bread, eight ounces, was substituted at times; in place of the potatoes, eight ounces of onions.

Instead of twenty ounces of polished rice were substituted sixteen ounces of Filipino rice No. 2 or Sargon rice. These are undermilled or unpolished rices. In place of potatoes they used camotes, eight ounces, and mongos, four ounces. Camote is a vegetable akin to the sweet potato; mongos is a species of pea. The coffee ration was cut in half and half an ounce of ginger root was issued. The use of Filipino No. 2 rice continued until June, 1911.

Since June, 1911, the ration in use has been the following: Fresh beef, twelve ounces; flour, eight ounces; baking powder, one-third ounce; unpolished rice, twenty ounces; potatoes, eight ounces; coffee, roasted and ground, one ounce; sugar, two ounces; vinegar, eight one-hundredths gill; salt, two-thirds ounce; black pepper, one-fiftieth ounce.

At times in place of fresh beef eight ounces of bacon or eight ounces of canned meat, or twelve ounces of fish, fresh or canned, was used; in place of the flour, eight ounces of bread; in place of potatoes, eight ounces of onions.

While twenty ounces of unpolished rice was the allowance, the authorities insisted that not over sixteen ounces be drawn, but that some other vegetable food be substituted. For instance, in place of four ounces of the rice they advised sixteen ounces of beans. They required that as much use as possible be made of such native products as camotes, mongos, and squash.

The essential difference between the diet under which the men got beri-beri and that under which they escaped it was in the rice. The difference was not so much in the amount of rice eaten or in the proportion of rice to the other foods in the different diets. The difference was in the quality of the rice.

The men developed beri-beri when they ate high grade polished rice. They did not get it when they ate undermilled or unpolished rice. The Filipino No. 2 rice evidently contained a good deal of rice mills.

Maj. Chamberlain of the United States army, who was in charge of the beri-beri work among the scouts when this change was being effected, says:

"Filipino No. 2 rice was unsightly and consequently aroused opposition among the men. Ginger root could not be made popular. Therefore the ration was changed on May 8, 1911, to that shown in table 4 (the last given), which has continued in force to the present time.

"This ration obviates the practical disadvantages of the preceding one, yet embodies all the features important for beri-beri prevention, viz., use of unpolished rice in an amount not exceeding sixteen ounces and compulsory consumption of sixteen ounces of beans. The beans used are ordinary dried navy beans, for which mongos may be substituted.

"The undermilled rice is of the highest grade, has a white pericarp, is palatable and not unsightly in appearance, and contains 0.4 per cent of phosphorus pentoxid."

In the opinion of Dr. Chamberlain the phosphoric acid of rice is not the element which prevents beri-beri, but it is present in that portion of the outside of the rice berry which is necessary if beri-beri is to be prevented. Therefore to determine the amount of phosphoric acid present is the easy way to tell whether the rice will cause beri-beri or not.

The vitamin necessary to prevent this disease is contained in considerable quantity in the hard white outer layers of the berry.

Let no one understand that rice causes beri-beri. It is treated rice which does it. No food is better for beri-beri than unrobbed rice.

Other foods which have been shown to produce beri-beri are fine wheat flour, white wheat bread with or without yeast, macaroni, ship biscuit, sago, hominy, cornstarch, various breakfast foods, and potatoes.

Do not get the idea that eating a mixed ration in which there is fine wheat bread will cause beri-beri. It will not. If the diet consists of white bread entirely, or largely of it, or if there is nothing in the ration to supply the something which was taken from the wheat berry in the milling process, beri-beri develops.

Another fact which has been well established is that prolonged cooking and cooking at high temperatures destroy the vitamins which prevent beri-beri. If a food substance which in the raw state contains barely enough vitamins is cooked at a high temperature above 230 or is boiled at a lower temperature for a long time enough of its vitamins will be destroyed to put it into the class of foods capable of producing beri-beri. A temperature of 200 does not affect it. The substance which prevents scurvy in babies is destroyed by a temperature of 200.

In a general way what we learn from the work with beri-beri is that we have been in the habit of overrefining and overpreparing our foods. We have got too far away from nature. We shall be better off if we backtrack a little on the route by which we have come up from the cave man.

While it is not necessary that we should grub roots with our fingers, crack nuts with our teeth, and eat raw meat, we shall be somewhat more resistant to disease and somewhat freer from what the doctors call diathesis if we eat more bran with our cereals, our rice, and our flour; more peeling with our fruit, more fiber with our meat, and more fresh vegetables and fruit, and if somewhere during the day we eat some suitable article of diet in the raw state.

Beri-beri begins with a loss of appetite, headache, a mild fever, pain in the stomach and a sense of weight in the chest. The disease progresses unevenly. It gets worse for a while and then lets up, gets better and then gets worse.

There are four varieties of the disease. In the mildest form there is pain in the legs, swelling of the ankles, weakness in the muscles of the legs, and finally a loss of sensation below the hips. In the atrophic form the weakness of the leg muscles is followed by paralysis and muscular atrophy. The muscles shrink up somewhat as in infantile paralysis. Patches of skin on the legs lose all sensation. In other areas there are neuralgic pains. There is generally dropsy in the feet.

In another variety dropsy of the legs overshadows the wasting. The dropsy may be elsewhere in the body, as well as in the legs. In this variety palpitation of the heart and difficult breathing are prominent symptoms.

In the fourth variety the prominent symptom is weakness, accompanied by great disturbance of the heart. The heart disturbance takes the form of palpitation. Breathing is difficult.

As a result of the deficiency in the diet there is inflammation of certain nerves. Just which nerves are most inflamed determines which symptoms are most prominent. In most cases the involved nerves are those which run to the legs; therefore, in most cases the prominent symptoms are paralysis of the legs, wasting of the leg muscles, dropsy of the legs, and a division of the skin of the legs into painful areas and areas in which there is no feeling.

The symptoms of pellagra are very different from those of beri-beri. The nerves and organs involved differ from those of beri-beri. And yet when we analyze more closely, when we study the phenomena which lie below the surface, there is a good deal of similarity between the diseases.

The present trend of opinion is that the cause of pellagra lies in freak diets. The public health service is advising that the disease be prevented by changing the diet. One of the changes which it recommends is that more beans and peas be eaten. With this exception the changes in diet recommended for pellagra are not those recommended for beri-beri.

Infantile scurvy is a condition of great importance. There are cases in which the baby is very definitely sick. The more important group of scurvy cases are the babies who are not definitely sick. They teethe slowly, are slow about sitting alone and crawling. They seem weak in the back. More frequently than otherwise they are fat.

These are very mild cases of infantile scurvy. As in the case of beri-beri, they need some change in their diet. Generally they need more fat and less starch. What is more important, they need orange juice, prune juice, perhaps lemon or lime juice, perhaps some apple, and possibly some potato.

CHILDREN AND CITIZENS.

Chicago, April 20.—[To the Friend of the People.]—A person takes out his first papers and shortly afterwards leaves the United States and resides in Europe for several months. On his return he takes up his permanent residence in a different state from the one in which he declared his intentions. In order to become fully naturalized must he take out his first papers again, giving as the date of entry to the United States the date of his last return? Are the children of an alien father citizens when born here, or do they require naturalization papers in order to be? G. ROGER.
6100 Ellis avenue.

The question set forth in the first paragraph of this inquiry is one which I am unable to answer without knowing more details regarding the period of absence from the United States and the reason for such absence. In answer to the second query, attention is respectfully invited to section 1 of the fourteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States, which reads, in part, as follows:

"All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the state wherein they reside. . . ."

SAYS NO CAUSE FOR COMPLAINT.

Chicago, April 17.—[To the Friend of the People.]—It should be to the interest of all property owners or occupants to see that their alleys are kept as neat and clean as their streets and lawns in so far as they are able. This cannot be accomplished by any one individual. The coöperation and assistance of his neighbors is necessary. Within the last year several flats have been built on the street in back of us, and the occupants make a practice of throwing their garbage, ashes, and refuse in a heap, making it almost impossible for wagons to pass through the alley. We would appreciate it very much if you will lend your able hand toward having this condition improved upon. A CITIZEN.

There are fourteen houses on Warwick avenue and eleven houses on the cross street side of alley complained of. All have cans which are used. The alley gets regular service. Some orange peelings were found in the rear of 4020 Warwick avenue, but otherwise no cause for complaint.

WILL REPAIR BLOOMINGDALE ROAD.

Chicago April 20.—[To the Friend of the People.]—The C. M. & St. P. R. R. has elevated the track in Bloomingdale road but has neglected to light the subway at Kimball avenue. The residents do not feel that they are asking for better lighting rather hastily in view of the fact that the elevation was completed in October. The sidewalk approaches also were torn up and have not been replaced up to this time. MRS. J. J. BURKE, 1827 Kimball avenue.

The work of restoring all sidewalks and pavement along this street will be completed by June 15. The complaint relative to the lighting of the subway has been attended to by the department of electricity.

DEFINING ILLINOIS CORPORATION LAWS.

Chicago, April 21.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—I understand that an Illinois corporation cannot legally hold stock in another corporation with the purpose of controlling that concern, but can a minor or small interest be held indefinitely? F. M.

You are correctly advised as to the law that an Illinois corporation has no right to hold stock in another corporation. This is without regard as to the amount of the stock. However, there are exceptions in some cases, as for instance, where stock of a corporation is taken to satisfy a judgment or other claim. In this event the Illinois corporation has the right to hold the stock until the same can be disposed of at a fair price.

OWNER NOT LIABLE.

Chicago, April 22.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—An employé took out after business hours and without the knowledge or consent of the owners an automobile truck. He met with an accident and the driver of the other machine sustained serious injuries. The owner of the auto truck had a regular chauffeur at the time, and the employé who had the machine out in the evening for a pleasure ride had no chauffeur's license. Can the owner of the truck be held for damages? H. T. H.

Judging from the statement which you make, the owner of the truck is not liable for the damages.

CHANGING OF ONE'S NAME.

Chicago, April 21.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—1. How shall I go about having my family name changed, and the change properly recorded? 2. Is the procedure connected with any expense? 3. Has it anything to do with the question that I am not American born and that, although I have resided in this country more than ten years, I have not taken out my second citizenship papers? F. G.

[1] Under the law of Illinois a legal change of name is accomplished by filing a petition in the Circuit court of the county. [2] This procedure involves the expenditure of some $15 in costs. [3] Such a change of name may be made by any person being a resident of Illinois and who has resided here for six months. It would be advisable to have the petition prepared by an attorney.

FILING OF MECHANIC'S LIEN.

Chicago, April 20.—[To the Legal Friend of the People.]—Kindly inform me when the time limit expires for a contractor or an individual to file a mechanic's lien on building for labor and material. D. G. S.

A contractor must file a mechanic's lien within four months after the completion of his work in order that the lien may be superior to the claim of other creditors. As to the owner the claim may be filed any time within two years after the completion of the work. In order to establish his right to a lien a subcontractor must within sixty days after the completion of his work serve a written notice of his claim on the owner or his agent unless such owner has previously been given notice of the amount due by the contractor or subcontractor. NONPARTISAN JUDGES.

Chicago April 18.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—No better illustration of the waning influence of the press can be found than that contained in their display of hysteria over the proposition of continuing in office all of the sitting judges whose terms of office are about to expire. If the press has taken the pains to acquire a sufficient amount of information to warrant their assuming to advise the public at all in the matter, they must know that there are a number of these judges who from old age and other physical disabilities are absolutely incapacitated from rendering efficient service on the bench. As to these there is no call for maudlin sentiment. The public is in no wise indebted to them. The shoe is rather on the other foot. They have during their terms of office drawn salaries which no one of them could have earned (net) in private practice by devoting twice the time that they devote to services on the bench.

There are some excellent judges among those whose terms are expiring who are still able to render good service on the bench. As far as these are concerned, I hope to see them candidates for reëlection. The Municipal Voters' league has got in the habit of indorsing for reëlection against all comers, irrespective of the comparative abilities of the candidates, any alderman who has served at least one term and has not been caught in the act of trying to steal the cornerstone of the city hall. I sincerely hope the newspapers will not get in the permanent habit of indorsing as fit for a life position every man whose sole qualification is that he has once been elected to that same position. There is no objection to your theoretical proposition of a nonpartisan judiciary, but I do object to your making use of any abstract proposition in a way that can only lead to bad practical results. JOHN B. SKINNER.

CANARIES FIGHTING, TOO.

Benton Harbor, Mich., April 18.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—R. Grant says that Germany is fighting the allied forces with the aid of 50,000,000 Austrians and 20,000,000 Turks. Great guns! The women over there must all be Molly Pitchers. The children have probably been formed into cavalry brigades and the family cat is digging trenches. Wonder what the pet canaries are doing?

ALIEN INFLUENCE AND PUBLIC OPINION.

Evanston, Ill., April 18.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Permit me to say a few words in reply to Mr. Deutsch. Some of us are getting tired of these continual accusations that American opinion is swayed by English influence. In truth, we have formed our opinion, in spite of German propaganda, from our own evidence.

We have read Bernhardi's "The War Book of the General Staff" and other German declarations. We know how Germany has treated Belgium and her attitude of "military necessity" covering any form of violation of international law. We have little hesitancy in choosing between the "holding up" of neutral commerce and the torpedoing of merchant ships.

No; England has not influenced the American mind! Americans do love fair play! And I know some good German-Americans—loyal to the best of a splendid Germany; loyal, too, to their adopted country—who greatly deplore the false and unenviable position into which Germany has been dragged by her leaders. There is every reason for every American citizen to be ashamed of a government with which the British play football, and the citizens should rise as one man to demand the resignation of the British servants at Washington. MR. HALE'S SUGGESTIONS.

Chicago, April 18.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—William Bayard Hale's view of the situation in regard to British insolence and the spineless, cowardly attitude of Wilson and Bryan should have appeared on the front page of your paper in six inch type, as it expresses the opinion of every American with any sense of honor. There is every reason for every American citizen to be ashamed of a government with which the British play football, and the citizens should rise as one man to demand the resignation of the British servants at Washington. DEAD CHILD'S LOCKET LOST.

Chicago, April 18.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—You have been successful in finding the baby picture that had been stolen recently and, therefore, I have the fullest confidence in The Tribune aiding me to find a little baby locket and chain which I have lost within the last few days. The little child owner of the locket died a year ago, and this locket is a very dear keepsake to the mother.

The Social Game

By Robert Herrick.

WASHINGTON, they say, is socially dead this season. "The war, you know!" Indeed, according to the "they" who "say," Washington has not been really alive socially since the coming of the present administration. A Democratic administration is never as favorable to social life as a Republican one. Democrats, one might infer, are not so intimately allied with the leisure class—that part of the "money trust" which has achieved society—as are the Republicans. It has been so long since the Democrats have had a whole administration to themselves that perhaps they are out of practice socially. The present administration from the start struck the note of "strict attention to business," which was discouraging to society. The white house frowned on "functions" and did what it could to discourage the dinner and reception and card distributing end of things. The president has even expressed himself publicly on the unimportance of formal society. Certainly his cabinet was not chosen with an eye for social influence or ability to "entertain." There has probably never been a soberer gathering of plain American citizens at the chief council board of the nation than at present. For one thing, there are no rich men in the cabinet, and wealth is the most powerful stimulant that society can have. Whatever faults the country may find with the Wilson administration it cannot complain of its frivolity!

There are more large, comfortable houses to rent in Washington than at any time within the memory of living woman. Of late years the national capital has attracted the representatives of leisure who have acquired or inherited the means to devote themselves to society and for whom large, comfortable houses are built. Washington is a pleasant place to live in for six or eight months of the year, and leisure seems less reprehensible here than in most American cities. But this season these leisured entertainers who surround the activities of government have flitted from Washington, leaving their large houses either boarded up or "for rent."

IN spite of all the empty or darkened great houses, there must be enough of the leisure class still left in Washington to offer a lively imitation of society. In that small section of broad avenues and pleasant cross streets where "one must live," a mile or two this way or that, the thoroughfares are still lively during social hours. In the gray twilight of this early spring motors and cabs dash up and down with women in them "doing" their lists of calls. For calling is one of the chief activities of Washington; the manufacture of visiting cards must be one of its most paying industries. The women who perform this function almost exclusively have it so well organized that a capable "caller" can tell you within a quarter of an hour how long it will take to make a round of twenty visits and drop the cards—if she has "luck"—that is, if she does not find the people she calls upon at home.

One might ask why all this devoted service of card calling in which many government wives go down to a gallant invalidism each year? That is a silly and an ignorant question, betraying a total unfamiliarity with the methods and the aims of society. From the point of view of some senators' wives, government could hardly go on without the help of this extra-political activity.

Without accepting such a view of the importance of formal society, it is easy to see why Washington is a favorable center for purely social doings. It has a rather better climate than most American cities, it is the cleanest and prettiest of them all; but, above all, it is the one fullest of leisured or partly leisured people. Aside from the unoccupied rich there are the diplomats, and, as everybody knows, the chief object of the diplomat is the proper conduct of society. The presence of a couple of dozen embassies and legations, with their attendant secretaries and attachés, affords an invaluable nucleus of dining and receiving. And society is the sort of thing that grows mightily by its own weight. Around the rich, the leisured, and the diplomatic gather the "fringe"—those who long to penetrate and those content to remain in the precincts without penetrating—artists and travelers and superannuated—in short, all who are without an immediately compelling job. It is wonderful how many of these unemployed there are in our modern world!

THE presence in Washington of foreigners, distinguished and other, of legislators and administrators, of quiet scientists—not to forget our tiny army and navy, who sprinkle a little glamour of gold lace here and there—offers an ample basis for a real society quite beyond the card and dinner swapping and reception giving sense of the word. Society in its broad and liberal meaning requires first the coöperation of persons who have approximately the same culture (in the non-Germanic use), who speak the same language, understand each other's point of view, and have the same manners—that is, have the same taboos. Then to prosper society must have enough wealth and enough leisure to make the mingling of such socially eligible persons both possible and agreeable.

One might think that all these requirements were to be found in any American city of considerable size. They are, no doubt—in solution, as the chemists say. But the proper elements are fewer relatively than the nonsocial lements; therefore it is more difficult for them to discover each other and flow together in groups than it is in Washington, where everything is prepared for the functioning of society as it is prepared for the functioning of government. And the ordinary American city is too busy, even its richest and most cultivated citizens are too busy, to give the time, effort, and attention that this delicate female plant demands. It is true, even if regrettable, that Americans are still obsessed with the idea that their chief function in life is not to belong to society—that society is a woman's game at the best, something for a grown man to take in moderate doses after his business hours.

No wonder, then, that Washington is the Mecca of many ambitious American wives and daughters, that they revel, once there, in its pleasant asphalted ways and hospitable drawing rooms! There they find men who take society seriously. So I fancy that the heart desire of some woman has had more to do with the rooting up of prosperous American families and moving them to Washington than any serious craving of the man to serve his country or to satisfy a noble ambition for statesmanship. Often, one is told, these ambitious women of Nebraska, or Idaho, or Maine, or Texas are sadly disappointed. They find that in the scheme of organized society as Washington sees it, a mere congressman or head of a bureau—even a senator or a secretary—is not an object of obligatory worship.

Then there are tears and backward looks and ultimately reunions with "the home folks," and the excellent sentiment, "No friends are so dear as old friends," etc., etc.

SOME survive, of course. Some senators' wives make themselves wanted, and some senators manage the straddle—reside in Washington and still represent their noble state at the other end of the land term after term. They get acclimated, accustomed to the leisurely, semi-important life of the place. They stay on even after their noble state elects some younger son to serve its people. In spite of the remark one often hears on the lips of Washingto nwomen, "I shouldn't like to live in Washington in anything but an official capacity," etc., they do stay on after their husbands have been retired—they find Washington more homelike than the "home town." That is natural. Human beings put down roots like plants, and the social soil of Washington, if not deep, is what agriculturists call quick growing soil. Yet it must be sad to live where people come and go so constantly as they do at Washington—especially where they go! The little roots that have become woven so closely with other people's little roots in the same garden plot are liable in Washington to perpetual dislocation.

For in the end social life, which in any real sense means the sum of all human contacts and exchanges, is deeper and richer and more enduring the closer and more twiningly the human roots go down—the more lives they grow into and around and across, not the more persons we feed with at dinner parties or drop cards upon or nod to on the street. In the constant change of the human background Washington must resemble too much an extensive moving picture film, with its kaleidoscopic comings and goings. Therefore I take it the more precious things of social life are not to be had there in abundance, and in exchanging the humble "home town" for its gayer opportunities many an American man and woman has ultimately lost something that can never be got back.

But the people who go in for the social game do not reckon in these terms.

Moral Effect of Przemysl's Fall.

IT is a curious psychological phenomena, the importance the public always attaches to the taking or losing of a fortress. One might almost say that in the majority of instances this moral effect is the most significant result of these victories or losses. In the eyes of the average person a fortress personifies the strength or the weakness of the warring parties. Capitulation on either side is ostensibly a self-acknowledgment of failure, without its being necessary to await any further continuance of the victory to draw final conclusions. The very fact that a fortress has surrendered suffices for the average imagination.

There are infinite precedents indeed which could be quoted in proving that, whatever the strategic effects of the taking of Przemysl may be, and they are not to be denied, the moral effects far outweigh them. The conquered as well as the conquerer is equally influenced by the surrender. Triumphant flags at Petrograd bear this point out, as well as do the efforts of influential men at Vienna, who dismiss the whole affair as a futile incident and endeavor to prove that their armies have more than made up for its downfall.

This same moral effect, however, is likely to act in two ways now. In the first place, the fall of Przemysl is a decided admission in Russian eyes of the complete conquest of eastern and central Galicia. This fact was realized in advance, from the moment that it became known that the fortress would succumb. Russian military men knew how fatal the fall of a fortress can be. Now today the whole world and not alone the military circles appreciate this point, and the chances of Russian success are strengthened.

In the second place, this psychological value will make itself felt in a wavering on the part of the German allies. For some time the Austrians have been diminishing in enthusiasm toward the Germans and this lukewarmness, considering their extreme egotism, is likely to be exaggerated rather than lessened. Besides this they are cherishing additional grievances because of the large number of troops they sent across the eastern Beskides and which suffered such wholesale demolition. It would only be human on their part if they did experience a reaction of their one time pro-German enthusiasm.

One might go further and argue with every reasonable justification that the fall of Przemysl will affect the internal relations of Austria-Hungary. Again Hungary is finding herself directly menaced.

Thus will be seen the triple moral effect of the Przemysl capitulation on the Germans, on the Austrians, and on the Austro-Hungarians.

MARS' MINIONS of STEEL and IRON

By Baron Hrolf von Dewitz.

Baron von Dewitz, who, according to Hudson Maxim, has a "masterful knowledge of military tactics and of the philosophy of warfare," has written a book entitled "War's New Weapons," just published by Dodd, Mead & Co. The book deals in an authoritative manner with all the inventions now in use in the business of destruction. Each chapter is prefaced with a vivid and poetic description of the actual use of the weapons. The selections below are included in the book. Baron von Dewitz is a Danish subject.

Superdreadnaught vs. Battle Cruiser.

THE North sea is seldom calm where it rolls into the Skagerak, that stormy strait whence Norse sea kings were wont to sally forth under bellying sail with crews of vikings in mail and plate bending to the ponderous oars. No sail in sight, only a fane of inky smoke on the horizon. By and by two funnels can be seen under the threatening curtain, and a low, rakish vessel heaves into sight, cutting the water with incredible speed. It glides through the heavy sea, tapering smartly from bow to stern, as though its long, sleek sides were not armored as stoutly as a fortress. The deck is dotted with steel turrets spiked with monster cannon, each turret a citadel itself. The whole vessel is contrived like a floating fortification, but it moves and steers with nimble ease as though it were the merest cockleshell and the giant guns but tubes of paper. This, then, is the modern sea king, the battle cruiser of the high seas, an armored, turbined, heavily gunned brother in arms to that adventuresome craft of yielding hemp and canvas, the viking bark of old.

Suddenly the course is changed. Bugles call, buzzers snarl, dials oscillate, levers click, hand wheels spin, and at every battle post electric signals register the commands from the bridge. The decks are cleared for action. The monster turrets swing into position over the port side. The menacing muzzles of a dozen huge cannon rise as by magic to an acute angle, remaining in focus there.

Another fane of smoke has broken on the port bow; another vessel less tapered but more ponderous has appeared under three stout funnels. A thick wave of foam curls under the massive prow. The decks are dotted with turrets even more ponderous, spiked with giant guns even more overawing.

Not a man is in sight on deck, even though there are almost a thousand souls aboard either one of the marine monsters intent on mutual destruction.

At ten miles' range the superdreadnaught opens fire with a shot from one of its mighty fourteen inch rifles. The sound of the ton-heavy projectile as it hurtles screaming through the air is like a death gasp from the underworld. The missile remains in the air something like a half minute, but it seems hours before it strikes, tossing a crater of water as it explodes. Another shot follows and a third as the big sea fighter improves his aim; but before the accurate range can be learned the battle cruiser has changed her course and bears down upon him under a full head of steam.

Range shots explode on all sides of the battle cruiser as she continues her grim advance at desperate risk, until the distance falls under the effective range of her eleven inch ordnance. Once more the battle cruiser lays down her helm, and as her freeboard swings into play under full speed the whole ship seems to jump out of the water under the shock of a tremendous explosion. A broadside of eleven inch pieces has been fired. The air moans and howls under the onslaught of the storm of projectiles. Half the guns have been aimed short, the other half long, of the plotted range. The long shots take their toll. The superdreadnaught is discovered without her aft funnel and a jagged hole yawns under her superstructure, emitting smoke and flame and hissing steam.

Something knocks in the port plates of the battle cruiser and explodes on her berth deck, killing two gun crews, choking the hull with fumes, and wrecking three six inch guns—the first bull's eye of a fourteen inch shell. The battle cruiser, being quicker at range finding, manages to land two salvos of her big guns before she has to take the full punishment of her adversary's fourteen inch ordnance.

Those two salvos save the battle cruiser. Of the twenty projectiles fired at the superdreadnaught thirteen have taken their toll, some of them hitting in the same spot. Her gunners have understood how to concentrate their fire with admirable skill. A water line hit, breached by the first salvo, was knocked into a yawning chasm by the second, a lucky shot sailing clean through and exploding in the boiler room, ripping a ghastly hole in the very vitals of the big fighter.

The latter has fired but a single broadside, four shots taking effect, but such is the smashing power of her giant fourteen inch rifles that the stern turret of the battle cruiser is breached and the guns wrecked. Other shots have clipped her freeboard and dismasted the foretop.

But that double water line hit proves fatal to the superdreadnaught. Before he can launch a second broadside the boilers explode, rolling him over with an ugly starboard list and fouling his aim.

Up to this phase of the action both vessels were steaming freely, the cruiser under forced draught bent on cutting the range to the maximum of her offensive capacity. But the heavy list impairs the maneuvering of the dreadnaught and he is unable to prevent his fleet adversary from getting within torpedo range. The first missile roams wide, but the second explodes under the dreadnaught's forefoot, twisting the heavy ram and at the same time detonating his forward torpedoes. The double explosion has the effect of splintering and amputating the entire bow of the big ship.

The havoc aboard ship is appalling. On the lower decks are lacerated and bleeding men, seared by flame and smoke, running about in swirling fumes among corpses still warm with the blood oozing from gaping wounds and severed members. The inrush of the sea floods the madly struggling crew before it can force a passage through the wrecked hatchways already littered with dead and dying. A heavy steam pipe bursts under the deck, scalding many survivors to death with a tremendous roar that drowns their piteous screams. The heavy list puts the big turret guns beyond the power of man to handle; the crews tumble out on the blood spattered decks. The ammunition hoists jam; the fire control station dangles helplessly against the mast; the command tubes and signal wires are tangled and twisted out of order; the captain and the officers are powerless to fight the ship any longer. Suddenly there is a wild scramble—panic has seized the crew of the now defenseless wreck—and with one tumultuous yell those who can leave their posts and jump overboard. The officers draw their revolvers, but it is too late for discipline. With one awful blast of escaping steam, punctuated by the dull thud of bursting bulkheads and the savage crash of plunging wreckage, the supership turns up her blood trickling deck and flame swept stations and keels over, turning turtle in the heaving sea.

Firing a "Brummer."

THEY who dwell in the pleasant valley of the Sambre, where the ornate border posts of Flanders salute the forts of France, are seized by the spell of its autumnal revelry. Last September saw nature on the Sambre in the same mood, but the Flemish good men and good women failed to respond.

The harvest moon stood in the sky like a festive, round faced peasant glowing with anxiety, but there was no harvest anywhere and there was no festive greeting from the earth peasant to the moon peasant.

Devastation, stubblefields, and devastation.

The causeway flanked by double rows of grenadier poplars, has lost not a few of its giants by shell fire. Some of the trunks are snapped clean off as one would break a match; others are splintered as by thunderbolts. The poplar column ranges through a village slain to bits with heavy shell fire and consumed by flame. The empty village lane is gutted with débris and broken masonry. Bits of shattered glass gleam in the moonlight. Charred timbers and beams grope with rusty spikes against flame seared walls. A solitary chimney stands aloof, veined with cracks, like a wounded sentinel intent on his duty. What was before a quaint little place now turns toward heaven a crippled, mangled corpse of charred bone and pallid brow in mute witness of the horror of war.

Out on the causeway a lonely figure strides up and down—a Prussian picket in gray, with spiked helmet. A half mile farther on another sentry, and so on at intervals along the fine old pike toward Charleroi.

A buzzer sounds. The picket bends down over something by the roadside and picks up a concealed receiver. "Jawohl!" He has his orders. A squad of military engineers approach him presently. They are "pioneers" and carry lanterns doused in buckets. With pick and spade the crew begins to blaze a trail through the field, paving it with heavy wooden planks. Quickly, silently, and smoothly work the pioneers, pushing the planked trail ever farther until it pierces the forest fringe. And there, in a small glade, also working by lantern light, is a crew of masons and artificers erecting bombproofs and laying a heavy concrete base in a circle.

A large, long shaft of light breaks upon the horizon on the east bank of the Sambre. Another huge shaft cuts in on the west bank. The shafts sweep out slowly, searching every inch of ground. Presently they meet and focus on a spot somewhere in the southwest in the direction of Fort Maubeuge—the prelude to a Prussian night attack.

Again the buzzer sounds; again the picket snaps "Jawohl!" There is a dull, rumbling sound, barely audible. Shooting it is not. Thunder it cannot be, smiles the moon.

Closer and closer comes the rumble, and as the picket peers along the murky highway he discovers a huge, unshapely monster ambling forward with the tottering pace of a barbarian idol on wheels. It snorts and blows and growls. It gnashes steel tooth against steel tooth. Sparks of lightning flash from its monstrous eyes. Onward it trundles ponderously like a menace to mankind.

It comes to a halt before the picket. The canvas is removed and a big forty-two centimeter "Brummer" stands revealed gleaming in the moonlight. With its three heavy recoil cylinders tucked around the monstrous barrel it looks like a quadruple cannon pointed to shoot down the foolish moon.

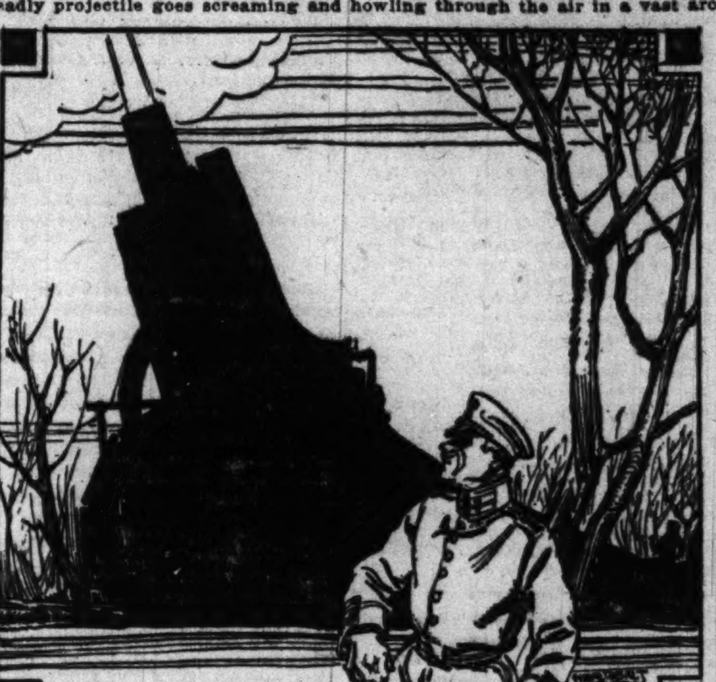
The crew jumps off the motor tractor, which is detached. The pioneers bring up a team of forty-eight artillery horses, and the heavy piece is skidded and limbered onto the wooden trail. The drivers spur on their teams, and the big "Brummer" moves forward tumultuously over creaking planks to its base on the big concrete patch hidden behind the forest fringe.

The platform base is bolted down, the mountings and cylinders are set in place, and the barrel is backed up and cradled in its sleeve of steel. Pistons are snapped into gear, hand wheels are set spinning, levers are pulled, the ton-heavy side breech clicks open to the touch of the hand, and the pawl of the turntable gear begins its metallic chatter as the big gun is being whipped into battery. There is a decade of inventive technical skill behind every move completed, behind every part and piece of the huge machine. It responds to its code of mechanical adjustment with the precision of a soldier at drill. A sharp command sends the crew into the bombproof. The big piece is loaded and ready for the range.

With the first gray shimmering of dawn there is a dull, droning sound overhead—the air scout speeding out for final reconnoissance. A bugle calls the gun crew to quarters. Soon the air scout returns, signals, and sweeps away to his post of observation several miles beyond the enemy's trenches, where the steel turreted ramparts of Fort Maubeuge hide in the morning mists.

The crew, not employed in firing, lie down on hands and knees; even the gun captain crouches apprehensively! The buzzer sounds three quick taps, then a long "F-e-u-rrr!"

There is a blast as of an exploding volcano. A hot flash blinds and gags the crew. A disintegrating crash convulses the earth. And 1,200 pounds of deadly projectile goes screaming and howling through the air in a vast arc over the Prussian front beyond the Franco-British trenches, beyond their rear, and knocks a monstrous hole through twenty feet of steel and concrete, breaking the crest of the fort impregnable and slaying the crew in one vast explosion.



The shell has traveled over six miles. The gun has not moved an inch.

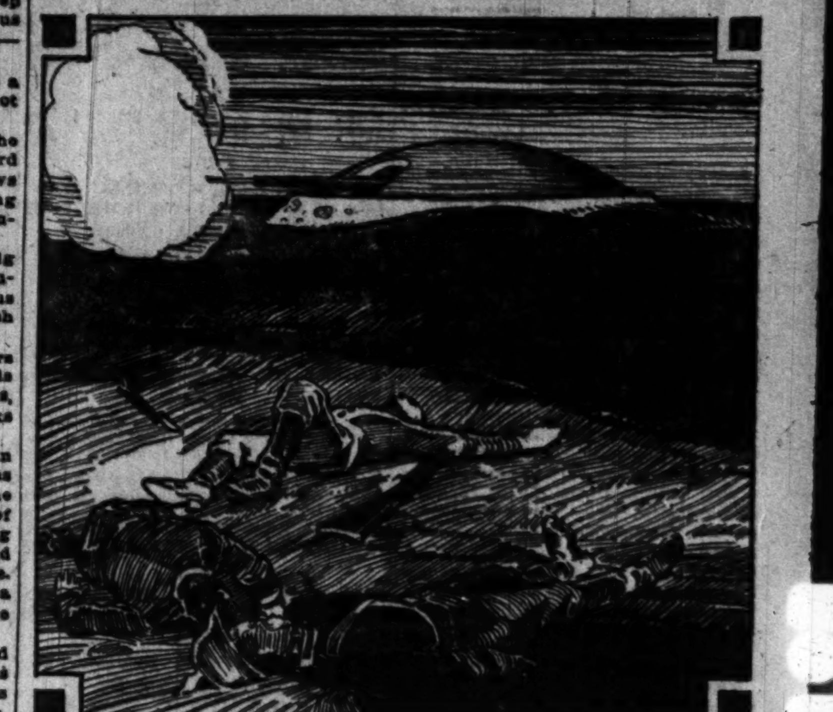
A Bull's Eye.

THE Belgian gunners in Fort Pontisse, on the right bank of the Meuse, fought like fiends and endured like heroes. Shell after shell smashed itself into shivers of steel splinters against the armored dome of the big turret. Shrapnel exploded on the glacis, plowing ugly scars in the greensward, and on the very parapets they would burst with a blinding crash, hurling hot slugs and splinters through the embrasures, killing the men behind the guns. But that mattered little. New men jumped to the vacant post, men stripped to the waist swarthy with smoke, men gleaming from sweat and decorated with bloody wounds.

The lieutenant, his blackened head wrapped in white bandages, stood by the gun layers directing the firing with reeling brain. Half of his men were in the lazaret below, in the concrete bowels of the fort. His captain was killed, his brother officers were maimed, but still he kept on doing his duty heroically.

The ammunition hoist jams and he goes below to give directions. The crew in the overheated vault is more dead than alive. Some of them have turned raving mad and attack their comrades with sword bayonets; others appear to have lost their hearing. With drawn revolver the officer establishes authority in the pandemonium raging among the blackened, crazed crew in the inferno below.

"Tonight we shall have reinforcements and provisions!" he cries, and the men rally with hoarse cheers and a "Vive Belgique!" But "tonight" never comes. As the officer mounts the winding stair to the cupola where the cannon belch forth their crashing salvos something strikes the big dome with the force of an earthquake and rends it in half. There is a thunderous explosion, with a blinding flash of smoke and fumes. As the smoke rolls away there is revealed to view a ghastly crater of jagged armor plate and broken concrete littered with shattered cannon and torn shreds of bleeding bodies, while from below comes a horror stricken swarm of yelling imbeciles—black, panting, sweating, and with bloodshot eyes—struggling through the débris like a horde from hell on doomsday!



The official report states that Fort Pontisse, "after gallantly withstanding the fire of the enemy's field batteries, was finally reduced by a forty-two centimeter shell."

Spirit of the German Army.

By Edward Goldbeck.

THE spirit of the German army was born on the battlefield of Jena, where in 1806 Napoleon crushed the Prussian forces. Napoleon tore Prussia asunder, occupied nearly all the Prussian fortresses and limited the number of the standing army to 40,000. His superiority was immense, the Prussians never could have thought of assailing the giant to whom France for years willingly offered her young manhood. Frederic William III., who at that that time ruled Prussia, was, like most of the Hohenzollerns, averse to war and of a timid and wavering character. He was not afraid of physical danger, but he was too conscious of his own limitations. So the beginnings of the Prussian army were of an entirely defensive character.

The spirit of the Prussian army at its birth was democratic. Scharnhorst, the man who organized the "volksheer," the national army, was the grandson of a serf. He saw that Napoleon had not only vanquished by the overwhelming power of his political and military genius but by that fact that the nation was in his camp.

When the Frenchmen in revolution smashed the throne of the Bourbons the European countries entered into a coalition against France. The revolutionary government saw that a terrible struggle would follow and appealed to revolutionary methods. They aroused the nation to resistance. There, too, dire necessity, the relentless teacher of humanity, enforced progress. The leading generals in Prussia saw that the only means to get even with Napoleon was to free the titanic strength of the nation itself. So the army became democratized and nationalized.

The spirit of the army was entirely idealistic. Gneisenau, the chief of Blücher's general staff, wrote poetry. Boyen, later minister of war, submitted to the king a project for the reorganization of the army, and accompanied it with a poem. (It sounds comical and pathetic at the same time.)

This tradition has not died out. In the middle of the last century there was a literary association in Berlin, "The Tunnel," in which many distinguished authors found the first encouragement that means so much to young talent, and the officers of the guards were not the least gifted members. After the war of 1870 the Baron Detlev von Liliencron began to write his beautiful poems of love and patriotism; his was the richest lyrical vein since Goethe's days.

The German lieutenants have their meals together in the "Casino" (mess). The married officers dine at home, of course, and from the charge of captain upward you may dine wherever you want to. But the young officers, and usually the older bachelor officers, too, take their meals together. The meal is "Dienst," "service," "work." The officer oldest in rank presides. He is responsible to the superiors for whatever may happen.

Profane conversation is forbidden at the table. When the cheese has been served the oldest officer bows to those present and says, "Gesegnete mahlzeit, meine Herren!" The others bow, too. They smoke, and the conversation runs unhampered and very often it is rather peppery. The German officers are not saints and I do not want to canonize them.

But one topic is strictly forbidden, that is politics, and I know what would happen if officers at the common table would dare to give a toast "To the day!" The presiding officer would send away the attending orderlies and would say: "Gentlemen, you will oblige me by refraining from such allusions. Our only business is to obey his majesty the emperor and we can safely leave these matters to his care. I thank you. ("I thank you" is the end of every official harangue and means that there is nothing more to say about the matter.)

The average German officer knows little of politics. I was in the army for eight years and I never heard a political discussion, never an allusion to war. In this respect the German army is different from the French, where there is constant political and religious bickering.

Any one can become an officer in Germany if he passes the examinations. A boy who gets the certificate from college which entitles him to one year's service instead of the obligatory two can enter the army and there get a practical education of five months. After this he is sent to a military school and is taught the fundamentals of military science for ten months. At the end of this time he has to take examinations. If he passes he goes back to the regiment and after two more months of practical work he becomes a lieutenant.

But—there is always a but—before he can be made a lieutenant by royal decree the officers of his regiment assemble and the colonel asks them in a solemn way if any of them has any objection to the young aspirant. The regiment is considered a family and all the members of it should have a common stock of ideas, manners, and—prejudices. This custom explains why there are no Jewish officers in the German army.

Why Italy Hesitates.

Following is an extract from a new book, "Germany's Isolation," by Prof. Rohrbach, which has just been translated by Paul H. Phillipson of the University of Chicago and published by A. C. McClurg & Co. The author is a professor of colonial economy in the Commercial academy of Berlin.

By Paul Rohrbach.

A GLANCE at the map of Italy and the balance of her foreign trade will suffice to explain her compliant attitude to England's demand. The Italian coast is exposed to the attack of every hostile navy which is superior to that of Italy.

The most important Italian railroad lines, the arteries of her traffic on land, run along the coast. Her whole industrial life can be vitally affected by a superior naval force of her enemy. Italy's exports amount to about $500,000,000; her imports, according to official statistics, to $700,000,000, more or less. Her greatest trading activity is with oversea countries.

Among the articles of import are grain and seed valued at $90,000,000; cotton and cotton textiles at $80,000,000; coal at almost $60,000,000; meat and vegetable food products, except grain, at $40,000,000; raw material, except coal, at $100,000,000.

From these figures it seems plain that Italy faces economic ruin if her supply is cut off. But, above all, Italy has no coal mines, all her coal for industrial purposes, for railroads, and navigation being supplied by England. In the light of these facts her motives for acquiescing in England's threatening demands may be clearly understood. Of course, a daring and farreaching policy might have safely offset all scruples and risks by the great thought of an Italian North Africa.

Italy's net loss by emigration within the last five years averaged almost a half million souls annually—a number large enough within a decade to settle the present French North Africa with Italian colonists. This and nothing else constitutes the plan of a future greater Italy, cherished by all far-seeing Italians, an idea far loftier and greater than the time-worn Italia Irredenta, the unredeemed Italy, which is inhabited by Italians under foreign, particularly Austrian, rule.

The question, no less than all others, will be automatically settled in the great accounting to which all Europe has been subjected. And yet Italy ought to consider that only as a friend of Germany and Austria-Hungary she is likely to attain the goal of her one desire.

An English-French victory would not let her rise above a second or even third rate power in the Mediterranean sea, while as a member of the triple alliance she may become a world power. However, great fortitude is demanded to attain great ends.

It cannot be too often repeated that the strength of the two allied powers, above all that of Germany, depends upon the army, which derives its power from the perfect union of government and governed, upon the excellence of the army itself, and upon the impossibility of reducing Germany and Austria-Hungary to starvation.

Germany raises sufficient farm products and her supply of live stock is more than ample. All necessary minerals, such as coal and iron ore, are dug from her own mines. Gas, electricity, and steam power can be generated as required; arms and munitions of war can be manufactured without foreign help and in unlimited quantities. Petroleum and similar products are supplied by Galicia and Roumania in sufficient quantities for military purposes.

We give you in it, as compared with others, 20 per cent more available tread rubber. The shape ends bulging, breaking or excessive grind. The compound minimizes friction.

The tire can't creep, as we press it on at a minimum of 50,000 pounds. It can't separate, for the tread, the backing and the rim are welded into lasting union.

USE OF NOTES IN EMERGENCY

LOCAL CLEARINGS GAIN.

The National Currency association of Chicago has issued a full report covering the association's operation in handling the emergency currency under the Aldrich-Vreeland act. The report is made by the executive committee, of which Ernest A. Hamill is chairman.

It appears that between Aug. 4 and Sept. 14, 1914, the association issued a total of $27,069,990 to Chicago banks. To country banks there was issued on Nov. 18 $100,000.

Retirement of the currency began on Oct. 23, when Chicago banks took down $250,000. The largest amount retired was on Nov. 25, when the figure was $7,450,000. Thereafter the retirement was gradual until Jan. 12, when the amount was $4,067,990. The last retirement by Chicago banks was on Jan. 29, when the amount was $100,000. This cleaned up the Chicago banks. On Feb. 20 the $100,000 issued to country banks was retired, completing the entire issue of $27,169,990.

Total Security $37,395,353.

The schedule of securities received shows that $6,916,500 in municipal bonds, $6,117,000 in miscellaneous bonds, and $24,361,853 in commercial paper were put up as security behind the issues of notes. The total security was $37,395,353. The commercial paper employed was therefore about two-thirds of the amount provided.

The membership in the National Currency association on Aug. 3 consisted of ten national banks. By Oct. 28 three more national banks applied for membership, making a total of thirteen, at which figure it now stands.

The total cost of management and operation covering the entire period was $3,081.06. This cost apportioned among the various members amounted to 11.34 cents for each $1,000 of currency issued. The executive committee held in all fifty-nine meetings. The successful working of the Currency association is suggested by the committee in the following:

"The committee takes this occasion to express its appreciation of the hearty cooperation of the members at all times and to congratulate them on the successful operation of the law under its first application."

STRONG CLOSING IN WALL STREET

INVESTMENT SHARES UP

Total sales of stocks, 455,000 shares.

Total sales of bonds (par value), $3,650,000.

New York, April 24.—The stock market developed unlooked for strength in the latter half of today's short session, closing with an almost buoyant tone under the lead of United States Steel. That stock became the dominant feature, gaining 2 points to the accompaniment of rumors that the case of the government against the company would soon be decided on reasonable terms.

In the early part of the session leading shares were more or less neglected, interest against shifting to "war" issues, the metal shares, and Mexican Petroleum. Coppers held their prominence throughout, a few of the low priced issues making new price records.

Mexican Petroleum also broke all records, making a net gain of 4¼ points on confirmation of the report that the company had enered into an advantageous selling agreement with leading British interests.

Investment Class Up.

Reading, Union Pacific, St. Paul and other stocks in the investment class shared in the later movement. Stocks of the roads coming within the category of reorganized properties were under pressure, as also were some of the isolated industrials. Tractions gave early promise of greater strength, but soon relinquished initial advances.

Bonds were mainly irregular, total sales, par value, aggregating $3,650,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call during the week.

Announcement of the proposed suit against the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad by Morris and Essex shareholders was not made until after the close of the market. Other news of the day, including irregularity in the London market, made no impression upon the local situation.

Banks Gain Much Cash.

The bank statement showed an unexpectedly large cash gain which was reflected in a reserve increase of $13,000,000. Loans expanded by a little over $10,000,000, an inconsiderable amount considering the heavy stock trading of the week.

Mercantile paper, 3¾@4 per cent. Sterling exchange easy; 60 day bills, 4.76; for cables, 4.7925; for demand, 4.79. Bar silver, 50⅝c. Mexican dollars, 38¾c.

Alaska Juneau
A Big Gold Mine in the Making

This property adjoins Alaska Gold and contains a wider continuation of the same lode. Its ore reserves of over 200,000,000 tons—estimated to yield around $1.00 a ton net—assure continuous production for more than a generation.

The advance Alaska Juneau attained last week eclipsed even the upturn recorded by Alaska Gold during its earlier market history. There are large potentialities in the stock for those who buy now.

SHARP ADVANCE IN WHEAT PRICE

Export Sales for Three Days Placed at 5,000,000 Bu; Cables Are Firm.

COARSE GRAINS RALLY.

Bullish foreign news with large sales of wheat reported for export gave wheat a further bulge yesterday. The July sold at $1.40, but the big advance was in the September, which rallied 2⅝c. May was up 2c at the close and the July 1⅝c. Shipping sales for export in all positions were placed around 1,000,000 bu late on Friday and yesterday, and Friday's sales were placed as high as 3,000,000 bu, including old and new Canadian and United States wheat.

Importing countries were again reported keen after wheat by Liverpool, the continental countries bidding strong for wheat. Millers in the United Kingdom also were good buyers, and this helped the market. While the demand was reported urgent abroad, cables were only up ½d. However, offerings from Argentina and from India were light and prices higher. The seaboard reported no letup in demand for our wheat.

Big Sales Are Claimed.

Exporters are not all agreed in regard to extent of export business, but all admit there is some business being done right along in new crop wheat for August-September shipment. Stocks at Duluth decreased 5,280,000 bu for the week and it is understood there is a big eastern holding of May wheat. The May showed a stronger tone in nearly all markets. Late reports from the seaboard said the sales of old and new wheat the last three days had aggregated around 5,000,000 bu.

Minneapolis stocks are down to 7,000,000 bu, practically. This is a small stock for that point at this time of year, especially as the country supplies are extremely light. Farmers have not increased their sales much the last few days, although prices have rallied quite a little. Cash premiums continue strong at Minneapolis, and there were fair flour sales reported there also.

Crop Conditions Fine.

From a crop standpoint there is little reason to complain of the outlook. Practically the entire winter wheat belt has had good rains, and advices from all sections report an excellent promise. In the spring wheat country, northwest and in Canada, the promise is for a bigger acreage than last year. Most of the foreign advices have not disclosed any discouraging conditions as to the crops, except that rains delayed seeding a little in Russia.

Primary receipts for the week were 3,323,000 bu, against 2,296,000 bu last week and 2,244,000 bu a year ago. Receipts here were 96 cars, with 79 cars inspected yesterday. Northwest points had 226 cars; last year 184 cars. Winnipeg had 165 cars; last year, 195 cars. Clearances were liberal at 817,000 bu. Clearances of wheat and flour from the United States to March 31 were 268,000,000 bu; last year, 116,000,000 bu. For March clearances were 28,000,000 bu.

Good Trade in Corn.

In corn there was a good trade. Prices made good gains at the start, but until near the close the market developed a reactionary tendency, due to profit taking. Late in the session there was renewed buying on the strength in wheat, and prices closed ⅝@¾c up. Cash prices were a trifle firmer, and there were sales of 80,000 bu. Some country reports indicate a moderate increase in country sales.

Cables were 1½@2d up, the advance being due to continued wet weather in Argentina, where the harvesting of corn is being interfered with by continuous rains. The situation in that country is regarded as serious and may mean a vast difference in the demand for corn from this country. Receipts, 171 cars, with 72 cars inspected yesterday. Primary receipts for the week were 560,000 bu, against 351,000 bu a year ago. Clearances were 279,000 bu. Primary receipts were 3,356,000 bu for the week, against 1,819,000 bu a year ago.

Sharp Gain in Oats.

September oats were strong and closed with a gain of 1⅛c. The May was only up ⅛c and July was ¼c up. Commission houses bought the September and there was some covering by shorts. The big jump in September wheat evidently had an effect on shorts. The cash trade was of moderate proportions, and sales were 115,000 bu. Clearances were 135,000 bu. Primary receipts were increased by receipt of 822,000 bu at Toledo. The total was 1,435,000 bu, against 491,000 bu a year ago. Primary receipts for the week were 4,210,000 bu, against 2,973,000 bu a year ago.

Hog Products Are Easy.

The provisions market was dull and there was no special feature. Prices were a little easier at the close. Some scattered buying of pork was in evidence early. Receipts of hogs were 8,000 and prices were not much changed at the yards. The estimate for Monday was 31,000, with 115,000 for the week. Southern cash trade conditions are said to be improving. Hog receipts are expected to be moderate the next few weeks by some traders, while the changing business conditions are counted upon to be a bull factor. Receipts of hogs in the west for the week were 401,400, compared to 361,100 a year ago.

Rye in Active Request.

Rye met with a better demand, with sales of 10,000 bu reported made to exporters. A bag lot of No. 2 sold at $1.10, and the closing price of No. 2 was $1.17@1.18 nominal. Receipts, 3 cars.

Barley had a firm undertone, with sales of malting at 78@80½c for spot and 78½@79c to arrive. Screenings sold at 68@76c. Receipts, 19 cars.

Timothy seed was higher at $6.75 bid and $7.00 asked for September and $4.50@5.85 for cash. Clover seed was steady at $9.00@12.75 for cash.

Duluth flax closed ¼@⅝c higher, with cash on track, $1.95¼; May, $1.95⅜; July, $1.98½, and September, $2.00½. Receipts, 4 cars. Minneapolis was ¼c higher at $1.91½@1.93⅜ for cash on track. Receipts, 9 cars. Winnipeg closed ¼@⅜c higher at $1.79¼ for May, $1.82½ for July, and $1.85⅜ for October. Receipts, 7 cars.

NEWS AND GOSSIP OF BOARD OF TRADE.

Argentine conditions are undoubtedly becoming serious. Yesterday's cable advices said there was a continuance of the rainy conditions, and that prices were up sharply at Buenos Aires for both wheat and corn. The export demand for wheat was reported urgent with holders firm, and the shipments of corn are being delayed, with shippers facing a situation like that of last year, when many dealers suffered big losses when they were compelled to cancel many contracts owing to the wet weather. The lack of storage facilities makes the prolonged rains at this time of year a serious matter in Argentina.

"The long interests in May have not sold anything and are standing on their line," said R. I. Mansfield. "On their action depends the future course of prices. If they take delivery and move the corn out, sharply higher prices can easily be recorded; if they do not take delivery, it would be an easy matter to bring about a severe reaction in prices. The advance in futures enabled dealers to pay the farmer some fancy prices for corn and they were not slow to take advantage and make large sales. There is no lack of corn in the country and every advance will bring out increasingly large quantities of it."

The directors of the board of trade, through the grain committee, lately made a formal request of the state public utilities commission of Illinois to change the spring wheat rules so as to provide for an admixture of not to exceed 15 per cent of velvet chaff wheat, effective Oct. 1, 1915. The commission has signified its willingness to do this. This wheat will be a valid tender on December contracts.

Le Count wired Barrell from Greencastle, Ind.: "Wheat looking generally good, condition improving, and enough rain has fallen to completely relieve the drought situation for some time. Wheat and oats looking as nearly perfect as I ever saw them over Illinois and Indiana. Weather clear and favorable."

Armit Brown, Thomas M. Hoerty, Albert Rothschild, Cornelius J. Lucy, and Robert P. Boylan made application for memberships on the board of trade, while memberships were posted for transfer by William Mills, L. G. Vincent, and the estate of Z. P. Brosseau.

Exporters are mixed in their views of the wheat trade. Most all of them admit selling quite a little new wheat for export August and September shipment, but many of them profess to be at a loss to explain the enormous sales reported at the seaboard. There were rumors current yesterday that the export sales in all positions Friday had been around 3,000,000 bu. Yesterday's sales, with those of late the previous day, were 900,000 bu. A good share of the sales of old wheat have been of Canadian wheat. Local sales were 80,000 bu yesterday. Oats and corn were not much changed, following the futures, and sales were 80,000 bu corn and 115,000 bu oats.

September again gained sharply on the July, being 2⅝c higher for the day, while the May was up 2c and the July 1⅝c. Commission houses, led by Knight-McDougal and Wagner, were buyers of the September and offerings were light.

The official United States exports for March were 28,115,000 bu wheat and flour, against 6,918,000 bu a year ago. For the season up to March 31 total wheat and flour clearances were 268,000,000 bu, against 116,000,000 bu a year ago.

Minneapolis stocks decreased 150,000 bu for one day, and at the end of the week stocks there were only about 7,000,000 bu, an unusually small supply in view of the limited supplies back on the farms and in country elevators.

The open trades of the late John Cudahy have been transferred to the Cudahy Packing company. He was understood to have had quite a big line open in provisions.

Estimated receipts for Monday—Wheat, 79 cars; corn, 72 cars; oats, 83 cars; rye, 3 cars; barley, 19 cars; hogs, 31,000 head. Hogs for netx week, 115,000 head.

The little increase in the Minneapolis wheat movement was said to be at the expense of country elevator stocks. Country receipts are only slightly increased.

Kansas City reported considerable country selling of July and September wheat as the result of fine growing conditions in the southwest.

The winter wheat acreage of Canada, British India, and the United States is estimated to be about 8,500,000 acres more than a year ago.

Stephen Jones of Duluth was a visitor on change yesterday. He predicts a scarcity of old wheat in the northwest.

Friday's export sales of grain reported from the seaboard included a cargo of 300,000 bu oats.

Minneapolis reported fair flour sales. Cash demand for wheat was reported good.

Two board of trade memberships sold yesterday at $2,850 net to the buyer.

Duluth stocks of wheat decreased 5,280,000 bu for the week.

HOGS.

Receipts of 7,000 hogs at Chicago yesterday met with a brisk demand at steady to strong prices, making a slightly better average than on Friday. The quality of the offerings was ordinary, there being a scarcity of prime lightweight animals, and the best sale made was at $7.70, although there were buyers bidding $7.75 for their selections out of full load lots. The bulk of the day's business was transacted at $7.40@7.65 and there was nothing left in the pens at the close of business. Pigs were neglected and 25c lower for the day, the bulk selling at $6.00@6.50.

Final quotations made hogs 5@10c higher than a week ago and pigs unchanged. The average price of all the hogs received here this week was placed at $7.55, the highest weekly average made since last October and compared with $7.30 last week. The advanced prices enforced were made in spite of an increase of 2,800 in receipts for the week, the aggregate for six days being 106,000, compared with 103,200 last week and 94,536 a year ago.

CATTLE.

Heavyweight steers finished the week at a decline of 10@15c from closing values a week ago, but the light and medium weight offerings were fully steady, while cows and heifers showed a net gain of 10@15c. Receipts for the week showed a moderate increase, about 2,000 head, and the trade was more active, improvement being particularly noticeable in the outside shipping demand. Bulls were especially favored by the shipping call and offerings available to outsiders sold 35@40c higher for the week. Calves came in for a broader demand and sold 50@75c higher in spite of a moderate increase in receipts.

Cattle at six western markets for the week, 118,100, against 107,900 the preceding week, 113,600 a year ago, and 122,400 two years ago. Total for 1915 to date, 1,874,000, against 1,870,000 the same period in 1914.

SHEEP.

Better grades of sheep and lambs at Chicago this week closed 15@25c higher than a week ago and were priced at the highest level ever recorded on this market. The less desirable lots, especially heavy lambs, however, were unchanged to 10@15c lower for the week. Top sales this week were made at $10.85 for wool Colorado lambs; $10.50 for westerns, and $10.15 for yearlings, all three new record marks. Wool sheep topped at $8.75, the highest price made this year, although several notches short of the record figures for this market. Receipts for the week made a moderate increase and the trade was active, with local killers taking the initiative in paying the advanced prices. The eastern shipping demand was moderate, falling short of expectations.

Farm Mortgages.

In buying farm mortgages from one of the large agencies the individual investor finds a complete statement of details about every loan. As explained in a previous article, these details are reported by the owner of the land, who makes affidavit to them, furnishes supporting testimony from his neighbors, and gives some well known men or institutions as references.

There are, however, a number of more general questions on which the investor should make some independent investigation and reach a decision for himself. Perhaps the most important of these is the question of rainfall. The point is whether there is enough precipitation in most years, and whether the rainfall is fairly well distributed through the summer. If the investor does not know the region, he can get full information from the United States agricultural department.

Many loans are made on the so-called "dry" farms of the plains, but the most conservative investors do not make them, and the rate of interest is higher. Farming in these regions is somewhat hazardous. Good crops are possible for a series of years, but several years of drought may occur and ruin a farmer who is not well established.

Another question just as important is the means of getting crops to market. Some irrigated farms in the west are able to produce great crops, but the crops serve only to increase the earnings of railways. The farmer can raise plenty of food, but he cannot get together enough currency to pay interest on his mortgage. This same difficulty has prevented the success of promising truck farm projects in the south. Early garden vegetables can be raised in profusion, but it costs so much to ship them north that no profit is left.

One crop farming is more hazardous than diversified agriculture, and particularly if the crop is fruit. If the crop is wheat, corn, or anything else making severe demands on the soil, it is not only liable to almost total loss in a bad year but it inevitably will impoverish the land and ultimately destroy the value of the security.

United Paper Board.

C. F. H.—The United Paper Board company earned a fraction over 6 per cent on its preferred stock in the year ended May 30 last. It set aside $90,000 for depreciation and had left a surplus of $141,589. No later official reports are available, but it is said unofficially that the market for its product dropped later and that recently little or no profit has been made. On Feb. 7 last the head of the company and five other members of the Eastern Box Board club were fined from $1,000 to $5,000 each on charges of entering into agreements to limit the output of paper board.

Colorado and Southern.

E. S.—The Colorado and Southern railway is controlled by the Burlington through the ownership of almost $24,000,000 of the $31,000,000 common stock and a little over $1,000,000 of the $8,500,000 first preferred stock and $6,000,000 of the $8,500,000 second preferred. Last year the coal strike in Colorado paralyzed the business of the Southern and the 4 per cent dividends on both classes of preferred stocks were discontinued. In October the strike was ended and the railroad's earnings began to improve. Every month since has shown an increase, and the prospect is that the year ending June 30 will see the preferred dividends earned and 1 or 2 per cent on the common. Inasmuch as the preferred dividends are not cumulative, however, it is doubtful whether any distribution will be made. The Burlington railway does not need the money and the Colorado and Southern does need it for improvements, therefore, the preferred of the latter is still a speculative rather than an investment stock.

Hydrox Company.

F. G.—The Hydrox Products, formerly a part of the Consumers company, was sold last August to T. H. McInnerney, who resigned as vice president and treasurer of the Consumers company and formed the Hydrox company. The latter company has $250,000 preferred stock and $150,000 common, the majority owned by Mr. McInnerney, who is president and treasurer. He says the company is in no way connected with the Consumers company.

Brief Answers.

F. M. C., Toledo, O.—The Canadian Pacific company has paid 10 per cent a year on common stock for the last four years. Its net and gross earnings since the war in Europe opened have shown a decrease of about 25 per cent. In the face of this slump, the stock is not a conservative investment, although the dividend is being earned.

J. M. O'N.—The Lakeside Vineyard company has sent no information about its affairs. The shares of such companies are not usually conservative investments for persons who are in no way connected with the management.

N. W. K., Wyoming, Ia.—The Manufacturers and Retailers company operates on a coöperative plan, selling stock to retailers who handle its products. The company has furnished no information as to the value of its stock.

J. E. D.—The Centennial company has produced $250,000 to $400,000 worth of copper yearly in the last ten years, but at such a high cost that there is small profit. There have been some assessments and no dividends.

Truck Tires Free

Unless the 1915 Goodyear S-V Outwears Any Other

Here is an offer which Truck users cannot afford to neglect. It will settle for you, without any risk, the entire Truck Tire question.

For three months—April, May and June—this amazing warrant goes with every S-V Truck Tire put on under these conditions:

Every Penny Back

Equip opposite wheels, at the same time, one with a Goodyear S-V, one with any other standard make tire of like rated size, bought in the open market.

If the Goodyear S-V fails to cost less per mile than the other, we will return you its full purchase price, making the S-V free.

Mark that—no partial rebate, no mileage adjustment, no replacement. The tire that fails is free. Get this guarantee in writing when you buy the tires.

Never Such a Warrant

Never before has such a warrant been given on any class of tire. If widely accepted, it means with us a million-dollar stake. It is given without reservation against any tire in the field. It covers accidents as well as wear.

Numerous makers claim to build tires as good as the Goodyear S-V. Let us stop arguing in print and in person. Let us compare them on opposite wheels. We have done that already, under every condition. Over 5,000 S-V tires were tested out on trucks before we made this offer. We know to a certainty the results you'll get, barring accidents.

We have worked for eight years on this Truck Tire problem. We built 29 types before arriving at this one. We built 74 models of this S-V type before we attained this perfection.

We give you in it, as compared with others, 20 per cent more available tread rubber. The shape ends bulging, breaking or excessive grind. The compound minimizes friction.

The tire can't creep, as we press it on at a minimum of 50,000 pounds. It can't separate, for the tread, the backing and the rim are welded into lasting union.

USE OF NOTES IN EMERGENCY

LOCAL CLEARINGS GAIN.

The National Currency association of Chicago has issued a full report covering the association's operation in handling the emergency currency under the Aldrich-Vreeland act. The report is made by the executive coummittee, of which Ernest A. Hamill is chairman.

It appears that between Aug. 4 and Sept. 14, 1914, the association issued a total of $27,069,990 to Chicago banks. To country banks there was issued on Nov. 18 $100,000.

Retirement of the currency began on Oct. 23, when Chicago banks took down $90,000. The largest amount retired was on Nov. 25, when the figure was $7,450,000. Thereafter the retirement was gradual until Jan. 12, when the amount was $4,[illegible]7,990. The last retirement by Chicago banks was on Jan. 29, when the amount was $100,000. This cleaned up the Chicago banks. On Feb. 20 the $100,000 issued to country banks was retired, completing the entire issue of $27,169,990.

Total Security $37,395,353.

The schedule of securities received shows that $6,916,500 in municipal bonds, $6,117,000 in miscellaneous bonds, and $24,361,853 in commercial paper were put up as security behind the issues of notes. The total security was $37,395,353. The commercial paper employed was therefore about two-thirds of the amount provided.

The membership in the National Currency association on Aug. 3 consisted of ten national banks. By Oct. 28 three more national banks applied for membership, making a total of thirteen, at which figure it now stands.

The total cost of management and operation covering the entire period was $3,081.08. This cost apportioned among the various members amounted to 11.34 cents for each $1,000 of currency issued. The executive committee held in all fifty-nine meetings. The successful working of the Currency association is suggested by the committee in the following:

"The committee takes this occasion to express its appreciation of the hearty cooperation of the members at all times and to congratulate them on the successful operation of the law under its first application."

IN FOREIGN STOCK MARKETS.

LONDON, April 24.—Money and discount rates were steady today. The large supply of money made available through the repayment of $75,000,000 treasury bills will be absorbed Monday by the final call for the war loan. The stock market closed the week moderately active. Most of the business was in loans and Brazilian and Indian stocks with oil shares the feature in the miscellaneous section. Copper issues were easy. The tendency was undecided in the American section. Only a moderate amount of business was transacted and occasionally prices were lower. Bar silver, 23¾d per ounce. Money, 1¼@1½ per cent. Discount rates—Short bills, 2⅜ per cent; three months, 2 15-16@3 per cent.

PARIS, April 24.—Trading was quiet on the bourse today. Rentes, 72 francs 75 centimes. Exchange on London, 25 francs 55 centimes.

STRONG CLOSING IN WALL STREET

INVESTMENT SHARES UP

Total sales of stocks, 455,000 shares.

Total sales of bonds (par value), $3,650,000.

New York, April 24.—The stock market developed unlooked for strength in the latter half of today's short session, closing with an almost buoyant tone under the lead of United States Steel. That stock became the dominant feature, gaining 2 points to the accompaniment of rumors that the case of the government against the company would soon be decided on reasonable terms.

In the early part of the session leading shares were more or less neglected, interest against shifting to "war" issues, the metal shares, and Mexican Petroleum. Coppers held their prominence throughout, a few of the low priced issues making new price records.

Mexican Petroleum also broke all records, making a net gain of 4¼ points on confirmation of the report that the company had enered into an advantageous selling agreement with leading British interests.

Investment Class Up.

Reading, Union Pacific, St. Paul and other stocks in the investment class shared in the later movement. Stocks of the roads coming within the category of reorganized properties were under pressure, as also were some of the isolated industrials. Tractions gave early promise of greater strength, but soon relinquished initial advances.

Bonds were mainly irregular, total sales, par value, aggregating $3,650,000. United States bonds were unchanged on call during the week.

Announcement of the proposed suit against the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western railroad by Morris and Essex shareholders was not made until after the close of the market. Other news of the day, including irregularity in the London market, made no impression upon the local situation.

Banks Gain Much Cash.

The bank statement showed an unexpectedly large cash gain which was reflected in a reserve increase of $13,000,000. Loans expanded by a little over $10,000,000, an inconsiderable amount considering the heavy stock trading of the week.

Mercantile paper, 3¾@4 per cent. Sterling exchange easy; 60 day bills, 4.76; for cables, 4.7925; for demand, 4.79. Bar silver, 50⅝c. Mexican dollars, 38¼c.

Alaska Juneau
A Big Gold Mine in the Making
This property adjoins Alaska Gold and contains a wider continuation of the same lode. Its ore reserves of over 200,000,000 tons—estimated to yield around $1.00 a ton net—assure continuous production for more than a generation.
The advance Alaska Juneau attained last week eclipsed even the upturn recorded by Alaska Gold during its earlier market history. There are large potentialities in the stock for those who buy now.

M'MANUS WIDOW TELLS HOW MATE DIED IN MEXICO

Army of 400 Zapatistas Attacked Ranch House, She Writes Chicago Kin.

Thee days after her husband, John B. McManus, American rancher and stockman, was slain by Zapatistas near Mexico City on March 10, his widow wrote a letter to his sister, Miss Elizabeth McManus of 4950 Prairie avenue. The latter has just received it. On the envelope was stamped in red ink:

"Rec'd Through Department of State in Diplomatic Pouch."

The letter follows in part:

"As you perhaps know, I was not living at the ranch house when it all happened, but had taken the children to a place of greater safety some six weeks ago. We had all begged John to come with us, but he scoffed at the idea, saying that he was capable of protecting himself and his property. It is hard to imagine a case of greater courage and bravery, or a more wanton murder than his.

House Is Attacked.

"Thursday morning I went into breakfast, but had been there only about ten minutes when the servant rushed in saying that the Zapatistas were attacking the house. I called up every one I knew who could give immediate assistance, beginning with the Brazilian legation.

"They sent a machine out the minute that they got my call, with flags and protests, but arrived too late. It was only about three-quarters of an hour from the first telephone message until I got another from the house saying that John had been killed.

Attacked by 400 Mexicans.

"The house was beyond description. The windows were peppered with bullets—about 400 had joined the attacking party. Everything movable had been stolen."

Mrs. McManus then tells of the funeral, which was attended by virtually every American in Mexico City. Church services were impossible, and an American priest, disguised, read a service at the grave. The widow closes her letter:

"The policy of the United States government is decidedly inconsistent. They refuse to protect their citizens and their capital here, and it amounts to millions of dollars' worth of trade every year, and then are urging their subjects to solicit South American trade under exactly the same circumstances."

Woman Under Bed Fined $5.

The woman Charles Lumbard found under his bed at 1207 West Erie street Friday night declined to give her name in Judge Courtney's court yesterday. Through a Swedish interpreter she explained she had been drinking. Her fine was $5.

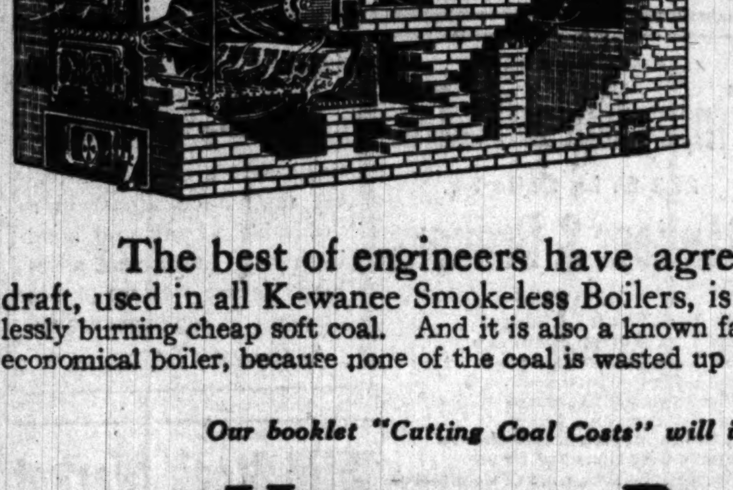
KEWANEE BOILER CO



Imitation Is Not Creation Look for the Name "KEWANEE"

The best that any boiler-maker can say of his product is that "it's as good as a Kewanee." That's the strongest recommendation he can advance. It wouldn't do to say "my boiler is better than a Kewanee," because the public knows that there is no better boiler in the world than the Kewanee steel fire-box heating boiler. But if, as he says (and can prove), his boiler is as good as a Kewanee, then it is worth buying no matter who makes it.

There is this to be remembered, however, and that is that you can give two sets of men the same patterns, the same materials and the same working conditions and they will not turn out two boilers of equal quality. The imitation is never the original, especially when the standard of the original has been set so high that there is no possibility of bettering it. The fact that the Kewanee has become the best boiler in the world has attracted many imitators who hope to unload on the Kewanee's reputation.

Some boiler-makers who have found it impossible on occasions to make sales have even gone so far as to palm off their boilers as "original Kewanees" and have stated so openly and baldly. Usually the owners of buildings are not careful to investigate the statement, and the result is that many boilers of inferior quality are sold as Kewanees, and the consequent troubles are brought home to us. It seems to us that when anything as important as a heating plant is contemplated, the owners of buildings should show enough interest to look on the boiler for the name and satisfy themselves, beyond the shadow of a doubt, that they are getting what they specify and pay for.

The whole life of your building is founded on your heating plant. The comfort and health of the occupants, the renting and selling value depend on the heating plant more than on architecture or any other one thing. So you ought to be as careful in the selection of your boiler as you are of your doctor or your lawyer. Whenever you buy a Kewanee steel fire-box heating boiler, you are buying the standard of the world, and you have behind you the greatest boiler-making factory and organization in the universe. It is a known fact among owners of buildings that a Kewanee boiler adds greatly to the value of the building if ever sold.

You have behind your purchase the world-famed Kewanee Boiler Company and the now famed KEWANEE SERVICE, which shows you how to install your boiler and how to get the most efficient service from it. If you take chances with unsupported statements, you are laying up trouble and expense which can be avoided by steering straight to the Kewanee Boiler, which is far better than any other and knows no equal anywhere. LOOK FOR THE NAME OF THE BOILER ON THE BOILER DOOR. If the word "Kewanee" isn't there, it isn't a Kewanee boiler, no matter what the salesman says.

The best of engineers have agreed that the Kewanee method of down draft, used in all Kewanee Smokeless Boilers, is the most practical and efficient method of smokelessly burning cheap soft coal. And it is also a known fact that a boiler that will burn soft coal smokelessly is an economical boiler, because none of the coal is wasted up the chimney as smoke.

MAROONS LOSE 2 MILE RELAY BY SIX INCHES

Tigers Nose Out Stagg's Men in Record Time; Several Marks Fall.

WEST SHOWS STRONG.

BY THOMAS D. RICHTER.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 24.—[Special.]—World's and intercollegiate records fell tumbling before the onslaught of hundreds of America's greatest athletes on Franklin field this afternoon in the greatest of the long series of relay carnivals of the University of Pennsylvania.

The new world's figure was set by the Penn team in the one mile relay event after a brilliant battle with Harvard. Princeton set an intercollegiate two mile relay mark, while Richards of Cornell in the high jump, and Phillips of Idaho, in the discus, also set new intercollegiate records.

The annual battle between east and west for the division of honors, resulted for the first time in several years, in a victory for the east. In six of the championship events the easterners triumphed, while the west took four events.

Maroons Lose by Six Inches.

Never was a greater two mile relay contested on Franklin field than the two mile contest in which McKenzie of Princeton fell over the line at the finish, breaking the tape six inches ahead of Campbell of Chicago in the record breaking time of 7:55 3-5.

After the first relay it was a battle royal between Princeton and Chicago, the famous record breaking Purdue team being hopelessly beaten from the second relay. In the first quarter Campbell of Purdue had a slight lead, with Overton of Yale second and Dartmouth third. Dismond of Chicago was neck and neck with Moore of Princeton. In the second half mile Atha of Princeton assumed the lead, with Stout of Chicago on his heels. Purdue had dropped back to fourth place and never was again dangerous.

Pass Yale on Last Relay.

Hayes of Princeton had a ten yard advantage over Stegeman, the Chicago man, when he touched off McKenzie, Campbell running for Chicago. Poucher of Yale worked up to the lead at the end of his quarter. He held it into the last 100 yards, Campbell and McKenzie dogging his steps.

Then the Chicago and Princeton men shot ahead, running neck and neck. It looked like a western victory when McKenzie collapsed over the line, but the judges gave the honor to the easterner.

Penn Clips World Time.

Although only three teams went to the line for the one mile relay, the battle between Penn and Harvard was so keen that a world's record fell. The Red and Blue team led the Harvard men by fifteen yards at the finish, the time being 3:18, one-fifth second better than the former world's figure, held by the New York I. A. A. C. Missouri ran, but was outclassed. Ted Meredith, the great Penn runner, covered his quarter mile in :48 2-5.

The four mile relay was a walkover for the Cornell team. The Ithacan's great quartet of distance men romped away at the start and won by nearly a hundred yards. The only real contest was between the two western teams, Wisconsin and Michigan. For more than two miles Wisconsin held the lead. Then in the third relay Ufer of the Ann Arbor team jumped into second place and held it until Carroll relieved him. Michigan kept its advantage to the end, Wisconsin landing third place.

Javelin Mark to Phillips.

The first record in a special event to go by the board was in the classic Greek event, the javelin throw. The new mark for college competition was set by John L. Phillips of Moscow, Idaho, representing the Idaho university. He hurled the spear 177 feet 4¾ inches, breaking the record of 169 feet 8¼ inches, held by Mike Dorizas, the Greek.

In setting this record Phillips took the honor away from another Idaho javelin thrower, Robert L. Nourse, representing Princeton university. Five minutes before Phillips' set his record the Princetonian had cracked the previous record with a toss of 176 feet 5⅝ inches. The fourth honors in this event also went to a westerner, Bashman of Notre Dame, who tossed his javelin 133 feet 2¾ inches.

New Mark for Richards.

Alma Richards, the Cornell giant, who holds the Olympic high jump title, tucked a new record into his pocket in this event in an exhibition leap after he had won the regular event. His leap was 6 feet 5 inches, an inch better than the former mark. He tried to beat the world's record of 6 feet 7 inches, held by Horine of California, but failed, getting over the bar and striking it with his hand. In the regular contest he jumped 6 feet 4 inches, beating Oler of Yale by an inch. Johnstone of Harvard tied James of Northwestern university for third at 6 feet.

Kelly First in Hurdles.

The first two honors in the 120 yard hurdle and fourth place also went west. Kelly of California, the world's record holder, won the final handily by two yards. Simpson of Missouri landed second, a yard ahead of Hammett of Penn State, who in turn outfooted Ward of Chicago a yard.

The hurdle event drew a field of twenty entries from east and west. In the first heat Cronley of Virginia won by a yard from Gubb of Cornell in :15 4-5, the fastest preliminary. Kelly of California accounted for the second heat, Ward of Chicago for the third, Simpson of Missouri the fourth, and Hammett of Penn State the fifth. Simpson, the lanky Missourian, won the first semi-final by a foot from Ward of Chicago in the fast time of :15 2-5. Kelly of California won the second semi-final from Hammett.

Drew Victor in Century.

The 100 yard dash was a clean cut victory for Drew. The famous colored sprinter, representing the University of Southern California, ran three races, each time being timed in 10 seconds. Smith of Michigan ran him second in a good finish. Knight of Chicago was third, and Howe of Colby fourth.

The broad jump also was a victory for the west, James of Northwestern taking this honor with 22 feet 6½ inches. The discus throw also was a triumph for the men from beyond the Alleghenies. Bachman of Notre Dame had the best toss in the discus with 137 feet 6 inches, and Ross of Michigan was fourth.

CUBS BLANKED BY CURVES OF SLIM SALLEE

Tall Southpaw Twirler Allows 2 Hits and Cards Take Duel, 3 to 0.

ZABEL IN HARD LUCK.

BY I. E. SANBORN.

St. Louis, Mo., April 24.—[Special.]—Slim Sallee shut out the Cubs with two widely separated hits and no runs today, and the Cards won an easy victory, 3 to 0, in the final scrap of the set.

Schulte and Phelan were the iron cross winners who managed to pestle safeties off the slim southpaw. Schulte's single came in the fourth and might have led to something if Miller had not robbed the great Zim of a hit right afterward. Phelan's double came in the ninth, and Bresnahan rushed in his pinch squad in an attempt to start something, but without result. Sallee pitched a magnificent game; not a man walked, and only one error was made behind him.

Tough Luck for Zabel.

It was Zabel's tough luck to be pitted against this air tight stuff without a chance in the world to win. George Washington hurled a swell game himself by comparison with most of the games we have seen this year. He would have held the Cards to a lone run if the great Zim had not pulled off some more of his phantom stuff in the seventh and if Klem had not shut his eyes on a plate decision in the eighth. The Cards, however, deserved the game, for they earned their run in the second on a pass and two singles.

Zabel gave three passes altogether and was tagged for five safeties, but in the face of Sallee's air tight hurling the Cub slabman's efforts were wasted.

Great Fielding Saves Cubs.

Brilliant fielding alone kept the Cubs from getting a bump at first. Huggins walked and Fisher fumbled Bescher's bounder. Long bunted and by great hustling Zabel forced Huggins out at third. Miller skied. Wilson singled sharply to left. Schulte raced in and made a swell throw, which beat Bescher to the pan by ten feet for the third out.

Zabel was not so lucky in the second, which he started by passing Beck. Butler popped out, then Snyder drove Beck to third on a single. Sallee struck out, but Huggins rapped a single to center, scoring Beck. Bescher whiffed the side out.

Phelan Escapes by Error.

The Cubs did not get a man on until one was out in the third, then Miller's error let Phelan live. Zabel's demise put Art on second, but Good fanned. Nobody else got to first until Schulte cracked a single to center with one gone in the fourth, then a horseshoe in Miller's mitt wrecked the opening. He stabbed Zim's hit with one hand and recovered in time to force Schulte at second. Zim perished stealing.

Huggins pulled a boner which helped out the Cubs in the fifth. He walked with only one out. Fisher went back and caught Bescher's Texas leaguer. Huggins ran over second before the catch and neglected to touch that base on his way back. The Cubs claimed the out and got the verdict from Emslie.

Zabel's Support Weakens.

Zabel's support went back on him in the seventh and blew a run over the pan. Beck singled, Butler bunted, and Zabel threw wild to first, losing both outs. Snyder rapped to Phelan, who pegged wide of second, and the bags were full with none out. Schulte came to the rescue with another swell play. He caught Sallee's short fly, then pegged home in plenty of time to have doubled up Beck, but Zim butted in and stopped the throw, letting the run score. Zim could have caught Butler overrunning second, but held the ball so long that Butler got back safely. Huggins forced Snyder at second and Bresnahan picked Butler off third in an attempted double steal.

Klem Generous to Cards.

Klem gave the Cards a third run in the eighth. Bescher singled and was sacrificed ahead by Long. Miller was thrown out by Phelan and Bescher tried to score from second on the play. Saier relayed the ball home ahead of Bob and Bresnahan cut his hand touching Bescher's spikes as the runner slid in, but Klem called him safe. Score:

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 24.—George Cutshaw's timely hitting featured today's 7 to 5 victory by Brooklyn over New York. Three times the little second baseman faced Mathewson with men on bases, and each time he supplied the necessary hit. New York bunched hits in the first inning off Appleton, knocking the youngster off the slab. Pat Ragan finished the game. Bill to Steve.

ST. LOUIS, April 24.—Steve. Well Steve we finnish up our serious here today and I will be tickeled to deth to get a way from this here place and some wheres else because Im sick in tired of looking at them St. Louis pitchers and there the luckest stiffs in the world. And they talk a bout pittsburg and Chicago bean dirty but they aint iether 1 of them as dirty is St Louis where you cant walk down the street with your eyes oppen with out you get a sinder blowed in to them.

Well Steve we half to take a st. car to get to the ball pk. here and if you dident oppen up the windows of the st. car you would smuther your self to deth so I was seting in a oppen window looking out of the window on the way to the ball pk. and a sinder blowed in to my eye and I couldent get it out but I dident say nothing a bout it on the bench or in the club house because I thot Bresnahan had forgot all a bout me and would leave me set on the bench like usule and I was seting there in missery on acct. of the sinder in my eye but I wouldent say nothing a bout it because I aint 1 of these here babys that crys when there hurt but 1st. thing you know a long come the 8 inning and this here Doaks pitching and all of a sudden Bresnahan hollers to me to go up and hit in the pinch. Well Steve if I had been 1 of these here babys I would of said a bout 1 of my eyes bean shut and refussed to go up there but I dident say nothing but at that Bresnahan should ought to of seen just looking at me that they was some thing wrong but no he dident see nothing and I guess he must be ½ blind so I had to go up there the way I was and what chanct did I have Steve no chanct at all.

Well they was 2 on base and 2 out and Doak throwed me a spiter and I had him out guest and was laying for it and I cracked it right on the nose and down the left foul line like a shot out of a canon and the boys on the bases come runing in and I was pretty near 2d. base when I herd the umps holling foul and I thot at st. he must be kidding because the ball hit 5 ft. in side the line but I seen in a minut he wasent kiding and I thot Bresnahan would have sence enough to make a holler and he dident say a word so I seen it was up to me so I says to the umps whats the matter with you and he says shut up and get in the game you big busher and when you hit 1 some wheres near fare I will give it to you and I says you wont never see 1 farer then that 1 and he says no not with you hitting so I says shut your mouth so he dident have no come back and they wasent nothing for me to do but pick up my bat and when Doak come with an other spiter and I had him guest right again but the ball start it right at my knee and broke down a bout 2 ft. and a ft. out side the plate and this here bum calls an other strike. Well Steve I seen a lot of punk umpireing but never nothing like that and I says Get your eyes oppen you big bum and he says what for you aint got nothing to show me so I says You should ought to be standing out the side of the ball pk. on the side walk with a dish in your hand for peopl to drop there money in to it and ware a sine I am blind and he dident have nothing to say to me back so Doak comes again with an other spiter or that is he was trying to throw a spiter because I can tell a mile a way what hes throwing so I knowed it was going to be a spiter and it come low and out side again so I past it up because I knowed it would brake way out side but the ball dident have no brake on it at all and come strate is a string and if Id knew they wasent going to be no brake to it I could of hit it from here to kansas City but when a man throws a spiter you expect it to brake and it aint my falt if hes such a bum that he cant make his spiter brake but at that the ball was way bellow my knees and I couldent of hit it with a broom but this here blind bat of a umps calls it an other strike and Im struck out.

Well Steve you ought to herd what I told him and I guess he wont for get me in no hurry and after the game in the club house I says to Bresnahan theys a fine lot of umps in this league and he says yes there pretty near as good is the pinch hitters and then he says what did you take your bat up with you for if you wasent going to use it and I says I guess you seen me use it on that 1 he called a foul and Bresnahan says yes and they must of been glue on the ball you hit and some of it come off on the bat and made you bat stick to your sholder so I seen they wasent no use argueing with him so I says your a fine stiff and he dident have nothing to say.

Well Steve thats fine luck for me to get my 1st. chanct to hit when I cant oppen my eyes on acct. of the traner was rubing some linmunt on Cheneys arm before the game and some of it splashed in my eyes and I couldent get them oppen and they hurt me so I couldent hardily see but Im not 1 of these here babys all the wile crying and I wouldent say nothing a bout how my eyes felt but went right up there and tride to do my best and then have a blind umps call you out on strikes that you couldent of hit with a fish poll. Fine luck eh Steve.

Respy. BILL.

Cub Sydelights.

St. Louis, Mo., April 24.—[Special.]—Cincinnati is next in line of march.

The Cubs left late tonight for Redland to open a four game series there tomorrow.

Darringer was benched in favor of Butler with good results in the Cardinal camp.

Zabel was in tough luck to be up against Sallee in two hit form, but he won't lose many games in which he delivers the stuff he had today.

The National league umpire staff never was any too good, and with Klem missing them it is a lot worse. He used to be considered "Old Reliable."

It did not make any difference to Sallee today which side of the plate the Cubs batted from. The game lasted only a little over an hour and a half and gave us a half holiday.

Schulte's throw to the plate after catching Sallee's fly in the seventh would have beaten Beck by three steps at least if the great Zim had not intercepted it. Nobody knows why Zim did it, because he did not even get Butler, who was half way between second and third when Zim caught the throw.

For a time it looked as if Saier was going to refuse to complete the double play in the fifth inning when Huggins pulled a skull play by failing to retouch second after running too far on a fly. Saier claimed the ball got to first before Huggins got back and persisted in arguing with Emslie about it, although the whole Cub team was yelling at him to throw to second. Finally Phelan induced Vic to hand him the ball, and he ran over, tagged the keystone, and Emslie allowed that play.

Notes of the White Sox.

The final game of the Sox-Browns series will take place at Comiskey park today.

Indications are that St. Louis will send Carl Weilman back to the slab today, although he was beaten opening day by the tremendous ninth inning rally. "Reb" Russell looks like the probable hurler for the Sox.

Ever since the season opened Joe Benz has insisted that he is ready to pitch, but no one had great confidence in the assertion. Yesterday was his first appearance and he pitched a steadier and stronger game than any Sox hurler so far.

Manager Rickey of the Browns threatened to enter a protest of Friday's game because of the apparent balk made by Wolfgang which the umpires wouldn't allow. According to the National league ruling, if the ball slips out of the pitcher's hands it is a balk and the runners may advance. In the American league such a thing is not a balk and the runners advance at their peril.

Although Buck Weaver was charged with three errors, it never fussed him a bit, and right after his third one he turned a sparkling play which spoiled a rally by the Browns. Agnew started the eighth and was safe on Buck's bad throw. Leary singled, then E. Walker cut a sharp grounder which Weaver scooped in deep short and shot to Roth in time to force Agnew at third. The next two men were easy.

Tommy Quinlan was largely responsible for the second pair of runs counted by the Sox in the third round. He was on third and Roth on second, with two out, when Pitcher James started to walk Fournier purposely. Just as James began his windup to pitch the second ball Quinlan started from third as if to steal home. James threw just a little harder than he had intended to, and the ball went clear over Agnew's head, letting in two runs.

Boland and Veach Are Main Factors in Overthrow of Cleveland, 6-0.

Cleveland, O., April 24.—Detroit won its eighth straight game today when it defeated Cleveland, 6 to 0. Boland, Detroit's Southern league recruit, pitched brilliantly and received great support. He held Cleveland to five hits, scattered through as many innings. Veach of Detroit made three singles and a double and received a pass in five trips to the plate. Score:

Pennock kept the Red Sox hitless after the second inning but walked four in succession in the eighth, a double play stopping the rally.

TIP TOPS SEND REED BACK.

New York, April 24.—Brooklyn Federal league club officials announced today that Shortstop Milton Reed had been returned to the Philadelphia Nationals. This action was taken in accordance with the policy adopted by President Ward of the Brooklyn Federals, which bars players from the local Federal league club when it is proved that other baseball organizations have a prior right to their services.

HOSE TROUNCE BROWNS, 4 TO 1, IN THIRD GAME

Braces of Runs in Second and Third Net the Locals Victory.

CLASH SEEN BY 12,000.

BY JAMES CRUSINBERRY.

Joe Benz, the Batesville butcher boy, proved to the world yesterday that typhoid fever isn't anything that can hurt anybody. Although he generally was supposed to be still convalescing from his illness of last winter, he went to the hurler's slab and held the Browns to three hits, the White Sox winning the contest, 4 to 1.

Joe and Shano Collins were about the whole show. Joe dealt out as fine an assortment of spitters and fast ones as a fellow would care to see, and his control was perfect. Shano gave an exhibition of clouting that was splendid, getting two doubles and a single in four times up and being robbed of a probable triple by Clarence Walker, who raced to right center and speared a great line drive with one hand.

Visitors Help Sox Score.

The only thing the matter with the victory was the manner in which the Sox got their four runs. One of Shano's drives drove in one run, but the others were kicked in by the blundering Browns, who fumbled and bolted and heaved the ball in weird fashion in the second and third innings.

Bill James was on the slab for the enemy at the start, but didn't seem to have anything, not even an ounce of luck. He got out in favor of Key Perryman, a lanky Georgian, after three rounds and, and Perryman submitted to a pinch hitter in the eighth, George Baumgardner finishing the slabbing.

Benz Holds Browns.

Up to the eighth the Brownies had only one hit off Benz, that being a fierce drive for three bases by Gus Williams in the fourth. His drive was responsible for the lone St. Louis tally. In the eighth Leary slammed safely to left for a base, acting as a pinch hitter, and in the ninth Austin beat out a bunt.

All the rest of the time the Browns were at the mercy of Benz. He was in two or three tight places, however, because Buck Weaver persisted in making mistakes. Buck was guilty of three errors, but Benz always was able to pitch himself out of the hole.

Jack Fournier and Tommy Quinlan made considerable noise with their bats, each getting a pair of singles, but none of the blows figured in the scoring.

Crowd of 12,000 at Game.

With regular summer weather on hand a big crowd was out to see the game, at least 12,000 persons being there to cheer for the south siders. One might have thought it were July instead of April, because it was a coatless crowd. The sun bleacher was a white mass, while at least half the fellows in the grandstand discarded their coats. Some even rolled up their sleeves, and soda pop and ice cream vendors did a thriving business, while the red hot man was in the dumps.

It didn't take the Sox long to put the crowd in an uproar of joy. In the second inning two runs were spanked home with considerable help from the enemy.

Fournier Cracked in Ribs.

Jack Fournier was first up, and James stung him in the ribs with the first pitched ball. Jack wobbled to first base, and then Jack Collins hit one on a line over Shotten's head for two bags, and Fournier legged it home from first. Lavan relayed to the plate in a useless effort to get Fournier, and his relay went to the grandstand. Before the ball was recovered J. Collins had raced home from second. The next three hitters accomplished nothing.

In the next inning the Browns tossed two more runs to the Sox. With one out, Quinlan made first on Pratt's error and Roth walked, and both advanced on E. Collins' sacrifice.

Wild Pitch Nets Two.

James then started to walk Fournier purposely, but made a wild pitch, and both Quinlan and Roth got home. James decided to pitch to Fournier after that, and the Frenchman singled, but was out trying to steal.

A triple by Williams at the start of the fourth gave the Browns a tally. Kauffman grounded out to Weaver. Williams staying on third, but he came home when C. Walker died on a slow roller to E. Collins. Score:

CHICAGO.

Vic Saier, Cubs' First Baseman, Who Is Truly a Young Veteran.

Victor Saier, Cubs first baseman, is presented to Chicago fans in a picture reproduced by rotogravure process, which appears as a supplement in another part of the paper.

BY HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

VICTOR S. SAIER, who was chosen as the most popular player of the Cub team by recent vote of Chicago fans, never saw a big league baseball game before he joined the Cubs four years ago. He had played only one season in professional company when he was drafted from the Lansing team of his home town. Expecting to sit on the bench, perhaps for several years, because Frank Chance, the Peerless Leader, was guardian of the initial sack, Saier received his baptism of fire his first season, and took part in half of the games played by the Cubs in 1911.

Saier seems almost like a veteran in these days of rapid changes in the personnel of baseball clubs, yet this is only his fifth season with the aggregation now presided over by Roger Bresnahan, who is Saier's fourth manager. This veteran of five years' major league experience will not be 24 years old until May 4, and he is one of the highest salaried members of the west side club.

Saier's contract was secured a year ago last winter when the inroads of the Federals were causing the club owners of organized baseball to sit up and take notice. The Federals had evinced a more than passing interest in the brilliant young player. Saier lent his ear and was carrying on an interesting flirtation with the new family in the block when disquieting rumors reached C. W. Murphy, who was still at the helm in Cub affairs de facto, as well as de jure.

Johnny Evers had not been passed the blue envelope, but was busily engaged in rounding up Cub stars, when, one winter day, he was summoned to Boss Murphy's office and told to run over to Lansing and sign the player. He was told how high he could go. He mentioned terms to Saier and went the limit authorized. Saier never says much, either on or off the field. So he did not reply, but merely looked bored. Murphy was displeased when Evers returned without Saier's contract, so the peppery Trojan advised his boss to make the trip himself if he thought he could do so much better.

So Murphy made the trip to Lansing and returned with Saier's contract. He did better than Evers—that is, for Saier—a matter of over $1,000 per annum better, according to report. That is how one of the young stars on the team is one of the high priced players in the National league.

Saier was born in Lansing, Mich., on May 4, 1891, and has always lived there. He has played ball ever since he can remember, and in almost every position on the diamond, except never regularly as a pitcher. As a boy he attended St. Mary's High school in Lansing for four years and was graduated in 1908. While at St. Mary's Saier took part in football, playing in both the line and back field.

After graduation from St. Mary's Saier attended the business college connected with the school for a year and one-half. Perhaps there is where he learned his business acumen. During the summer of 1909 he was a member of the Oldsmobile nine of Lansing, which played games with neighboring towns and was supported in part by the automobile company whose name it bore. The players received no regular salary, but played on what is technically known as a "split." So, if the gate receipts were good, the players received something for their efforts, but if the crowd failed to come out expenses consumed the receipts. Saier confesses the picking was uncertain.

In 1910 Vic accepted his first professional engagement with the Lansing team of the Southern Michigan league. He played first base in 141 games, including the post season series necessary when Lansing and Kalamazoo tied for first place, which was won by Kalamazoo. Saier was second in the league batting list with .339, and stole forty-two bases. He was topped by "Red" Bowser, who was secured by the White Sox, but did not survive the acid test.

Saier's record with Lansing was good enough to attract the attention of the Cubs and he was impressed as utility man in case anything happened to Manager Chance. Even when Chance was knocked out by a pitched ball, Hofman was given a chance at the first station because of Saier's youth and inexperience. But Hofman was inferior on thrown balls to the youngster from Michigan, and his absence weakened the outfield, so Saier got his chance and made good.

The recruit's first position at the plate was not impressive, and even after he made good on defense there was some question whether his hitting would measure up to the major league standard. He was inclined to indulge in a peculiar crowding hitch as he swung at the ball. Chance advised him to choke his bat more and taught him a freer swing. Then he said the recruit "would do." He did.

One of the first traits noticed when Saier took Chance's stand was his absolute lack of fear of opposing base runners. He did not attempt the tricks of blocking which older heads sometimes turn, but he occupied all the space to which he was entitled and gave up no ground which belonged to him. His husky build does not make him a soft subject for bumping.

Saier throws right handed and bats left handed. He stands five feet eleven inches and weighs 185 pounds. He is unmarried.

PITCHER JOHNSON OF SOX TO THE VENICE COAST TEAM.

Trimming the White Sox squad of athletes was started last night when Ellis Johnson, one of the young pitchers, was released to the Venice club of the Pacific Coast league. Manager Rowland announced the deal had been made and Johnson had come to terms with the coast leaguers and would leave at once for the far west. The White Sox, however, did not let the young slabman get away for good, as he was sent there with an option to repurchase him in the fall. The Venice club also secured Joe Berger while the Sox were out there training. Last season Johnson pitched for the Toronto club of the International league. In the opinion of Manager Rowland, the boy is of big league caliber, but needs more experience.

Whist Query.

Chicago.—[To the Editor.]—How is the following scored? A makes hearts, and eventually secures three hearts, which is doubled. A leads ace of hearts, B puts on two spades, trick is turned; A leads king of hearts, B puts on three of hearts, A calls renig, and on playing the hand out makes one trick less than contract. How is this scored? S. E.

Answer—A would have the privilege of taking 100 points for the revoke or three tricks from the adversary. In this case he should certainly take the three tricks. This would give him five odd or 80 below the line, but he would receive no bonus for making his contract or the extra trick.

YALE NOSE OUT BROWN, 3-2.

Providence, R. I., April 24.—Lack of control on the part of the Browns' pitchers was a factor in Yale's 3 to 2 victory today. Brown obtained its two tallies on a home run. Score:

WHALES HALTED BY RAIN AFTER STARTING WELL

Have One Run Lead Over Packers When Wetness Prevents Game.

BY J. J. ALCOCK.

Kansas City, Mo., April 24.—[Special.]—Once more rain stepped in and stopped the Whales after they were well started to a victory. Tinker's men were enjoying a one run lead, secured in the first round, when the wetness intervened and forced the athletes to seek cover.

Yesterday's downpour was followed by another heavy fall this morning, and the grounds were in bad shape when the Whales and Packers appeared for practice. Still, they could have gone through a regulation game if the weather man had not turned on the faucets again after the battle had commenced. A double header will be staged tomorrow.

Hanford Crosses Plate.

With Southpaw Packard pitching for the Packers, Tinker sent his right handed hitters to the outfield. Hanford beat a hit to short when Rawlings fell, and took second because Johnny heaved badly while sprawled on the ground. Mann and Zwilling singled, scoring Hanford. Wilson sacrificed and Zeider walked, filling the sacks. Beck fouled out and Packard tossed out Tinker.

George McConnell was just ready to start heaving when the rain arrived. After half an hour without any letup the umpires called the game off.

Hendrix and Johnson will pitch tomorrow if a double header is put on.

There were nearly 2,000 fans out despite the punk weather. Crafty George Tebeau put on a Danny Shay day at the A. A. park in honor of the return of his old manager, and the trick helped draw the home folk.

Chicago Next Stop.

Tomorrow night the Whales and Packers will hop to Chicago for three games, beginning on Monday. After that both clubs will start their first swing around the eastern circuit.

Jimmy Smith left tonight for his home in Pittsburgh. He will rejoin the club at Buffalo next Friday. It required six stitches to sew up the wound in the young shortstop's hand.

Tinker believes the formation of two ten club leagues would solve the baseball war problem. A couple of years without any cash return would reduce each circuit to eight cities, according to Manager Joe.

Ed Dexter, treasurer of the Cubs 'way back in 1876, dropped into the Hotel de Whale this morning and had a lengthy chat with Charley Williams.

MICHIGAN VICTOR BY 2 TO 0.

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 24.—[Special.]—Sheehy reached first on a close play in the sixth and scored when Western Reserves' infield threw the ball away. Brandell and Benton each tripled in the seventh, scoring Michigan's second run.

SEMI-PROS OPEN THIS AFTERNOON

Five City League Contests to Feature Start; Giants Return to City.

ARMY VS. ROGERS PARK

Five parks on the City Baseball league circuit will open their gates this afternoon for the first round of the regular schedule. Normal Park, the sixth home grounds in the league, will not open for another week. Another big feature will be the return of the American Giants from their annual winter trip to California. The Milwaukee White Sox will be their opponents in their first local game.

The United States Army team will play the old Rogers Park team at Weeghman's Federal league park, while the Gunthers will play their second game of the year against the Mathiesens at Logan Square. The recent warm weather has enabled the semi-pro players to get the stiffness out of their arms and legs and some fast games are expected today. City games are as follows:

Ideals and White Giants at Twenty-second and Rockwell streets.
I. P. C.'s and Romeos at Polonia park, Elston avenue and Blackhawk street.
Magnets and West Ends at De Paul field.
Mutuals and Murleys at Kedzie and Elston avenues.

Other semi-pro games follow:

Rogers Parks and United States Army at Federal League park; Niesen's Gunthers and Mathiesens at Diversey and Milwaukee avenues; Milwaukee White Sox and American Giants at Schorling's park; Kramer Colts at Roseland Eclipse park; Lawndales and Jake Stahls at Sixteenth street and Avers avenue; Oaklands and Regent Billfirds at Forty-sixth street and Cottage Grove avenue; Loudins and Johnson Tigers at Kilpatrick and Ferdinand avenues.

Colonials and Crawford Tigers at Forty-fourth avenue and Twenty-sixth street; Knick Colts and Trouters at Elston and Western avenues; Edelweiss and Magnus Colts at Lawndale and Chicago avenues; Carr Colts and Maroons at Archer and Kedzie avenues; Chicago Rivals and Stanton Parks at Grand and Monticello avenues; Nappertandys and Chicago Whitings at foot of Addison street; Netzel's North Ends and Topaz at Southport avenue and Marianna street.

Inquisitive Fans.

Chicago.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—Please advise us two how much percentage of the gate receipts the traveling team gets. TWO ORTS.

It differs in different leagues and different cities. In the two major leagues the general rule is this: The visiting team gets 12½ cents for each 25 cent admission and 20 cents each for all other admissions. In some minor leagues the rule is to give the visiting team a guarantee, depending on the size of the league, with a privilege of 40 per cent of the gate.

H. Hoffman, Chicago.—Herzog, Lee Magee, and Plank are Americans. Fisher, Zimmerman and Phelan of the Cubs batted over 280 last season, but only Zimmerman played regularly through the season.

F. F.—Jack Breton came to the White Sox from the Kansas City club in part payment for Mattick and Lange.

Michigan City, Ind.—[Editor of The Tribune.]—A is pitching for the home team and in the eighth inning retires for a pinch hitter with the score 3 to 2 in his favor. B, who succeeds him, is hit for two runs in the ninth, thereby losing, 4 to 3. Who is credited with the defeat? G. J. O.

There are no rules governing this point, but most league secretaries used to charge such a defeat to "B." Official records now charge each pitcher with the runs earned off him and credit him with the number of innings pitched.

W. O. J., city—The weight of Manager Rowland of the White Sox is 178 pounds.

TIGERS BEAT CORNELL, 1-0.

Princeton, N. J., April 24.—Princeton won a well played baseball game from Cornell today, 1 to 0. It was a battle between Pitchers Deyo of Princeton and Russell of Cornell, with the argument in favor of the Princetonian, who only allowed two hits. Score:

MAGNATES BAR BASEBALL PEACE

St. Louisans Who Attended Chicago Meeting for Continued War.

TOPIC NOT BROACHED.

St. Louis, Mo., April 24.—Baseball magnates of St. Louis who attended the conference of baseball men in Chicago yesterday were a unit today in declaring that no peace in the baseball war was in sight.

"There is nothing in this peace talk," Philip Ball said, chief owner of the St. Louis Federals, who attended the conference. "I have had no discussion regarding any plan by which I was to become owner of the St. Louis Americans or of the St. Louis Nationals."

President Hedges of the St. Louis Americans said:

"In my opinion there will be no peace until one of the warring leagues 'blows.'"

There was no action locally yesterday in the alleged movement to bring about peace in baseball. It was learned that R. B. Ward, the Brooklyn Federal league magnate, accompanied by President Robertson of the Buffalo Federals, had left for the east Friday night. President Johnson of the American league declared positively that there was no movement on at the present time to bring about peace with the Federal league. President Gilmore of the Federal league still stood firm in his assertion that the Feds weren't seeking peace with O. B. Charles Weeghman, president of the local Federals, spent yesterday playing golf, and in the evening called THE TRIBUNE up by telephone to ask if there was anything new regarding the peace movement.

BRITISH TITLE HOLDER NURSES PUGILISTIC CROWN

FEARING DEFEAT, WELSH PREFERS SHORTER FIGHTS

Lightweight Champion Sticks to Ten Round, No Decision Contests.

BY RAY C. PEARSON.

Now that the heavyweight situation has become settled with a white man occupying the throne for the first time in nearly seven years, there is likely to be revived interest in the lightweights, who always have taken up a prominent place in pugilism's spotlight. The Havana battle dimmed the doings of Champion Freddie Welsh and others who are striving to take the title away from him for a time, but the excitement over Willard's defeat of the negro, Jack Johnson, has about subsided, chiefly because of the new champion's announcement that he probably will not fight a championship battle for a year and because the crop of challengers is mediocre, to say the least.

Freddie Welsh, around whom the greatest amount of interest naturally centers, is still plodding the ten round route and carefully avoiding any chance of becoming entangled in long distance imbroglios. His smartness and judgment is getting the shekels in chunks and his "safety first" policy is the thing that is keeping the crown on top of his British head.

Welsh Veteran in Ring.

The fans of the country naturally are beginning to wonder how long the remarkable cleverness of the champion will hold out; how long he will be able to remain away from a clip on the chin that will lay him out flat and deprive him of the honors he won by the decision bout from Willie Ritchie in London last summer. Welsh has been a long time in the game, and it is an old saying with the boxing fans that the best of them meet the knockout stuff if they stick long enough.

It is the opinion of the majority of fans that there are several lightweights who could hang the "K. O." on Freddie in a twenty round bout. Among these are Charley White, the Chicago boy, who probably is the best hitter of the whole bunch; Joe Shugrue, the Jersey City "busy man," and we mustn't overlook our old friend Willie Ritchie, the ex-champion, who only recently gave Welsh almost more than he could handle in a set founder at New York.

All Want Long Fight.

The three boys mentioned would be most tickled to death if Welsh would go up for a long battle, but the Britisher is showing no inclination to indulge in hostilities that extend over ten rounds. In his last few fights Welsh has discovered that his rivals have been trying mighty hard to put over in ten rounds what they think they could certainly do in bouts of a longer distance—that is, knock nim out.

Charley White tried particularly hard to accomplish the trick in their last mixup at Milwaukee, but failed, making a poorer showing than in their first encounter in the same ring, which resulted in a draw. The champion set the pace to suit himself in that bout and not once took a chance. He indulged in footwork which was just about as pretty as any one every looked at, dancing in and planting left jabs, then stepping away from White's well intended "come backs." That was the sort of battle Welsh fought for the full ten rounds and his speed and cleverness were sufficient to earn him the verdict.

Wagner Pulls Trick.

Just as evidence of how necessary it is for Mr. Welsh to keep his eyes open in these strenuous times we recall a recent trick played on Freddie in Toledo, where he boxed "Young" Wagner over the ten round route. When Welsh made the match he didn't figure Wagner any different from all the other boys he had met; in fact, he probably thought that Wagner was "soft picking." But there was one thing he didn't dope out, and that was just who this Wagner person was and his record for using the gray matter. His failure to get a line on his opponent in advance of the contest nearly caused him to meet the fate so many other lightweights have mapped out for him.

Welsh probably didn't know that Wagner is none other than a brother of Charley White, the boy who twice fought him. He evidently wasn't aware that Wagner has been romping around the country meeting all classes of lightweights for the last three or four years and giving a good account of himself, so Freddie looked upon the match as a "setup."

"Brainy Bowers" Stunt.

The awakening was a rude shock to the champion. It came in the form of a right uppercut which was landed on the jaw just after Wagner had pulled a "Brainy Bowers" stunt. Shortly after the start of the eighth round Wagner, while in a clinch with the champion, whispered in his ear: "Your tights are coming down."

Breaking from the clinch, the champion looked down to see if this was true, and, quick as a flash, Wagner shot the right uppercut to his chin. Reports say that Wagner was so surprised that his trick had "caught" the wise Mr. Welsh that he failed to land the wallop effectively, thereby saving the champion from what was intended for a knockout. After that Welsh had a lot of respect for Charley White's brother.

It is surprising how a wise ringster will fall for a trick that's as old as the hills. That "tights falling down stuff" dates back to the old days of bare knuckle fighting. It's like the hidden ball stunt the ball players revive every now and then. When a fellow gets caught it isn't because he doesn't know it but because he doesn't believe anybody has the nerve to try such shopworn tricks.

BADGERS BAR BILL WALTERS

Milwaukee, Wis., April 24.—Billy Walters of Waukegan, Ill., welterweight, who disappeared from the South Side Athletic club half an hour before he was to go on with Billy Kramer in a ten round bout a few weeks ago, was indefinitely suspended today by the state boxing commission. Walters' defense was that the crowd was too small. Sanctions for shows were granted as follows: Marinette, April 28; Sparta, April 29; Racine, April; Appleton, May 5.

Chicago Holders of A. A. U. Titles.

SPERO VORRES 125 POUNDS

BEN REUBEN MIDDLEWEIGHT, HEBREW INSTITUTE

EARL CADDOCK 175 POUNDS AND HEAVYWEIGHT, C.A.A.

BEN REUBEN of the Chicago Hebrew institute, Earl Caddock of the C. A. A., and Spero Vorres of the Olympic A. C. were Chicago wrestlers who won National A. A. U. titles in the annual wrestling championships held at San Francisco last week. Reuben won the 158 pound title for the second successive time, while Caddock won the 175 pounds and heavyweight championships. Vorres took the honors in the 125 pound class. The work of the Cherry Circle grappler in winning two titles the same night was a surprise to local followers of amateur wrestling, as he was given stiff competition in the tryouts held in the C. A. A. gymnasium last month. Reuben is a veteran and his victory was expected. It is said he will turn professional.

GOPHERS GET BOXING BILL: GOV. HAMMOND SIGNS IT.

St. Paul, Minn., April 24.—Gov. Hammond late today signed the boxing bill passed in the closing days of the Minnesota legislature, which adjourned last Thursday, legalizing ten round no-decision boxing matches in the three largest cities of the state—Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Duluth.

The governor announced the appointment of two of the three members of the commission that will supervise all boxing contests in the state. They are Frank B. Thompson of St. Paul and George P. Douglas of Minneapolis. The third member, the governor stated, will be a Duluth man.

KENOSHA BOUTS TO DRAW CROWD

Chicago Interested in Conley-Ritchie, Sherman-Murphy Scraps.

BY WALTER H. ECKERSALL.

With Frankie Conley of Kenosha meeting Johnny Ritchie of South Chicago and Joe Sherman of Memphis scheduled to meet Jimmy Murphy, the local Italian lightweight, in the main bouts, a large delegation of local fistic fans is expected to make the trip to Kenosha on Tuesday night. Freddie Hedlin of Logan square, who is matched to meet Matty McCue in the eight round semi-windup, announced yesterday he had sold 500 tickets in his neighborhood.

According to Matchmaker George Tully, who was in the city yesterday, a capacity house is looked for. A special train will leave over the Northwestern at 6:40 o'clock on the night of the show, and it will return immediately after the last contest. Popular prices of $1, $2, and $3 will be charged.

Jimmy Clabby, the Hammond middleweight, who is matched to box ten rounds with George Chip in Marinette Wednesday, will leave for the battleground tomorrow accompanied by Manager Larney Lichtenstein. Following this fight, Clabby will go to Brooklyn, where he has signed to meet either Young Ahearn or Frank Mantell on May 4. He also has offers to box in New York on May 12, in Denver on June 5, in Kansas City on June 12, and in Atlanta on June 29.

Bert Stanley and Cy Smith, who will meet in a ten round bout in Oshkosh on May 4, have settled down to hard training, according to Matchmaker Sam Howard. The contest is attracting a lot of attention in the Badger city.

I. B. A. BOWLING TOURNEY OPENED BY MAYOR ELECT

Biggest Alley Event Outside A. B. C. Meets Offers $10,458 in Prizes.

Mayor Elect William Hale Thompson made his first public address since his election yesterday, when he formally opened the eighteenth annual tournament of the Illinois Bowling association at the Randolph alleys. He was introduced to the bowlers by President Oscar W. Schmidt, and his first remark was to deny that he was a bowler of any skill. He spoiled the veracity of his statement immediately afterward by rolling a ball down the No. 15 alley that knocked over ninety-seven pins, all but three of the setups falling from the vigor of his shot.

Just ahead of the new Chicago executive's appearance Secretary Abe Langtry of Milwaukee and Treasurer Frank L. Pasdeloup of Chicago, the American Bowling congress officials, presented ten Chicago men with medals for the national championships and for good work on league circuits during the year. Five medals were awarded the Barry-Ketteler team of the Knights of Columbus league for winning the team title at Peoria last month, while Mattie Faets drew down the all-events medal presented by Secretary Langtry. The K. of C. players who won medals were Sam Murray, Eddie Kell, Joe Russell, Ted Svoma, and Tony McGlone.

Retiring I. B. A. Champions.

The retiring champions of the I. B. A. are the Blatz team of the City league that won a year ago with 2,975; Kerpen and Holden, with 1,273; Al Toemmel, with 84, and George Ahrbeck, with 1,883.

The present meet is the largest ever held by any bowling body, outside of the A. B. C., although a slight falling off in the doubles and singles took place in the entries.

The five man and all events contests each showed a gain. While the cash hung up for prizes is smaller this year than a year ago, the difference is due to the added money a year ago from the I. B. A. treasury. A total of $10,458 is offered to the winners this year.

Three Squads in Action.

Three squads rolled against the pins last night in the five man event, low scores being the rule. A heavy card is billed for today, when the opening games in the doubles and singles will be rolled. From now on bowling will be continuous until May 14, prizes being awarded two days later.

THE O'Learys first came into prominence twelve years ago, when they won the American Bowling congress championship in Indianapolis, and they have always been bidders for tournament honors. Last fall they won the city championship on the Randolph alleys with the score of 2,909 and repeated last week by landing first place in the big South Side bowling tournament with 3,125 on Blouin's Blue Island alleys. Nick Bruck and Glen Fisher are the only men left on the team who were with it when it won the national title. The other three, Rudy Polacek, Ned Nelson, and Will Metcalf, have been members the last few seasons and helped the older stars to land their new honors. Nelson and Metcalf won the two men city meet and Nelson took down the all events and city individual title a couple of years ago.

COLORADO MEN ARRIVE HERE ON NATIONAL TOUR

The Colorado Springs chamber of commerce delegation arrived in Chicago yesterday after a seven day trip from Colorado Springs to Indianapolis over the Pike's Peak ocean to ocean highway.

The object of this trip is to promote a closer acquaintance and more friendly relations between the people of Colorado and those of the central states and to encourage the good roads development of great transcontinental highways. This is the second tour made by the Pike's Peak ocean to ocean highway to prove its claims to the recognition as a transcontinental highway of the first caliber.

Roads in Good Shape.

The tour which was made in the last seven days has proven that the Pike's Peak route is a feasible route from Colorado Springs to Indianapolis. The party found the roads in perfect condition and the route well marked with the official Pike's Peak marker, a red and white band each ten inches wide and a steel marker representing a snow capped mountain.

The Coloradoans pulled up in front of the Congress hotel only a few minutes behind schedule time. The run from Indianapolis, 206 miles, was made in a little more than twelve hours, allowing for stops at Lebanon, Frankfort, Lafayette, Remington, Rensselaer, Crown Point, and Hammond.

Crosses Center of Country.

The highway crosses the central part of the United States in a line as straight as the contour of the country permits. From New York and Washington it follows the national old trails road to Indianapolis; from that city through Springfiedl, Ill.; Hannibal and St. Joseph, Mo.; Belleville, Kas.; Colorado Springs, Colo., and Vernal Utah. From that point to Salt Lake City it has its own distinctive organization and west of Salt Lake City to San Francisco it follows the line of the Lincoln highway.

The Coloradoans who arrived have traveled exactly 1,586 miles, with a running time of approximately 68 hours, or on an average of 25 miles an hour.

The Chicago control will extend over Sunday. The party is scheduled to leave here at 7:30 o'clock Monday morning en route to St. Louis by way of Davenport, Ia., and Quincy, Ill. More than 250 towns are included in the itinerary and the trip covers 3,000 miles.

May 1st the Day
For the Second Annual National Efficiency
Demonstration

IN every part of the country May Day will see a great demonstration of the economical use of gasoline by FRANKLIN cars. Establishing what an automobile can do in miles per gallon of fuel under average conditions is a big step in establishing facts from which the value of a car can be judged.

Fill a one-gallon can, attach it to the carburetor, start the car, and see how far it will run.

This is the plan: We, and over 150 FRANKLIN dealers with us, are in the test. No matter what the weather or the roads, the runs will be made. Nothing but a stock car can be used. The entire test will be supervised by a representative of the newspapers and Automobile Club (or City) officials, who will also attest to the results.

This nation-wide test tells volumes about efficiency to the owner and prospective automobile owner. Watch the papers May 2d and 3d for the local and national reports.

See the car that has always set the mark for efficiency.

Four rows of hard steel coils—there are three thousand "grips" in them—count 'em—are incorporated in the tread. They prevent wear, punctures and cuts. Not the rubber but the steel Tiger's Claws take the wear just as the nails in your shoes must take the first wear. Glass cannot puncture the tire because it is stopped by the steel coils. A four run lead in the first inning off of Henry, a new University of Minnesota pitcher, sent Coach Pat Page's Maroons ahead for the game yesterday on Stagg field. With Shorty Des Jardien pitching superior ball, the Chicago nine won, 6 to 3. Kixmiller and Gray made triples for two of the eight Maroon hits. Pitchers on both sides kept the swats scattered, the heaviest slugging coming with three bunched hits in the opening period, when Henry was taken out. Des Jardien yielded five hits, and only one of these was for an extra base. Not a single Maroon batter struck out in the course of the game, all but one of them being out on flies or at first.

Opens with Single.

Cole, the first batter, led off with a single. R. McConnell reached first on an error. Kixmiller scored both with a triple. Gray walked and Kixmiller scored on Cavin's sacrifice. Hart was hit by the pitcher. Des Jardien singled and Gray scored on two outfield flies, leaving two on base when the side was retired.

Gray tripled and scored on a fly in the third, and Cavin tallied after a walk, a sacrifice, a stolen base, and a single in the eighth.

Gophers Score in Sixth.

Minnesota's first tallies came in the sixth, Langley and Diedrich scoring on Lawler's single after Langley had singled and Diedrich doubled. Langley scored again in the eighth on a single, error, base on balls, and outfield fly. Score:

CHICAGO LOSES GLOVE TOURNEY

Gets One Decision and One Draw Out of Six Bouts in Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., April 24.—[Special.]—Chicago boxers won only one of the six matches in the intercity amateur boxing tournament with Cleveland boxers tonight. They lost the decisions in four bouts and earned one draw.

Lee McMahon Fred Gilmore's clever and hard hitting 135 pounder, had the satisfaction of taking home the one victory. He outpointed Kid Karpinski in a sensational four round bout. Tommy Kelly of Chicago had the satisfaction of getting a draw with Cuppy Logan of this city.

Give Classy Exhibition.

Gilmore's string of boxers gave the flashiest exhibitions ever furnished in this city by a visiting team. Not one was outclassed, although there was no question about the justice of the verdicts in the four bouts awarded to the Clevelanders.

There were no knockouts. Every bout went the limit of four rounds, though sessions in the Wyss vs. Bowman bout and Strawhacker vs. Peters bout were shortened to save the Chicago boys.

Inasmuch as the Cleveland team contained two national champions, Howard Root and Arthur Strawhacker, three runners up in the late national tournament, and one ex-champion, it is evident that the visiting team was forced to grapple with a sextet of sterling amateur performers.

Will Be Invited Again.

The visitors performed so cleverly that it is certain they will be brought here for another intercity tournament in the fall. Summaries:

115 pounds—Julius Walters, Cleveland, beat Teddy Murphy, Chicago, four rounds.

CAMPI BEATS YOUNG FITZ.

New York, April 24.—Eddie Campi of San Francisco outpointed Billy Fitzsimmons of Yonkers in a ten round bout tonight. Campi was too clever for Fitzsimmons. Bob McAllister of California outfought Tom McCarty of Montana in a ten round contest in Brooklyn. McCarty weighed 178½ and McAllister 162½. "Kid" Graves of Milwaukee and Harry Stone of New York fought a ten round draw in Brooklyn.

ROBIDEAU DEFEATS THOMAS.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 24.—[Special.]—Sam Robideau, the local lightweight, and Jack McCarron, the Allentown middleweight, were winners in the double windup at the National A. C. tonight. Robideau decisively trounced Al Thomas of New York, while McCarron defeated Tommy Teague, champion of the navy. The sailor narrowly escaped a knockout in the fourth session when he took the count of nine.

RIVERVIEW GETS PANAMA TRIALS

Bicycle Races to Pick Western Team to Be at Velodrome.

Riverview's new velodrome has been given permission to hold all of the qualifying trials to pick the bicycle team that will represent the western district in the amateur championships in August at the Panama exposition in San Francisco.

According to word received from the exposition officials, the sum of $3,500 has been set aside to cover the expenses of the visiting cyclists who may be chosen in the different districts, the riders being entitled to all legitimate expenses during the time that they are away from home competing.

The exposition officials will stage two big events. The first will be on Aug. 2 and will cover 100 miles, a cross country affair that will finish inside of the grounds. The second will be a team race, east vs. west, and will cover fifty miles. This will be run Aug. 4. All preliminaries in different portions of the country must be decided and the results definitely announced before July 11.

To that end the velodrome officials have decided to stage the first of these elimination trials on Memorial day at the new Riverview course. It is probable that the first of these will cover fifty miles, the event to be started early in the day, so that the regular program of events will not be interfered with.

Al Kreuger and Frank Hennessey finished second; H. Becker and George Schwartz, third; A. Henest and R. Anderson, fourth.

LOCAL GOLFERS START PLAY ON ROUGH GREENS

Tricks of Ball on Brambled Rectangles Bring Unusual Number of Kicks.

BY FREDERICK DONAGHEY.

The golf season of 1915 started yesterday for some thousands of Chicago players, although most of them were compelled to do their putting on the brambled and corrugated rectangles called "temporary greens" in the argot of the game in this latitude. Although the weather of the last fortnight and the streaming sun heat were used as an argument why the regular greens should be opened ["if only for today!" as most players pleaded], the green committees were obdurate, refusing to force the season by even a week.

Down at Beverly Country club, however, the players were permitted to putt on a corner of the green at most of the holes; and concessions of the kind were made at two or three other clubs.

Yells of anguish were heard from the high-handicap players who discovered for the first time that changes had been made in their course with a view of adding to its value as a test of golf. The more-than-90 players invariably allege that changes of the kind are made to please the under-80 members; and the accusation is always followed by low, ominous mutterings having something to do with the advisability of resigning and starting a new club.

Tradition Is Observed.

Tradition in the matter was duly observed yesterday. These groups of April and May rebels may be depended upon to prove, by pencil and pad, that the club is supported and made possible and kept alive and going by the 70 per cent who play over 90, and not by the 20 per cent who play under 80. Which, of course, is true.

The malcontents always stick; the new club is never formed, and by the idea of June the over 90 men have discovered that their game is the better for the changes in the course, and that the under 80 men have not measurably lowered their handicap ratings either in the club or the U. S. G. A. The fact is that green committees do not make arbitrary or whimsical changes in the course, and that not even a trap is sunk or a bunker thrown up in these days of scientific golf-scaping without as much regard and calculation for the benefit of the over 90 man as for the crack who shoots his golf at par or thereabout.

Remapping at Skokie.

An example of this sort of remapping is to be observed at the Skokie course. Golfers who have been south since September last have returned to Chicago to rave about the course at Belleair, Fla. which has been called the ultimate utterance in American courses by a score of competent amateurs and not a few professionals. [This is a very good place to interject my opinion that the amateur's judgment in the matter is, nine times in ten, of more value than the average professional's; for the latter, ten times in a possible ten, holds that only that course which he designs, oversees, and directs can possibly possess merit.]

When the Skokie officials decided that they should remake their course, they sent for Ross, who designed Belleair. They could do no more. They have sought the market carrying, in the opinion of scores of seasoned amateur golfers, the maker of courses who has proved the worth of his goods. The brand of golf which the new Skokie course demands will, doubtless, be a bit stiff for the over 90 man; but the course itself will, it is expected, take rank within the season with Chicago Golf, Glenview, and Flossmoor.

Problems at Jackson Park.

The third Saturday test of the registry system at the public links in Jackson park proved to the commissioners that the new plan needs further change and modification, although the corrections to be made this time are of their own motion, and not the result of shouted, screamed, and written dissatisfaction by the multitude of players who use the long course.

Not more than half the registered players showed up to take their places yesterday from 5 o'clock to 9 o'clock a. m., and there were other defections between 11 o'clock and 1 p. m. In every case the vacancies were filled with players holding numbers; but this device of maintaining an unbroke flow of four ball matches does not make for the good which the registry system was designed to produce.

Registered Players Lose Turns.

In a score of cases, at least, number holders lost their turn to play because of the failure to show of the men and women who, on the preceding Saturday, gobbled up the registered positions. The numbered player would make a calculation based on the plan of alternate fours of registered and nonregistered players, would leave the course, and, returning, would find that the filling up of the holes left by the defections had led to the passing of his number half an hour or more earlier than he had estimated.

A paragraph in yesterday's TRIBUNE having to do with the condition of the pits on the long course also brought a statement from the commission to the effect that all the pits and traps on the course are to be made over and that their present bad condition is not remedial by any other treatment.

CULVER DOWNS ENGLEWOOD

Culver, Ind., April 24.—Culver Military academy track men had an easy win over Englewood High today, 65 to 21. Patten took first in the 100 and 220 yard dashes; Tate in the mile, for Englewood. McLean, Neville, Whitehead, Warren, Hawkins, and Stafford of Culver captured the other firsts. Whitehead's half in 2:11 was the best record. Notre Dame freshmen defeated Culver Military academy in baseball, 3 to 1.

Here's One Person Who Cuts Out Golf.

GOLFERS pride themselves on the adaptability of their sport to almost all physical conditions. It is a game for young and old, for the featherweight and the heavyweight. This belief is not shared by a corpulent citizen of Clinton, Ill. Although a member of the country club there he steadily refused to take up the game. At the annual dinner of the club he finally told the secretary of his refusal and said it was a matter of physical limitations.

"You see," he said, "when I place the ball where I can see it I cannot reach it, and when I place it where I can reach it I cannot see it."

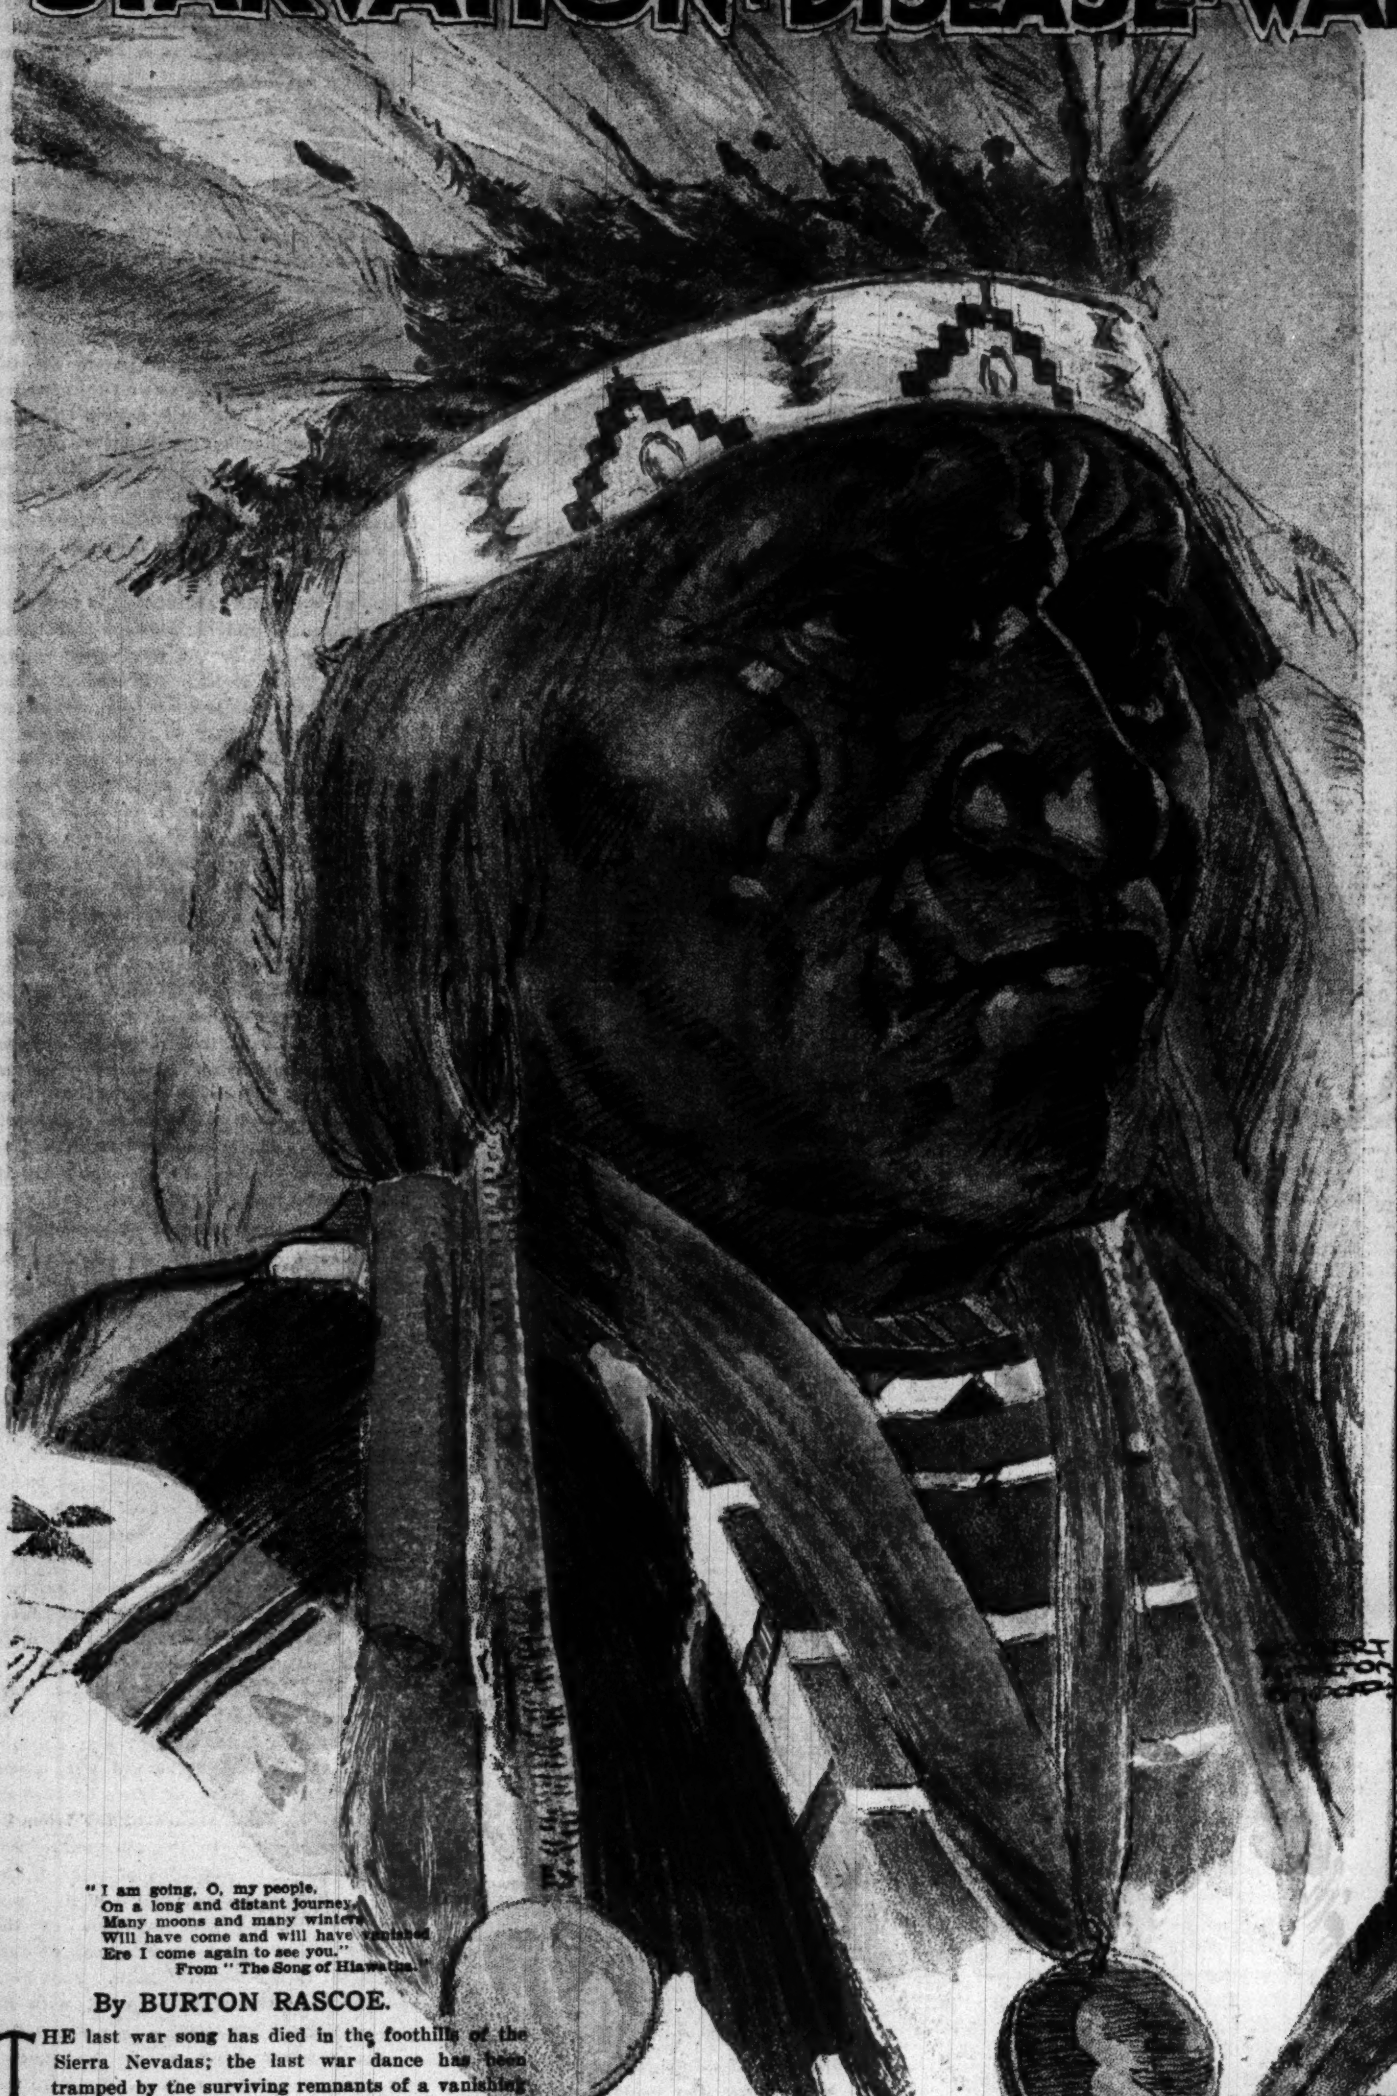
STARVATION+DISEASE+WAR+FRAUD=PROGRESS.

YES, BECAUSE THEY KILLED OFF THE INDIANS AND PUT US IN THEIR PLACES.

Of course we are too hypocritical to SAY this out loud, but we prove we believe it every day of our lives by living on the lands we took from the Indians by massacres, starvation, disease and fraud.



"I am going, O, my people,
On a long and distant journey;
Many moons and many winters
Will have come and will have vanished
Ere I come again to see you."
From "The Song of Hiawatha."

Chief LITTLE WOUND
SIOUX

By BURTON RASCOE.

THE last war song has died in the foothills of the Sierra Nevadas; the last war dance has been tramped by the surviving remnants of a vanishing race; the tom-tom and the "Hoo-yeah, hah-yay" are hushed, save in those sparsely populated reservations the government has set aside as the deathbed of the Indians; and now the few remaining braves and warriors who are not too sadly ravaged by disease or drunkenness to be picturesque find the semblance of their former life only as supers in moving picture scenes, in the retinue of wild west shows, as attractions of sideshows, amusement parks, and expositions.

This, then, is the result of the "crime committed in the name of progress." This is the result of the growth of our civilization—whose agents have been war, massacre, disease, fraud, and oppression. To this crime—though we are too hypocritical to say it out loud—we have given our consent by living on the lands we took from the Indians through these terrible agencies of progress.

This obliteration of an ancient and romantic race, which will have none of our civilization, is the bone over which the humanitarians, the sentimentalists, the preachers of skyscraper and subway philosophy, and the sociologists contend.

The man who is a director in half a dozen corporations will tell you—if he feels inclined to discuss the subject at all—that the Indians were a brutal race which could not adapt itself to changed conditions and that the alien occupation of their land is but the survival of the fittest.

The sociologist will tell you it is a repetition of history, a natural sequence of events; that just as the Jutes and Saxons extinguished the aboriginal races of Britain, just as the Romans overran the Gauls and the Carthaginians, it is the necessary spreading out of a powerful civilization that is bringing about the gradual extinction of the inefficent race of Indians.

Going the Way of the Bison.

The humanitarians will reply that the United States was dishonorable in its treaties with the Indians; that it waged war upon them without provocation; that it confiscated their lands, utilized its power as a superior race to cheat them, drove them from arable lands and excellent hunting grounds to arid regions where they are starving; that it gave them whisky, which degraded them. The humanitarian will say with the sentimentalist that a race with such inspiring traditions, such grandeur in its conceptions of the Infinite and of immortality, such ideals of courage, valor, and honesty should never be allowed to disintegrate, to lose its illusions, to be driven into seclusion where food and clothing is scantily and grudgingly doled out to its members by a government which suffers them to exist only to escape the odium of killing them.

And it is not doubted that the Indians are going the way of the bison; that those few who have taken the education offered them by the government and made use of it have lost their identity and their racial characteristics; that the day of the green corn dance, the snake dance, the moon dance, and the crowning of the tribal chief are gone, and their spirit is waning. Ethnologists say that within a century the race either will have become extinct or undistinguishable from the Caucasian.

The Hava Supai, "Children of the Blue Water," who before the white encroachments were numerous, vigorous lovers of the open, are now 161 in number. Some of them are 103, 104, and 105 years old. They are cooped up in 300 acres of scorching arid land in the Grand Cañon, where part of them are starving and seventy-five are afflicted with tuberculosis of glands, ankles, knees, and wrists. Near them are the Jicarilla Apaches, "The Little Basket Makers," only 700 in number, whose death rate, due to disease and starvation, is so high they will be extinct within fifteen years. They, once powerful, were allotted a region in the Continental Divide section—a region of rocks standing on edge—where they are allowed to raise anything except a disturbance and where they are forced to eat a soup made of the barks of trees in their ineffectual struggle to keep from starving.

Tribes Forced to Murder.

The Algonquin tribes, which produced that great group of orators, military leaders, and statesmen which included King Philip, Powhattan, Pontiac, Tecumseh, Black Hawk, and Sampson Occum, have disappeared. The Iroquois tribes, a noble race of statesmen, whose early leader, Hiawatha, conceived the idea of universal peace by a federation of the tribes and organized the League of the Iroquois among the Senecas, Oneidas, Cayugas, Mohawks, and Onondagas, were broken up, their influence curtailed, forced to assimilate European customs, and dispersed.

The Sioux, the most powerful of all the warlike tribes of the northwest, and who produced famous medicine men and chiefs like Sitting Bull, Little Crow, and Sleepy Eyes, were forced to murder and plunder when, near starvation, the government agents failed to remit the annuities and supplies promised them under the government treaty through which they gave up their valuable hunting lands. The United States troops retaliated for the massacres by exterminating the greater part of them, sending some in flight to Canada, and settling the rest as prisoners of war on reservations in the Black Hills, where they are dying of starvation.

The Cherokees, who occupied vast hunting grounds in the regions where now are Georgia and the Carolinas, were driven back, oppressed, and dispersed from the time Oglethorpe landed at the mouth of the Savannah river with his band of respectable English paupers. Treaty after treaty was made by the government with the Cherokees and nullified by state laws; land grants were given by the Indians under compulsion for practically no remuneration, and finally, in 1835, the Cherokees gave up a strip of country larger than Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut combined for $5,000,000 and 7,000,000 acres of land west of the Mississippi. There some of them have turned out to be successful farmers, like the prosperous Osages west of them, but even there the whites have swindled them out of their land in numerous instances, giving them whisky, and made them paupers, criminals, and inmates of asylums.

Efforts to Civilize Fail.

It seems a sarcasm of destiny to find a son of a chief, clad in the white garment of a municipal employé, sweeping the asphalt pavements of a city on the site of which his forefathers gathered for councils. It is one of the little ironies of fate that we occasionally find an Indian brave who is the heir to a chieftainship which no longer exists manipulating a modern printing press, teaching school, or winning contests in a concrete stadium. And yet these occupations are frequent among the young Indians who have been sent through the mission schools and graduated at Carlisle or Haskell colleges at the expense of the government.

Repeatedly, however, the efforts to infuse civilized customs into the Indians have met with failure. Stalwart young braves and dark haired Minnehahas have [illegible] lifted from their environment of tepees and [illegible]kets, shorn of their beads, feathers, and buckskin, [illegible] dressed in the blue uniform of charity wards, sent [illegible] the mission schools and later to the big government colleges to master languages, history, philosophy, mathematics, and finally a trade or profession. Some of them there are who attain the fictional fame of great football heroes and settle down to conventional social life; but the most do not. As soon as they have been released from the confinement of tailored clothing, stuffy student dormitories, and artificial society they return to the reservations where their parents live, forget their French and English and mathematics until they no longer can use them, doff the serge and shoes for blankets and moccasins, and pass into senility and oblivion dreaming dreams of the past greatness of their people.

There are a few tepee colonies left, those archaic survivals of the preference of the Indians in the matter of a habitat. There one may find on certain occasions the impressive ceremony whereat a great and venerable chief, who has witnessed the passing of his quota of moons, relinquishes his title—which no longer means anything—and a young buck, the most promising of the tribe, is chosen to succeed him. There is feasting and fasting, ululations and lamentations, days and nights of dancing, songs and cries of emotion.

Some of the ancient customs and beliefs which grew up out of the conflict with the elements of nature, the outdoor life which they love, their dependence upon wild game and fish for food, are still clung to by the older Indians. The Seven Stars, which are the Pleiades of the Pawnees, still watch over the destiny of the dwindling race. The Milky Way is the Spirit Road over which the few remaining Cheyennes will go to join their beloved forefathers in the peaceful, eternally joyful residence in the Happy Hunting Ground—"away from the lying white man and his cities and engines, his great boats, and his corruption."

Is it right that these customs be destroyed; that the alternatives of adoption of our civilization or death be forced upon the Indians; that this glorious and valorous race should be driven from the earth to make room for us?

Destiny has answered in the affirmative, and we have agreed with destiny in our occupancy of the lands of the Indians.

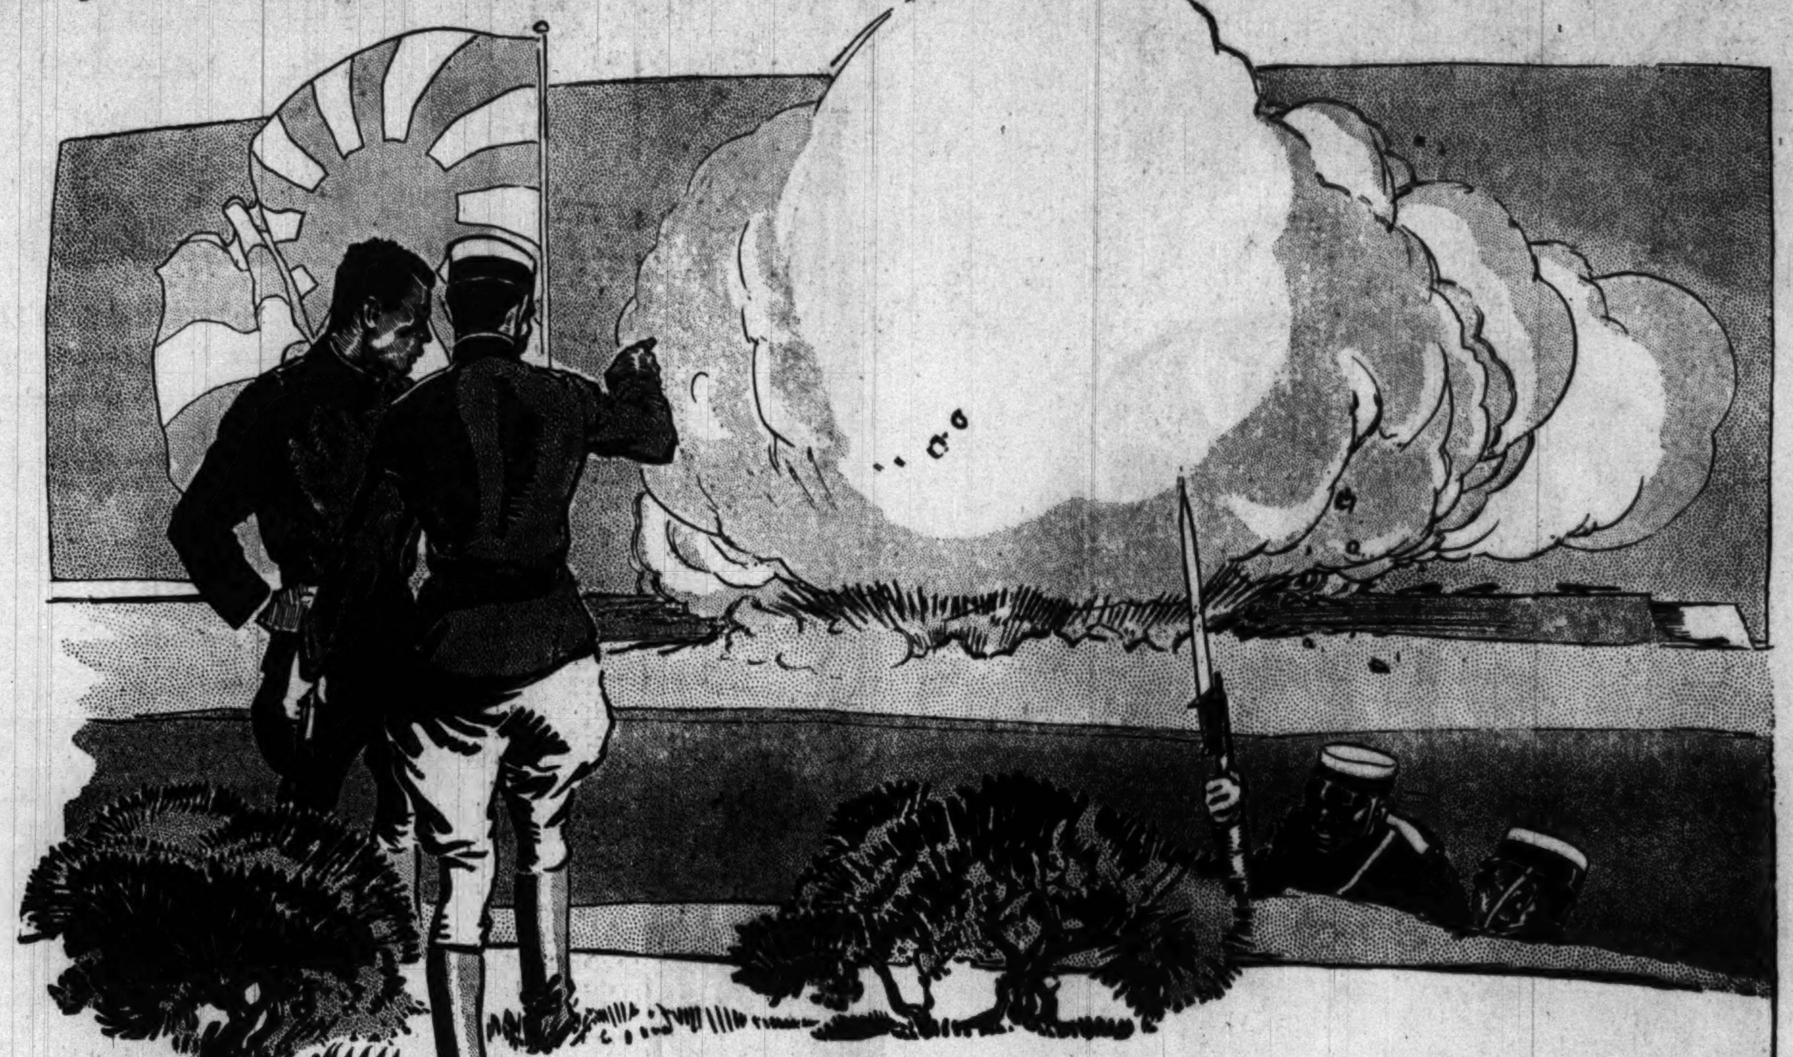
MOLE-WARFARE

by Lieut. Col. E.D. Swinton, D.S.O.R.E.



A Cigaret Stub, a Fuse Connecting a Mine at the End of a Mine, a "Banzai!" —and Capt. Yamatogo and the "Impregnable" Russian Fortress are Desolation.

At last, after days of work, the excavation has been done. The actual tunnel—the mine gallery—is but a replica, life size, of the mine chart kept with such precautions and jealous care by the lieutenant colonel of engineers, in his litle straw shanty down in the lodgement whence the gallery started. This chart is plotted out on a large scale parchment map of the fort in front, dog's eared and dirty because it was made by a Japanese engineer officer, when working before the war as a coolie on this very defense work.

Degree for degree, foot for foot, with the help of theodolite, level, and plumb bob, has the gallery followed its miniature prototype on the greasy parchment. If the plumb-bob and measure, level, and theodolite have not lied, the desired point underneath the main parapet of Fort ——shan has now been reached.

The chambers excavated at right angles to contain the explosive were cut as soon as the main gallery was estimated to have crossed below the deep ditch and to be well beneath the great parapet of the fort, the object to be blown up.

Into these chambers tons and tons of dynamite have been carefully carried and closely packed. The men who stood for hours along the gallery passing the cases from one to the other like water buckets at a fire have now trooped out; the means of firing the charge have been put into position and connected; the charge is sealed up by the mass of rock, shale, and earth which have been placed for some fifty yards back in the gallery as "tamping"; the ceaseless scurry to and fro of the mining trucks—those little trucks which have run forward empty and back again full, their badly greased wheels often shrieking a horror struck protest at their task—has ended, and the molelike miners have come up from underground. After days of burrowing they are now entirely brown, clothes, hands, faces, and hair full of crumbs of soil.

As usual, no chances have been taken. As far as possible, the means of firing the charge have in every case been duplicated. First, there is electricity. For this there are two entirely separate circuits, each connected to its own set of detonators in the charge, and, to prevent possible damage from clumsy foot or falling stone the wires have been carried in split bamboos along the gallery. The circuits have been tested several times, and each time the little kick of the galvanometer needle has shown that there was no break in the line. Besides the electricity there is the ordinary fuse, also in duplicate. Each is made up of three different links in the chain of ignition—the detonators in the charge, the length of instantaneous fuse from them to a point some yards outside the tamping, and, lastly, the short piece of slow burning safety fuse joined on in order to allow time for escape to the person igniting the charge. Weak spots in the train of fire are these joints, difficult to make and easily deranged by a jerk or a falling stone. The fuses, however, are after all only a second string; much neater, cleaner, quicker, and more certain is the electric current.

Far away, at varying distances, are the guns, every one already laid on the doomed fort. Some will fire direct, others from behind the hills, whence the target cannot be seen; but as soon as the smoke of the explosion shoots up and spreads mushroomlike into the sky, all will concentrate their fire on this work. Under cover of this squall of bursting steel and shrapnel bullets will the assaulting columns storm the breach. The stormers are now crouching under cover in the different lodgements and parallels closest to the work. They are waiting the moment to charge forward on the bewildered and shaken survivors of the explosion, who will at the same time be subjected to this inferno of artillery fire.

All is ready, but not a moment too soon, for have not the listeners, lying prone in their branch listening galleries, heard coming from somewhere in the womb of mother earth the strokes of the Russians countermining? Has not the pebble placed on the many colored captured Russian drum danced to the same vibrations? Hard it is to locate, harder still to estimate their distance; but without doubt they are working, working near at hand, too. Even now they may have burrowed right up to the charge, and be busy cutting the electric leads and fuses. Dynamite, luckily, cannot be drowned out by water.

Down the hillside is the lodgement, that hole which looks like a distorted volcanic crater. Such, in fact, it is, being the result of exploding a few small mines, so spaced that their resulting craters intersect and by overlapping form one elongated pit, a broad and deep trench. The soil vomited up by the explosions has formed a parapet all round as it fell back. It was when the attackers found that they could advance no closer over the open that this pit was made. A tunnel had been made up to its position—this was the commencement of the mole's work—and the mines exploded. At once, even while the sky was still raining rocks and clods of earth, the sappers and infantry advanced with a catlike rush from the parallel behind and seized this point of vantage. Without delay they started with pick and shovel to improve on the work of the explosives. Catlike, too, with tooth and nail have they hung on to their newly won position against all counter attacks. In vain have the desperate Russians surpassed themselves in their nightly attempts to try and turn them out with bayonet, bomb, or bullet. A foothold once established, the men of Nippon have hung on to the spot, steadily strengthening it the while.

From this lodgement was started the gallery for the great mine that is just about to be exploded and to give them a road into the fortress, and it is here that all interest is now centered.

Down at the bottom of the hollow is a small group intently waiting. At the telephone in the straw shanty kneels the operator. Over the top of the parapet, above which bullets and shells sing their way, peers the lieutenant colonel. Close by, in charge of a heavily built sergeant, lies a curious, innocent looking box with a handle; it is the dynamo exploder. Near it two men are standing, each holding one end of an electric wire in either hand. The ends of these wires, where the metal protrudes from its black insulation, are scraped bright.

The telephone orderly speaks; the colonel gives an order. Quickly and silently the two ends of wire held by one man are placed in the clamps of the dynamo, which are screwed down to grip them. The moment is fateful, and dead silence reigns among the little group, whose drawn and dirty faces wear if possible a more anxious expression than usual. The orderly speaks again. The colonel turns to the sergeant. "Fire!"

The latter throws his whole weight on the handle, forcing it down with a purring rattle, while all voluntarily cower down, holding their breath.

Nothing happens!

Again—once more is the handle jerked up and forced down. Nothing happens! The man holding the second circuit steps forward, and the exploder is quickly connected to it. Once, twice, three times does the handle rattle as it is forced down, by two men now.

Again—nothing!

"Who connected this charge?"

Capt. Yamatogo of the imperial Japanese engineers steps forward and salutes; a small, thin man, so coated with dried sweat and earth that he might again be well taken for the coolie. He is responsible; he was in charge; but, he happens to be the one chosen among many volunteers to go down and light the fuse, if necessary, and to go down and relight it, should it not act the first time. The matter of the failure of the electricity can wait till later. A word, and he turns round, picks up a small portable electric lamp, which he straps around his forehead, and slings a thick coil of safety fuse over his shoulder. A salute, and he has gone down the gallery, picking his way carefully. There is for the moment no danger, for no fuse has been lit, and none can therefore smolder to flame up again suddenly.

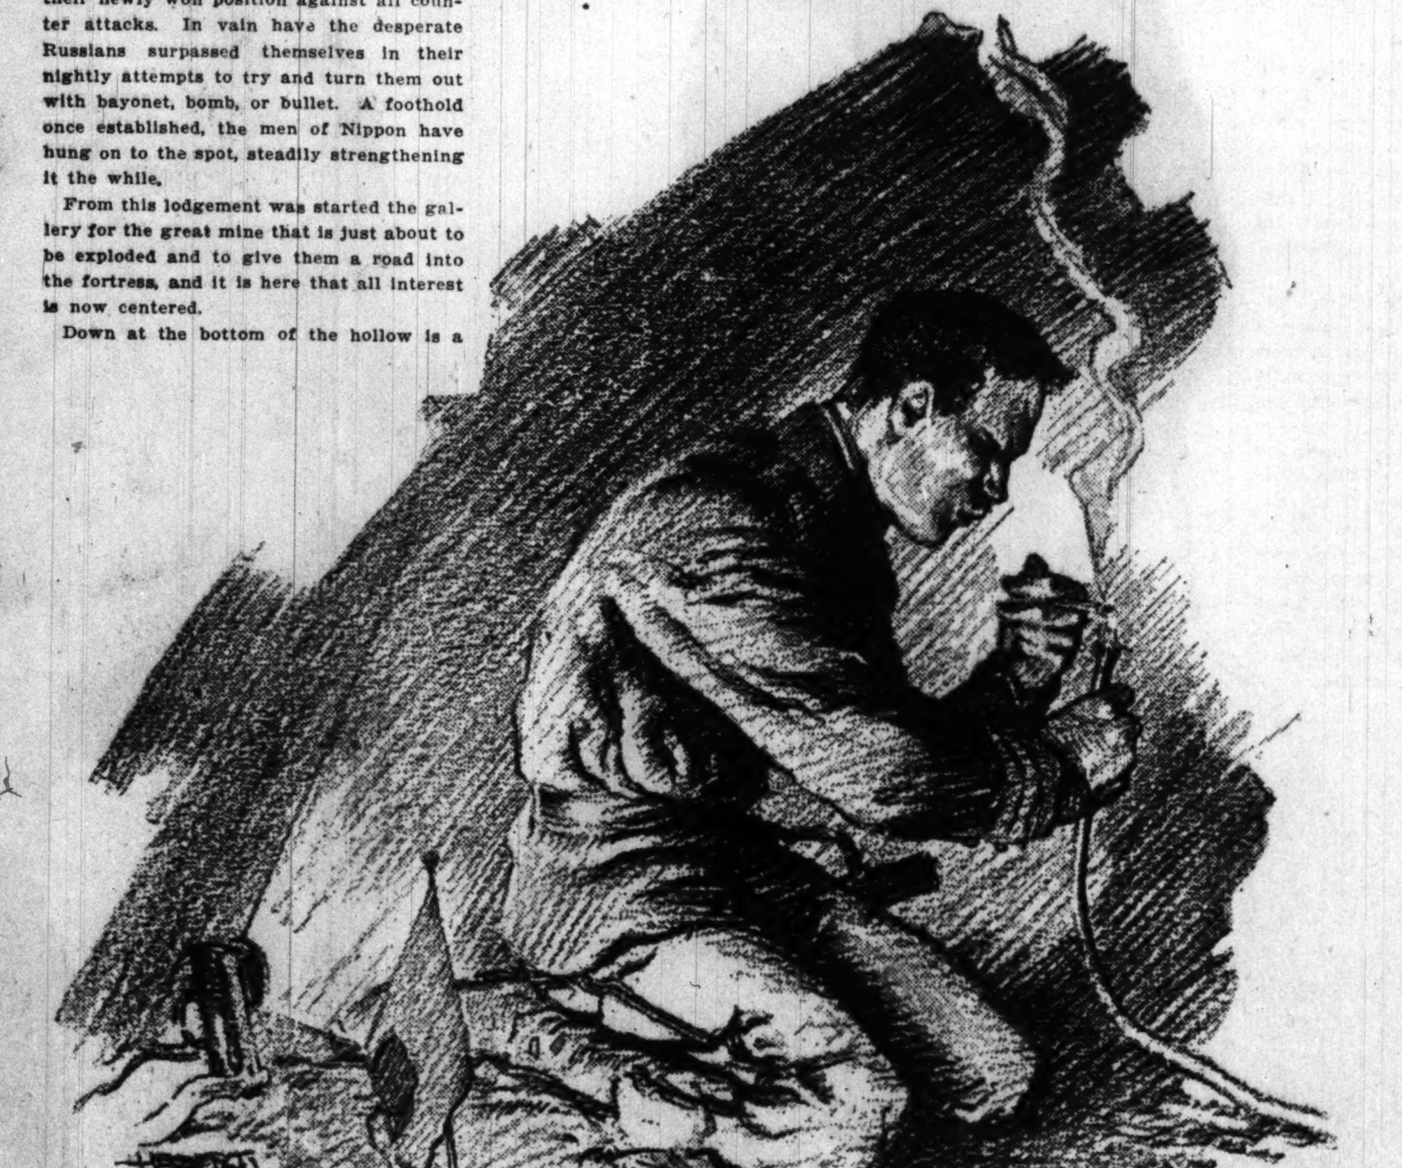
As he strides along, his thoughts run over the possible causes of failure. He ponders over a dull boom which he fancied he had heard proceed from the direction of the tunnel some five minutes ago, just before they connected with the dynamo. No one else had noticed it, apparently, amid the storm of noise. He had decided that his ears must be playing him tricks, for he had done much underground listening recently, but now, down there alone, his thoughts again revert to this sound.

After walking for some two minutes, he almost stumbles into an obstruction; the left side of the gallery and the top have apparently fallen in. It is in a soft portion of the tunnel lined with timbers, which are splintered and lying about. He hastily searches the side walls for a gauge mark showing the distance from the mouth. He finds one; he is twenty yards short of the tamping, and therefore the pile of soil and rock is just over the ends of the safety fuse. While standing there he hears strokes and voices—voices close to him. He half draws his sword and waits.

This explains the failure. His ears were right. The enemy have driven forward a tube and exploded a small counter mine, smashing in the side of the gallery. Well, they seem to have succeeded in spoiling the attackers' plan, for the present at any rate. It will be impossible to dig these tons of earth off the fuses under some hours; the gallery is completely blocked. But, stay—is it? He sees a small patch of darkness on the right hand top corner of the mound. Scrambling up, he digs with his hands, and finds a mere crust of earth. Behind this the opening is just large enough to crawl through. He wriggles along on his belly between the earth and the roof for some ten yards, then the mound slopes away, and he stumbles down on to the floor again in the small space between the obstruction and the tamping at the end of the tunnel. He darts to the side of the tunnel and picks up two red ropes. These are the instantaneous fuses. Capt. Yamatogo knows all that is to be known about fuses; he knows well that to light the instantaneous means death, as the flame would flash straight down to the charge before he could move. Not wanting to die uselessly, he heaves at the fuses to try and pull them and the pieces of safety fuse joined to their ends from under the load of earth. He pulls, but they do not yield; dropping them, he whips out his knife. He will cut the instantaneous and splice on to it a piece of safety long enough to allow him to get back over the obstruction after lighting. Two minutes' work will do it.

At that moment he again hears a voice, still closer than before. There is no time to lose, not even two minutes; the words are Russian. Quickly he makes up his mind, but, his resolve taken, he proceeds calmly. Taking out a little Japanese flag, he sticks it into the earth beside him, squats down on his heels, peels the end of the cut fuse, and takes out a cigarette. As he does this he cannot help recalling with a grim smile that it must be just above where he now squats that he was kicked, when working as a coolie, by a Russian officer. He then thinks of his wife at home near Osaka, and his two merry eyed little boys.

He lights the cigarette and takes a long pull. Expelling the smoke with a hoarse cry of "Banzai!" he presses the end of the fuse hard on to the glowing cigarette end. There is a hiss and a jet of sparks.



. . . .

To those watching, great Fujiyama itself seems to erupt skyward from the Fort of ——shan. Within two minutes the men of his company are running and stumbling above what was once Capt. Yamatogo of the imperial Japanese engineers.

On the top of yonder hill is the abomination of desolation.

Inside what was the fort, the surface of rock and earth, on level and on slope, is gashed and pitted into mounds and holes, the craters of the exploding eleven inch shells. These monstrous projectiles have rained on the place until the defenders must have felt like the doomed dwellers in the cities of the plain.

Down below, where surfaces of broken concrete appear in patches of gray among the rock, were once the mouths of the bombproof casements wherein the tortured garrison sought refuge from the hail of falling steel, vaulted casemates cut into the solid rock or roofed over with concrete where the rock gave place to softer material. Well had they done their duty, even against the eleven inch shell, until the end came. Now, some of the openings facing the rear or gorge of the fort are sealed to the top with fallen earth and pulverized rock, some are only partially closed by the landslide from the parapet over them, their cracked arches still standing. With a sickening feeling thought turns to the men within them at the moment of the cataclysm, possibly snatching a few moments' rest, the majority in all probability sick or wounded. All round above stretches in a broken line the shapeless mass of the long main parapet, and just inside this there are remains of the revetment wall which supported the interior, and of the gun platforms and emplacements. This wall, which in its former ordered neatness almost suggested the idea of a battle-ship in concrete, with its searchlight emplacements, steps, davits, and tackle for hoisting shell, and the regularly spaced little doors for the shelters, range dials, ammunition recesses, and cartridge stores, now bulges this way and that, here cracked, there fallen with the unsupported earth flowing over it. Along one face, which was the front of the fort, the only traces of it now to be seen are occasional corners appearing from the mound of loose earth and rock.

One cannot walk straight; it is necessary to avoid the boulders which lie scattered over the ground, or the pits which honeycomb it. There a high traverse of softer earth still stands, a shapeless mound, its face all pock-marked with craters till it looks almost like a gigantic sponge. There are bodies everywhere; some lying on the surface, in the free air of heaven; some buried, so that a hand or a foot alone discloses what is below. Everywhere also are splintered timbers, rifles, cartridge boxes, belts, coats, and all the usual debris of a battlefield, with a monster gun overturned or pointing dumbly to the sky to emphasize that this has been no common battlefield, but the fight for a fortress. There is blood, too—but not much, thanks to the merciful dust, which has softly descended in an impalpable mist and covered everything with a gray brown pall, giving to all a mysterious velvety appearance. It has soaked up the blood, an occasional dark spot being all that is to be seen.

Beyond the huge mound of the parapet, down, deep down, except on one side, the ditch still exists. Some forty feet in depth, it ran like a great chasm round the whole fort, in places hewn out of the solid rock, with almost sheer sides. At the angles or corners where the ditch bends are jumbled heaps of concrete, steel beams, and roughly squared stones. They are what remain of the caponiers, those little bomb proof buildings placed so snugly out of the way of shells right down at the bottom, whence machine guns and quick firers poured their devastating blight of bullets along the cruel wire entanglements, in which the unsuccessful Japanese storming parties had been caught. Until these caponiers were silenced or destroyed no soul could live in that veritable chasm of death, and those gray little bodies hanging limp like broken marionettes in the thicket of barbed wire along the length of the ditch, or lying doubled up and impaled on the stakes of the trous de loup, bear witness to the successful part they played. The attitudes of some of the dead, who, hanging contorted, still grip a wire convulsively, give evidence of the power of the dynamo—now a heap of dust and metal in a casemate above. Gaps here and there in the maze of wire, with its springy strands all curling up above holes in the ground, show where the contact mines of the defenders burst, or where the hand grenades of both sides fell and exploded.

On one side there is no ditch; parapet and ditch seem to have been melted together by an earthquake. Here the mine was sprung. Escarp and counterscarp have crumbled away, and the beetling parapet has slid down and filled up the ditch till the earth and rock has overflowed right on to the glacis beyond. There is no such large hole formed by the explosion as might have been expected, for it has been partially filled up by the mass falling in from all sides. The edge of what was the crater is marked by cracks and fissures, in places more than a foot wide, in the still standing parapet on either side. The dust gives to everything a soft, rounded appearance.

Looking over the glacis, the landscape is seen to be dotted for some hundreds of yards with stones and fragments of rock. Farther off, that mound shows the lodgement from which the Japanese moles started their last tunnel.

A sickening smell pervades the air.

VOICE of the FAN

Dear Miss Tinee: "The Voice of the Movie Fan" is indeed great, as we have to express our thoughts somewhere, and instead of making every one miserable in the picture house you can save it and write it out when you get home.

Yesterday I saw a Rex drama, "The Mystery of the Sea View Hotel." Ben Wilson was hero and director. The acting was natural enough, but what was queer was in a scene where the detective receives a note from a midnight visitor, alias Ku Klux Klan. He sees the visitor has women's shoes on, and when the kleptomaniac is caught no trace or sign is found of the women's shoes. What did they have to do with the plot of the picture?

Again, while in the conservatory an elderly man in white rushes past the hero. Again in the restaurant the same man rushes into the room, looks at the hero, turns around and walks out, and you don't see him again. What was he? It seemed so foolish to have him do that. Then the heroine leaves the hotel after the thief is caught. It seemed so strange.

And I heartily agree with R. C. Travers about the Keystone comedies. They may be all right for children, but not for people with an ordinary sense of humor. But still I think the Biograph comedies, such as "The Fire Chief's Bride" and "Our Home Made Army," are just as silly and idiotic as the Keystones. The "Sweedie" pictures are rather silly, too. They surely are not funny. Good comedies I have seen and considered funny are "A Regiment of Two," "The Professional Scapegoat," "The Professor's Romance," "Sunny Jim" series, "The Wrong Apartment," "Gimme the Porter," and "Andy" series. And I just love Peggy, and her love affairs are fine. I hope Dorothy Kelly and Jim Morrison are Peggy and Elliott. They are just the pair for it.

Wishing you and this Movie Fan corner lots of luck, I remain, DOT EARL.

Dear Miss Tinee: Have you space on your page for a vigorous protest from an enthusiastic admirer? I am neither a professional knocker nor a chronic dyspeptic, but an ordinary mother who can see how far reaching your influence, through the medium of the paper, can be. I do not ask you to assume the thankless rôle of a reformer, but why not use your great ability to attain beneficial results? The controversies about how long a hero should press his lips to those of his sweetheart in a long drawn kiss were inane and silly when there are more important matters awaiting discussion and correction.

It is an outrage that decent thinking and honest acting persons should have to witness the degrading saloon and back room scenes that are being constantly flashed upon the screen. The law forbids an unescorted woman in the rear room of a saloon, but the picture of such has escaped the eye of the censor. Why? Of what interest to respectable citizens are the doings of a gang of pickpockets in their den in the adjoining room of a saloon?

The audience the other afternoon watching these degrading pictures were young men and boys with but few women. The men were well dressed, but why were they not at work at this time of day? Surely they were not the sons of wealth, for the rich are in the minority around here.

Unless something is done, and that soon, our children will not know the difference between right and wrong. If the male censors are unable to distinguish the good pictures from the bad, one or two mothers of families should be put on the board of censors. The movies should amuse, entertain, or instruct, and when they fail in this radical changes are necessary. When I say instruct I mean teach that which makes better men and women and not criminals.

I realize the difficulties of the producer, though I ask them to give us more of the good, the beautiful, and the true, and to bear lightly on the crime pedal. DELOURS SOMERS.

EDWIN AUGUST

THE real name of Edwin August of the Kinetophote company is Edwin August Phillip Von der Butz. He's gone by various other names, however. In England he has been billed as Mohtague Lawrence, in Australia as Wilkes Williams, in Germany as Karl Von Busing, and in the orient as David Cortlandt. His friends know him as Eddie. He first appeared before the footlights as Little Lord Fauntleroy. Later he acted in stock, supporting Otis Skinner for two years. He established his motion picture reputation with the Biograph company. Since then he has been with most of the motion picture corporations and has on several occasions conducted a motion picture company of his own. Mr. August is a little over medium height, has medium brown hair, and blue eyes, and is unmarried. He is fond of automobiling, music, and raising chickens. It is said that he is vurr' good to his father and mother, who live on his ranch near Los Angeles, Cal. He is a capable scenario writer and has written many of the productions in which he has appeared.

ANSWERS TO MOVIE FANS.

Owing to the number of queries received and the somewhat limited space allowed for answers, it is not always possible to print information as rapidly as the writers desire, as the letters must be answered in turn. All, however, receive careful attention.

When stamped and addressed envelopes are inclosed Miss Tinee will be glad to answer personally any letters addressed to her. Address all queries to this department to Miss Tinee in care of this paper.

Questions that have been answered will receive a reply only when a stamped and addressed envelope is sent.

Questions considered as ridiculous will not be answered.

Questions regarding relationship will be answered to the best of our knowledge, but we are not responsible if mistakes are made.

If you are interested in photo-play writing send a stamped and self-addressed envelope to this department for the information you desire.

TIFFANY B.: Awfully sorry you resent my being truthful, Tiffany, but there are some things a minister's daughter cannot help. Regarding your second question, I must reply that no clause in my contract requires me to give information about myself. However—if you are, I are! You pronounce my last name to rhyme with Skin-nay. It was simply lov-a-ly of you to write. Y' wekkum!

INDEPENDENCE: Florence Lawrence is older than Mary Pickford.

EDITH A. McK.: No, lady, Cleo Madison is not dead. Thank you for the nice things you said in your letter. When I read it I didn't purr, but I felt like purring, which amounts to the same thing in the long run.

LLOYD A. S.: I like my job ever so much. Thank you for your sympathy. I'm sure you won't mind if I refuse to answer the questions you ask regarding myself. I'msashy! Pearl White is still with the Pathe Freres company. Crane Wilbur has gone to Lubin. You're not a bit of bother. I'm awfully glad you wrote. Do it again, some time.

JACK W.: "Smiling" Billy Mason is now with the Essanay company, working in Alabama.

FEMININE FAN: The World Film company is located at 110 West Fortieth street, New York. Regarding Chester Barnett's private affairs I have no information. Address your votes—that's what you mean, isn't it?—to me in care of this paper. O, please'm, don't make me tell you the truth about myself. Anyhow, what you have heard is the truth. Thank you for your lovely, cordial letter. Your wishes make me vurr' happy and I, in turn, hope that everything good may come to you.

M. C.: A letter addressed to Edwin August in care of the Kinetophote company, New York, will reached him. You're vurr' welcome.

V. L.: Lorraine Huling played opposite Harold Lockwood in "The Unwelcome Mrs. Hatch." A letter addressed to her in care of the Famous Players company, 213 West Twenty-sixth street, New York, will reach her Y'wekkum.

CARL M.: I think it quite probable that both Miss Williams and Mr. Kerrigan would send you their photos if you would write for them, inclosing a quarter for each. Address Miss Williams, in care of the Selig zoo, Los Angeles, Cal., and Mr. Kerrigan, in care of the Universal studio, Hollywood, Cal.

L. AND T.: Sorry, but I don't know a thing about Ted. Judging from your letter, though, he must be some darling.

GRACE C.: Anita Stewart took the part you mention in "The Million Bid." Address James Cruze, in care of the Thanhouser company, New Rochelle, New York. You're welcome.

IRENE J.: It was nice of you to take the time to tell me your history. You don't know how I appreciate such thoughtfulness. Letters addressed to James Cruze, Marguerite Snow, and Florence La Badie, in care of the Thanhouser company, New Rochelle, N. Y., will reach them. Write again some time, won't you, Irene? Your teacher must be lovely. I'm quite sure I should be crazy about her, too.

FLOYD B.: Yes, the pictures of the three stars you mention have been in the "Frame." If you will write to the circulation department, mentioning the papers you want and inclosing 10 cents in postage for each paper, it will be sent to you.

B. EDWARD R.: If you'll send me a stamped and self-addressed envelope I'll be glad to mail you the information I have on how to become a photo player. If I were you, though, I'd do something else. Lots of boys feel the call, but few are chosen to become Kerrigans, or Bushmans, or Costellos.

B. M. G.: The scenes in "Hearts Adrift" were, I understand, taken in California.

A MOVIE FAN: I'm awfully glad you like the Right Off the Reel page. Thanks for telling me that you do. Mignon Anderson is not married—or was not the last I heard. She was engaged to Morris Foster. Mr. Ashley has favored me with no information regarding his private affairs.

CLAUDIA: I don't know the maiden name of the relative of Mr. Bushman in whom you are interested. He, however, might be able to tell you. Sorry not to have the information.

FLO F.: A letter directed to Lillian Gish in care of the Griffith-Mutual studios, Los Angeles, Cal., will reach her. I do appreciate so much your lovely letter. Please to write again some time.

News regarding the Five Hundred Dollar Photoplay Contest and The Tribune's Motion Picture Directory, the best in the world.

Charles Chaplin, declares an enraptured press representative, has the most valuable feet in the world. He has just insured each foot for $50,000, or $150,000 for the pair. That is, he is reimbursed by the insurance company $50,000 for the loss of either one and $150,000 if he loses both. "My feet are my fortune," Mr. Chaplin is quoted as saying. "What kind of a photoplay comedian do you think I would be without my feet? In fact, I think $150,000 is a small amount for the loss of both feet. It would cut me out of my salary for the rest of my life."

Speaking of woman's intuition: A friend asked Sidney Bracy the other day where he kept his power yacht during the winter.

"Oh, she's in dry dock," Bracy explained. They were sitting in his dressing room in the Thanhouser-Mutual studios in New Rochelle. "There's a picture of her," he added, pointing to a framed photograph on the wall.

"Nice looking boat," said the friend. "What do you call her?"

"Named her the Evelyn," the actor went on. "That's my wife's name, and since our last cruise I've been particularly glad I named the yacht for her.

"Funny thing about a woman's intuition. We were way out in the sound that day when suddenly everything grew dark and fog fell round us like a great gray curtain. We were all straining our eyes in every direction. Suddenly my wife dodged into the pilot house, grabbed the wheel from the steersman, put it hard aport, and signaled the engine room for full speed astern. I hadn't time to get back to find out why, when a destroyer shot by like an arrow, her siren whining like a lost soul. There hadn't been a sound before.

"'Evelyn, did you see that boat coming?' I asked.

"'Oh, no,' she answered. 'I just sort of felt it.' Can you beat that? Her feeling in the matter saved our lives, though."

Selig's zoo recently received the largest shipment of wild animals ever brought across. There were in the consignment of live freight two elephants, two camels, two snow leopards, two black tigers, four Bengal tigers, and a number of funny birds and miscellaneous animals. The Selig plant now has eighteen Bengal tigers, the largest number owned by any single firm.

When Kathlyn Williams returned from the Panama trip she found 1,214 letters and twenty-eight presents awaiting her in her mail. She says that at least one-third of the missives were from children.

Capt. Bonavita, annual expert for Min A productions, declares: "It is a sure indication of rain if a lion changes his 'roar tone' or shows reluctance to leave his lair, and by careful study of the variation of these habits it is possible to tell whether or not the storm will be severe. The extremes in weather for the day are forecast by the brutes in their seeming indifference to drinking. When leisurely and intermittently lapping the water or when greedily taking the last drop as if fearing to be deprived of it, they herald a bright day. It is also possible to tell weather by the way the lions act after they have taken their water. If they sneak back to their lair, it is sure to rain, but if they linger close to the bars a good day can be expected. If the lions are at all restless it denotes unsettled weather." Depending upon the forecasts of the lions, a weather report is posted every day outside the arena, and, it is said, crowds of people gather about it, as they rely more upon this report than they do upon the weather man.

Bigelow Cooper, says a friend, when not an Edison villain, hero, or lover, is eating money these days—yea, verily, it is money and not stage money, either. From his farm he gets three eggs a week. Divide three eggs into $7.50 a week for chicken laying food and we have one egg at $2.50 per.

Thomas Santschi declares he has never as yet replied to an admirer. Girls, is this true—or can some of you disprove the assertion?

And this is fame! Harry Eytinge, Edison, the self-confessed "somewhat stout comedian," blushingly extracted a complimentary season ticket from a letter in which he was requested by a prominent New York dancing school to attend and let them prove that any one could be taught to dance. After he had dismissed the coach and four and made his entrance into the academy, four teachers danced forward when they heard that the film fat—no, film favorite—was present. Not, of course, that it would take four teachers to teach Harry. But?

Miss Helen Holmes, the heroine of Kalem's "Hazards of Helen" railroad series, vows that if the girls who deluge her with their letters would closely study the pictures in which she appears they would not envy her quite so much. In "The Girl on the Trestle," for instance, this daring young actress crosses a steel rail—all that is left of a trestle—through smoke and fire, in an effort to save an oncoming train from destruction. It required the last bit of Miss Holmes' courage to enable her to perform this feat.

YOUNG AMERICANS

Conducted by Terry Ramsaye

THE TRAIL of the BOY SCOUTS

GATHER around, scouts, for a line of baseball chatter. I was talking baseball with Harvey Woodruff, the sporting editor, the other day, and he said this was about to be the biggest season for amateur baseball in the history of the middle west. If the evidence I have seen around boy scout troops' headquarters is any good he must be right. Scouts have caught the baseball fever with remarkable violence. The only thing that is good to take for the baseball fever is baseball, a genuine homeopathic remedy.

"About the best explanation I know for the widespread increase in interest in amateur ball is to be found in the apparent loss of interest in professional ball," Mr. Woodruff remarked. Which in my own rebel way of looking at it is not such a bad thing for the baseball public. The more boys and young men we have playing baseball, instead of sitting on a bleacher seat drinking pop while the other fellow does the work and produces the excitement, the more valuable and interesting the game becomes. Also I deem it considerably more sportsmanlike to play baseball than to watch it. Sport and exercise should not be obtained predigested or in prepared form.

Too frequently the tendency of the city lad who wants to play ball is to dash out and hunt up some team in one of the amateur leagues and worry himself into a fret about getting into some organized form of the game. This is quite commendable but decidedly unnecessary. There seems to be a good deal of a notion that it takes two clubs of at least nine boys each to play a game of ball. As a matter of fact, several are plenty, and several means anything from three to a dozen, regardless of what the dictionary may remark.

For a small group of boys, playing not to "the grandstand," but for their own benefit and amusement, there is probably more fun in the old and well established game known variously as "regulation," "work-up," and "scrub," according to the part of the country you hail from.

A race for the bag. Players of a boy scout club busy at their spring practice. There is one in your neighborhood.

It may seem like "coals to Newcastle" to describe this game to the boys who know it, but I was considerably surprised the other day to discover a whole troop of city bred scouts who had never even heard of it.

In this game in its most complete form all of the positions are filled and there are three or more batters. When a batter is put out by any of the prescribed baseball plays he goes to left field, the catcher becomes a batter, and the whole field of players moves up one notch in positions. The order of succession is from left field to center, to right, to third base, to second, to first, to shortstop, to pitcher, to catcher, to batter.

This is a particularly valuable game for boys for the reason that it puts every player into every position and gives, in the course of an afternoon's play, all of the players more exercise and action than they possibly could have had in regular club play with specialized positions.

It invariably works out that every boy in the crowd wants to bat. By a code established at the little red schoolhouse a good many years ago the various positions at the beginning of the play go to the boy who shouts for them first. This system develops a lot of lungs and saves annually probably several million black eyes.

In this day of scientifically made baseball accessories few boys would care to play with anything but the correct and regular official ball. But a lot of boys of other days will recall some of the home made balls they hammered around over the cow pastures out on the edge of the country town.

The favorite method in that period of amateur baseball was to whittle a core of rubber from a piece of rubber—usually "borrowed" from a car bumper in the railway yards—and to wrap this core with twine, perhaps laying on an outer layer of hard linen fishing line. This ball was then either laboriously covered by stretching and sewing wet leather around it, or it was painstakingly stitched through and through to prevent unwinding.

Such a ball well made weighed about twice as much as an official ball, and a well planted swat would send it so far into the scenery that it was easier to make a new ball than to saddle a horse and go after it. I can recall one high foul which so far as I know personally is not down yet.

It helps the game along to pay some attention to the grounds. It makes no difference if the diamond is behind a billboard on a vacant lot, or some place up an alley, it can be kept in order. The rough places can be smoothed out and the sticks and stones gathered up and put out of the way. Unless the infield is smooth and clear of bumps and obstructions you will never learn to pick up the "hot grounders" with any degree of accuracy, and the ball can never be depended upon to bounce accurately.

SPRING MEDICINE.

Here's a prescription for every boy who reads this page.

Prepare for the best summer in your life by joining the Boy Scouts of America. It is the way to insure having a good time that will make a man of you.

There is a way for you to join, a troop for you to join, or a way to organize a troop yourself, wherever you are. If you don't know how and where, write the editor of this page.

If you belong to the scouts now, keep at it and keep busy. There are stunts on the program for you.

It may seem a little tedious with that new ball and bat right there at hand, but in the end you'll have a lot more fun if each boy takes a basket and goes to work clearing up the grounds. A few busy boys can cover a wide area in a little time that way, each taking a certain division of the diamond.

The spring crop of sore arms is about ripe. The only sure way to avoid it is to take it easy with the throwing arm at the start, or else keep in trim all winter. If you've already got it keep up the throwing in moderation and massage the sore muscles to help the circulation of the blood that is trying to repair the overworked muscle tissues.

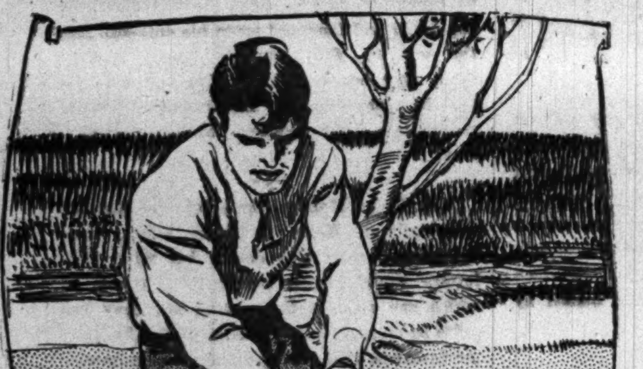
Arnica, linament, alcohol, grease, and most everything under the sun is recommended by advisers and experts, but the cure has to come from the inside, which none of these dopes will reach. Their chief quality is fragrance.

The officials of the scout movement, because of the large number of interests that are peculiar to scout work, do not take up amateur ball to any considerable extent.

"But that is not because the game is frowned upon at all," L. W. McDonald of scout headquarters explained. "Far from it. We are glad to have the boys play ball. But we advise them to go to their neighborhood organizations, their Sunday school leagues, and similar bodies. The boys, of course, play in the scout camps, and there are plenty of clubs made up of scouts."

Play ball!

INTERESTING BOYS



Clyde B. Terrell, the Wisconsin boy who has found a way to dig treasures out of the wilds.

Money from the Marshes.

CLYDE B. TERRELL spent his younger boyhood playing in the marshes adjoining the Terrell homestead some miles out of Oshkosh, Wis. There he got acquainted with the wild ducks, the geese, and the butterflies in person. He saw and observed what the wild fowl ate.

A few years ago the youth was struck with a business inspiration and set out to make a business of what had been his play. He started gathering the seeds of the plants upon which the fowl fed. Then it occurred to him to raise food for wild fowl. He began by selling small lots to owners of game preserves and the business grew. Then he went at it right and plunged into a full fledged business. In a letter to the editor of this page the other day he explained:

"I gather and supply various kinds of biological material for schools and colleges, supply the plants, seeds, and bulbs of water and bog plants. I specialize in plants that are attractive to wild ducks and other migratory wild fowl and am continually inspecting the marshes and waters for various plants to attract the game birds. I intend to develop my work more thoroughly when I have completed my college course.

"Thousands of wild duck and other water fowl will come to your ponds or lowlands if you plant the natural foods they love. Careful study has proven that the most attractice foods for water fowl are the wapato or duck potato, wild rice, wild celery, water cress, chinquapins, and chufas.

"Not all of these foods are eaten by all kinds of ducks. For instance, wild rice is a food of the marsh ducks, such as mallards, teal, and pintails, while wild celery is a food of the diving or deep water ducks like the canvasback, redheads, and bluebills."

Mallards and their eggs command a high price for the stocking of the game preserves and park flocks. The ducks can be raised by the common barnyard hen with considerable success and the ducks so hatched are as tame as domestic fowls. As an instance of this a fisherman located on the edge of Wilmette, Ill., has a flock of mallards in his dooryard. Their wings are clipped to prevent migration at the call of the autumn and they remain in contentment the year around.

Terrell's work is indorsed by the biological division of the department of agriculture as an important influence for the conservation of valuable wild birds.

The young man's time is, however, not all taken up with his fascinating vocation. He is an amateur musician and a member of the orchestra at the state normal school of Wisconsin. He will complete his course there before he is 21 years old, with standings above the average.

POPULAR SCIENCE

An Ancient Submarine.

THE first submarine was built in 1578. An interesting parallel lies between the histories of the aeroplane and the submarine, both accepted as intensely modern inventions of military science, but both the fruits of centuries of striving and experiment.

In both devices the one obstacle which for so many hundreds of years prevented success was the problem of motive power. This is shown as particularly true since the installation of a modern gasoline motor in the old Langley cellular "plane," proving the principles of the early inventor were correct.

Thus we find that the underwater boat built by a Frenchman named De Son in the early seventeenth century was a complete success except that it would not run.

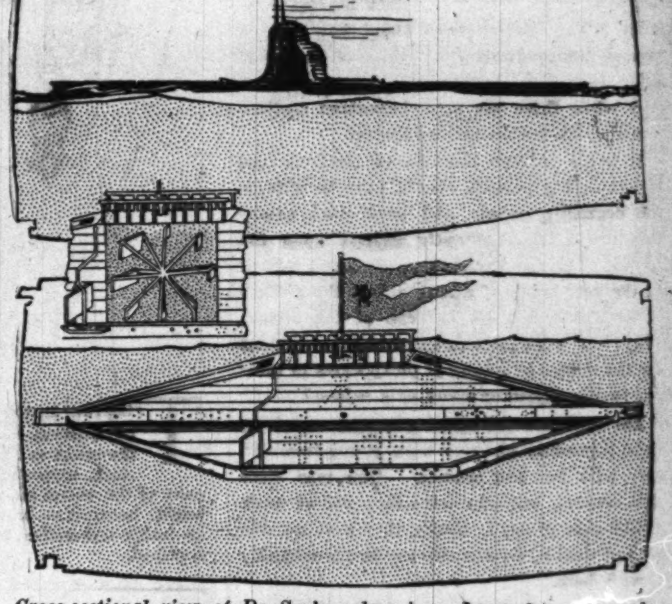
The De Son vessel, built at Rotterdam, was 72 feet in length, with a maximum height of 12 feet and beam of 8 feet, tapering to points at the end, being not unlike the modern submarine in many of its lines.

De Son designed his boat to operate under water with a clockwork motor and to hold an air supply for the crew sufficient for three hours. The clock work was supposed to turn a large paddle wheel and propel the boat for eight hours on one winding.

This quaint submarine was armed with iron pointed at the ends, with which to ram ships and crush their hulls under water.

De Son had unlimited faith in his vessel and expressed it in the following flow of ancient press agentry, as translated from an old Dutch print:

"The inventor of this ship will undertake to destroy in a single day a hundred vessels, and such destruction could not be prevented by fire, storm, bad weather, or the force of the waves, saving only that the Almighty should otherwise will it. Vain would it be for ships lying in harbor to be regarded as safe, for the inventor could reach anywhere unless prevented by betrayal. None but him could control the craft. Therefore it may truly be called the lightning of the sea. Its power shall be proven by a trip to the East Indies in six weeks or to France and back in a day, for fast as a bird flieth can one travel in this boat."

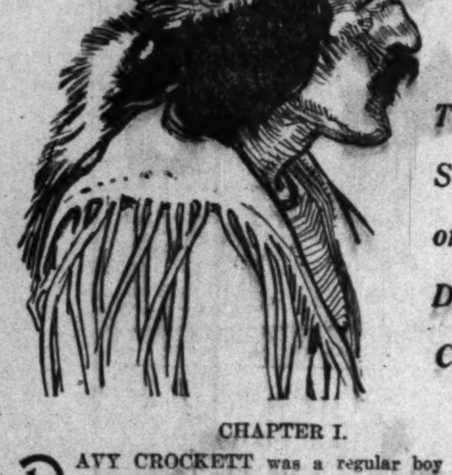


Cross-sectional view of De Son's submarine. Inset shows the paddle wheel propelling device, which failed to work.

However, when the boat was launched, it refused to move. The torque of the clock motor was not able to turn the paddle wheel propeller in water, although the air test had been promising.

But from this seed of thought today the world has submarines which can run nine knots an hour under the sea many hours and which have a cruising range of nearly 3,000 miles.

Famous Adventurers



The Story of Davy Crockett

CHAPTER I.

DAVY CROCKETT was a regular boy scout—although he didn't know it himself. Davy was a boy's kind of boy, and he didn't get over it when he grew up. He had an exciting time growing up, too. He is almost as much to be admired for his weaknesses as for his virtues.

He was born in the fall of 1786 on the banks of the Nolachucky river, in what is now the state of Tennessee. His father, John Crockett, came over from Ireland and fought through the revolution. From his father young Crockett inherited certain picturesque traits that we are inclined to credit to the emotional and temperamental type of Irish.

Davy grew up to boyhood in a country tavern operated by his parents, near Greenville, on the Knoxville road. There Davy sat by the big log fire and heard the travelers' tales. He absorbed all the strange, weird stories and thrilling anecdotes. They lost nothing in the telling when young Crockett came to transmit them, and he grew to be known as "that wild Crockett boy," not because he was really such a wild young person but because of his quaint mannerisms and witty tongue.

Davy's surroundings were not calculated to fill him with either piety or refinements, but despite that he grew up with a sort of native grace of thought and intuitive decency. When he in years after came to preface his autobiography he wrote: "I don't know of anything in my book to be criticized on by honorable men. Is it my spelling? That's not my trade. Is it on grammar? I hadn't time to learn. Is it on the order and arrangement of my book? I never wrote one before, and never read very many."

When Davy was 12 years old he was put into a new suit of homespun and sent off to school. This was the first big event in Davy's life. His experiences in his first few days of school led to the coloring of his whole career.

Davy had acquired a reputation as a fighter, as a leader in mischief, and as a story teller. Just to keep you from suspecting that he was a thoroughly ideal boy, it is well to state here and now he was not a model and there never was a halo made to fit his rebellious head. Right away Davy got in bad with some of his schoolmates. One of them tried to bully Davy. That night, just before the school was dismissed by the hard handed master, Kitchen, Davy slipped out the door and ran down the road. He hid in a clump of bushes and waited for the boys to come along. With a terrifying Indian yell he leaped out on the bully, proceeding to work on him with teeth, nails, and fists. The attack from ambush was a complete success. Then Davy discreetly withdrew to scenes of peace in the wildwood.

This animated circumstance was destined to terminate Davy's educational career. Davy, it is painful to relate, destroyed all illusions of perfection right at this point. To be honest about it, he decided to play "hookey," and, with further infamy, to deceive his parents and his dear teacher.

Davy went home and did his chores as usual that evening. The next day he met his brothers coming from school and, telling them of his plan, swore them to secrecy. Then for many days Davy engaged himself with chasing the ground squirrels and fishing. He turned in at home as usual and presented the meek faced front of a nice little boy from school. One day came a note from the schoolmaster inquiring about Davy's health—which same was excellent.

Davy's father that day repaired to the edge of the clearing and cut for himself a shillalah worthy of the traditions of County Armagh, where the blackthorn grows so thick. Then the worthy father, fired with zeal, set out to make argument with Davy. There ensued a chase—and it is ever known that a stern chase is a long chase. Davy, young and to the lead, covered a couple of miles on high gear, father closely pursuing. Then Davy, out of sight in a bend of the road, stepped into a clump of bushes and allowed the puffing parent to speed past. Then Davy turned on his heel and set out to face the great big world alone—12 years old and willing.

Davy wandered along the lonely road until he caught up with a cattle drover. They joined forces and hiked away toward Virginia behind the herd. But along the way the erratic Davy's enthusiasm waned and he tied up to a wagoner and started back the other way. Probably he did not admit it to himself, but he was rather homesick.

Three years passed with Davy, the wandering boy adventurer, until at last, with a little money in his pocket, he found himself again in the scenes of his childhood, on the Nolachucky river. He walked boldly into the tavern home and with straight face rented a room from his father, the tavernkeeper, getting away with it unrecognized. But that night at supper, as he passed under the full flare of the candle light at the family table, his features were recognized, and the long lost son was greeted with forgiveness.

Davy, reëstablished in his family for the time, set out to do things right. He went to work for a Quaker to whom his father owed $40 and worked out the debt. Then he worked out another similar debt to a neighbor, spending almost a year at it in all. Then Davy, being ambitious and 16, fell in love, headlong and tumultuously. A very flirtatious coquette of the frontier let him down hard and he came up gasping. Davy decided he had lost out because he was ignorant. He started to school, working two days out of six to pay for his board and schooling. With some effort he learned to read and write. He went to school six months.

One is tempted at this time of "hindsight" to wonder how much more effective Crockett might have been if he had had a real education. After concluding his school Davy fell in love some more, several times in succession, with no considerable success. At last his ardent suit brought success, and he married—this time the right girl, too. With two cows and a calf, the dower of the bride, they went to housekeeping in the backwoods, soon removing to a wild region in what is now Franklin county, Tenn.

Then came the war of 1812 and the Indian outrages of the western frontiers of our then tiny United States. Volunteers were called for, and Davy shouldered "Betsy," his long rifle, and went away to war on the redskins.

THE NICK of TIME

By Thomas T. Hoyne

The Long Arm of Coincidence Envelops Maisie in an Adventuresome Embrace Until She Escapes—and Goes Back to the Bargain Counter.

COINCIDENCE is the staff of adventure. It is called fate, or fortune, or foresight by foolish writers of history. Wise chroniclers of truthful fiction know it better and recognize it as old Nick of Time, who alone makes possible the chance meeting or the hairbreadth escape.

The world is filled with eager persons to whom nothing ever happens. They ride on trolley cars, tour in automobiles, travel abroad or crowd moving picture theaters at home, but they are dodged by damage suits, conserved from collisions, neglected by nomadic nobility, and passed up by panics. Although they continually aim the gun of daring at wildly flying flocks of experience they bring down nothing but the commonplace. Nick of Time turns their weapon aside and instead of getting thrills they get tedium.

A city large enough to have three major league baseball teams may well number among its inhabitants two young women, all unknown to each other, of approximately the same age and precisely the same name, without driving the skeptic to harried coincidence to satisfy his incredulity. Miss May Thompson was 19, an heiress, and one of society's elect. Maisie Thompson's distinguishing tokens, which set her far apart from her namesake, were a position behind the hosiery counter in one of the biggest department stores and an unsatisfied yearning for high life as her romantic imagination depicted it.

"—— and the duke ran away with Lillie, the little governess, just like I expected he would; and they was married. It was swell, Mame."

So spoke Maisie at the close of a rainy afternoon, as she deftly folded long, silk stockings and returned them to the boxes in which they belonged. Mame had already cleared her portion of the counter.

"Them kind of things don't happen except in books and fillims," said she, wisely. "If a duke come hanging around a girl in this town he probably would be took for a mutt, anyhow."

"Well, I'd like to have one of them adventures happen to me," said Maisie, eagerly. "I guess I know enough about things to be able to tell a real swell from a fresh guy."

When Maisie put on her raincoat in the dressing room she pinned on her left shoulder a red rose which a floorwalker had picked up in one of the aisles during the day and gallantly presented to her. She noted its effect in the handsome mirror provided by a philanthropic department store proprietor for sales girls to admire themselves in.

Outside the rain was being driven before the cold northwest wind with the force of salt thrown by the stage carpenter in a storm scene. Maisie stepped out from the shelter of the building into a blast of wind and wet. She bent against it and went staggering forward. She crossed the street bravely, but as she was passing Shares' brilliantly lighted candy shop her hardihood failed her and she fled to the cover offered by its inviting doorway. As she did so an anxious young man emerged from a handsome limousine at the curb, looked at Maisie closely, especially noting the rose on her shoulder, and, removing his hat, approached her.

"It's an awful night isn't it?" said he, politely. "I'm glad I haven't kept you waiting."

"I guess you've made a mistake," said Maisie, coldly.

"Surely not," said the young man. "You're Miss Thompson, aren't you? Miss May Thompson?"

There, phlegmatic reader, we have leaned upon the staff of adventure. You know that coincidence explains the error of Mr. Herbert Bracely, bachelor and only son of Mrs. J. Herbert Vanpuff Bracely, haughtiest of the haughty handful who never call on the wrong person, never say the wrong thing, never even pick up the wrong fork at dinner. It was Mr. Bracely who spoke to Maisie. He had come to meet Miss May Thompson and was to recognize her by a red rose she would wear.

For a moment we must turn from sprightly narrative to prosaic exposition. We must explain the coincidence, so that our story, knocked flat by improbability, may be lifted up again by plausibility to march rapidly forward with certain tread.

Miss May Thompson, daughter of Mrs. Bracely's oldest friend, had accepted an invitation to dine, quite en famille, with the Bracelys. She was home from Framington for the holidays. Young Mr. Bracely had not seen her since she was a bashful little girl. Because of the inclement weather it had been arranged by his mother that he should pick Miss Thompson up at Shares'. She was to wear a red rose as badge of identification.

Just as Pierre steered the gallant limousine up to the curb in front of Shares' Mr. Bracely, on the lookout, saw Maisie, wrapped in her flapping raincoat, seek shelter in the doorway. He saw the rose and knew that Maisie was Miss Thompson—Miss May Thompson. Men have been hanged on less sure evidence.

"Certainly, I'm Miss Thompson," said Maisie, looking calmly at Mr. Bracely, "but I don't know you."

"I'm Herbert Bracely," said the young man, somewhat taken aback. He thought Maisie's calm indifference an attitude she had learned at her school and he sneered mentally.

"I knew you at once by the rose," he said. "I should have known you anyway, of course," he added lamely, "although it's a long time since I've seen you."

"I don't believe I remember you," said Maisie, indifferently.

She was not a bit embarrassed. She felt she had the upper hand so far in this encounter. Maisie had experience in encounters with men seeking acquaintanceship. None of them had ever done it quite like this one. She was interested.

"It will take only a few minutes to get up to the house," said Bracely. "Mother is waiting for you now."

He took her arm lightly.

Maisie was about to pull away from him. She felt no fear; merely irritation. She felt she was being taken for granted again. She looked at the car. Pierre stood at the door ready to open it.

Suddenly a thought sprang into her mind and illumined it like a flash of light.

Here was the adventure she had longed for, and she had almost turned her back on it.

She looked at Bracely, smiled uncertainly, and walked with him across the sidewalk. A moment later the door of the limousine slammed, and Maisie, with Bracely beside her on the luxurious seat, was moving rapidly, with springy ease, over the wet, glittering, wind swept pavement.

She watched the yellow reflection of lights stream across the rain streaked window at her elbow. The big car whirled over the rough cross street and turned north in Michigan avenue. Flurries of rain, the gliding motion, the luxuriant appointments of the car and the unknown man, apparently a gentleman, beside her fed Maisie's half starved, romance craving mind a feast for the wildest imaginings. She thought of the heroine of the latest film serial and shivered delightfully.

Mr. Bracely had been studying his companion unobtrusively. He did not know quite how to take her. He was piqued by what he diagnosed as her schoolgirl high and mighty air. At the same time it touched his humor.

"This ride has all the qualities that go to make up romance," said he, whimsically. "Just think! We haven't seen each other since you were a tot. I recognize you by a rose you wear, take you up out of the terrible storm into my chariot, and drive you away to the castle, where we are married amid pomp and feasting to live happily ever after, surrounded by jewels, gingerbread, and jasmine."

Maisie felt her face flame, but she said nothing. She breathed excitedly.

Mr. Bracely looked at her with wonder. Here was a girl he did not understand at all. He dropped the light air with which he had been addressing her and said seriously:

"Mother will be awfully glad to see you."

Then he took up his bantering tone again.

"She is making quite an event of your coming, although no one else is to be there for dinner. She's getting out all the old family plate and all the rest of it." He laughed, expectantly, but Maisie did not join him. She was thinking hard.

The car had crossed the Rush street bridge and was rolling swiftly along the Lake Shore drive. The brilliantly lighted houses, blurred by the rain, reassured Maisie in her predicament.

"A few people are going to drop in after dinner—old playmates of yours, I believe," continued Mr. Bracely. He was making an effort to break through the girl's inexplicable reserve, which he was fast coming to believe was a form of horrible, girlish diffidence with which he had little patience. He mentioned the names of several persons—names that flapped high in the social and financial world. Maisie had read them in the newspapers.

"It is fortunate that you are going to stay over night," said he. "This weather is simply wretched."

Maisie started uneasily and leaned forward.

Her companion misinterpreted the meaning of her change in position.

"Yes, here we are," he said, heartily.

The car came to a stop in front of one of the magnificent houses that face the lake. Pierre opened the door and Mr. Bracely assisted Maisie to alight. She was trembling violently.

"Why, you must be nearly frozen," said Mr. Bracely with ready sympathy, seizing her arm and leading her toward the house.

Maisie was like a rabbit fascinated by a serpent. All her vaunted ability to take care of herself had vanished before new experiences. She accompanied Mr. Bracely up the low flight of steps meekly, her heart beating like an overworked telegraph sounder.

"I'll just open the door myself," said Mr. Bracely, releasing Maisie's arm. He drew a bunch of keys from his pocket, selected one, and bent before the door.

Maisie called upon all her resolution. She caught one glimpse through a window of an elderly woman, marvelously attired, talking with a laughing young lady on whose fingers glittered rings of untold value. Then, with a mighty effort of will she turned and, panting like a hounded hare, silently fled down the steps and away.

It was late the next afternoon before Maisie found opportunity to complete the tale of her adventure to Mame.

"I'll never forget it, Mame, never. He had promised to marry me and load me with jools. Of course, I knew that was all bunk, but I didn't get really afraid until he began to ring in stuff about his mother and to mention a lot of swell names, for he seemed like he was a decent man.

"When we got to the door I saw the old dame through the window, in a dress cut down to her waist, talking to a girl all covered with diamonds, the price of her sin, like a story I was reading says. Then this guy that had spoke all right up to that time gets out a big bunch of keys—there's no telling how many poor girls is locked up in that house. When he starts to open the door I sees my chance. I turns and runs as hard as I can.

"I would be one of them white slaves today, Mame Watkins, as sure as you're a foot high, if I hadn't of saw that opportunity to escape and seized it in the nick of time."

PRINCE AHMED MEETS the FAIRY.

FROM THE ARABIAN NIGHTS.

By DONAHEY

SYNOPSIS.

The three sons of the king of Persia all wish to marry the Princess Nourounihar. The king says he will give her to the one bringing back to him the most unusual present. The three journey away in different directions. The eldest buys a magical rug which carries its owner wherever he wishes to go, the second an ivory tube through which one may see whatever person or thing one wishes, the third, Prince Ahmed, an apple which has the power of curing sick people. When they meet to go home their princess is seen, through the tube, dying. On the magical rug they journey to her in time to save her by means of the enchanted apple. Each now claims her by virtue of the part his gift played in her rescue. The king now says that the one who can shoot an arrow farthest can have her. They shoot. Prince Ahmed shoots much farther than his brothers, but as his arrow cannot be found the king gives the princess to Prince Ali. Determined to find his arrow, Prince Ahmed hunts till he finds it before a door which leads into the side of a huge mountain. He steps in, and the door closes behind him.

PRINCE AHMED was filled with fright, when the door closed behind him, for it was very dark and as silent as the tomb. "But what's the use of being frightened," he muttered as he stood trembling near the door. "I'm going to find out the secret of this place before I leave it."

Little did Prince Ahmed know that it would be a long, long time before he passed that door again. He still carried the arrow he had found outside, and, using it as a blind man uses a cane, he felt his way slowly through the darkness.

Presently he saw a faint light ahead, and soon he walked out from under the rocks into a large square. It was filled with great, tall trees and beautiful flowers bloomed everywhere. A stately palace stood in the center of the square, and as he stood admiring it he saw a girl of wondrous beauty walking along a path attended by a number of ladies, all lovely, and all magnificently dressed.

"O, what a beautiful girl," thought Prince Ahmed. "She is much handsomer than the princess." With his heart beating wildly he walked toward the lovely lady and bowed at her feet. She smiled on the prince, and in the sweetest voice he had ever heard she said, "Arise, Prince Ahmed! I welcome you to my court."

"Who are you, wondrous lady?" murmured the prince taking her small, soft hand and pressing it to his lips.

"I am the fairy, Perie Banou," she answered with a smile. "What a lovely name," he breathed, looking into her blue eyes.

"Come," she said, and, taking him by the hand, she led him up the broad marble steps of the palace.

They passed through the great doors, into a large hall, at one end of which was a couch covered with rich silks and gorgeous rugs.

"Would you like to know how I knew your name?" asked Perie Banou as she seated herself on the couch and motioned to the handsome young prince to do the same.

"O, yes, do tell me," cried the prince, dropping on a rug at her feet.

"Well, you see," she began, "I am a fairy, the daughter of a great and powerful geni. I knew of the love of you and your brother for the Princess Nourounihar, and it was I who caused the magical apple to be sold to you. I also had the ivory tube sold to Prince Ali and the magic rug to Prince Houssain. So, you see, I know a great deal about you and your affairs. I had the arrow carried to the place where you found it, for I am sure a greater happiness awaits you than marrying your princess."

Prince Ahmed spent many happy days wandering about the garden with the beautiful fairy at his side. They learned to love each other very much, and one day, standing under a tree filled with sweet blossoms, they were married.

When Prince Ahmed had been married for some time he felt as though he would like to see his father. He told the fairy of his desire, but she begged him not to go, fearing that he would not return to her. The prince said nothing more about it, but nevertheless he grieved a great deal, for he was very fond of his royal father.

One day as he sat looking sadly out across the fields, the fairy stole softly up behind him and, putting her arms tenderly around his neck, she said, "I know you are thinking of your father, and that you would like to see him. I feel sure that you love me, and that you will come back to me, so if you promise not to stay long I will give you my permission to go. But you must on no account tell your father, or any one else, that you have married a fairy, or where you live."

Prince Ahmed was greatly pleased with the fairy's kindness, and next day, mounted on a handsome charger, with twenty fine soldiers riding behind him, he went off to visit his father.

When he entered the city the people recognized him and followed him in great crowds to the palace. The king received him with great joy and told him he had grieved deeply, thinking him dead. "I have had my soldiers search in every corner of the kingdom for you," cried the happy father. Prince Ahmed then told how he had searched for his arrow, and how he had found it at the foot of the great mountain. "I beg that you will not ask to hear the rest of my story," cried the prince, "but that you will be satisfied to know that I am very happy."

"My son," said the king, "now that I know you are well and happy, I have no desire to know your secrets.

Prince Ahmed spent three pleasant days with his father, and on the fourth returned to his fairy wife, who received him with great joy.

One morning, about a month after the prince returned from visiting his father, the fairy came to him and said, "I think that you should again visit your father. Do not wait for my permission, but just go the first of every month and pay him a visit."

Prince Ahmed went the next day, with the same soldiers, but all were more richly dressed than they were on the first visit.

On the occasion of each visit the prince and his escort rode finer horses and dressed in more gorgeous clothes, for he wished his father's people to see that he was living a life equal to his station.

The grand vizier of the kingdom was a long, lean, hungry looking man with a jealous and suspicious nature. Having noticed the rich clothes and the fine horses of Prince Ahmed, he became alarmed. Going to the king, he said, "Your majesty, though it will grieve you deeply, I have learned of something which I feel it is my duty to tell you." The grand vizier then told the king that it was only prudent to find out where the prince lived and how he could afford to dress so swell when he received no money from the king.

"He dresses much better than you do, your majesty," cunningly went on the grand vizier, rubbing his hands together in a nervous way, "and it seems to me that he comes to your court only to insult you with his fine clothes and jewels. I fear he might court the people's favor and dethrone you. Besides, it is dangerous to have so powerful a neighbor. For he must live near by, as neither his horses nor men show signs of travel when he arrives here."

The king was greatly disturbed by what he heard, and the more he thought of it all the more pained he was. "It doesn't seem possible," he thought, "that my son should wish to do me harm. But at least I can watch him."

● When Prince Ahmed next came to the palace the king was careful to examine his clothes. He saw that they were costly, set with jewels, and much richer and more beautiful than his own. This filled the king with jealousy, and, anxious to learn the mystery which surrounded the prince, he said, "My son, I have never asked where you live or how you get these wonderful clothes, but I think you might confide in me."

"It is beyond my power to tell you," answered the prince, slowly shaking his head. "As much as I would like to tell you, I cannot do so."

"I'll find out your secret, anyhow," muttered the king to himself, frowning down upon the prince.

As Prince Ahmed was careful that no one should find out where he lived, he was in the habit of leaving his father's palace at very odd hours. So it was before daylight the next morning that he set out for home. When he rode up to the door in the side of the mountain he stopped his horse, and, looking carefully around to be sure that no one saw him, he opened the door and entered. Little did the prince know that a pair of small, cunning eyes, peering eagerly over the edge of a rock near by, had seen him disappear through that magic doorway.

THE TEENIE WEENIES

HAVE A BICYCLE RACE ON A MEAT PLATTER

By DONAHEY

"WHEW," gasped the Dunce, as he jumped from his bicycle and sat down on a hickory nutshell which lay near the front steps of the Teenie Weenie house, "I certainly did beat the Turk that time."

"Where is he?" asked the General, who sat on the steps enjoying the warm, spring sunshine.

"O, I left him way down the garden walk," gasped the Dunce, and, taking off his hat, he fanned his flushed face with all his might.

"Here he comes now," cried the Sailor, pointing down the walk. The Turk came riding up at a furious speed. Jumping off his wheel he walked over to the Dunce and cried: "If I hadn't been thrown when I ran over a nail down there at the turn of the road I'd have beaten you, and just to prove it I'll race you after lunch."

"It's a go!" shouted the Dunce. "I know where there's a big meat platter, and it'll make a dandy place, just the kind of a track real bicycle racers ride on."

All the Teenie Weenies were very much excited about the race, and when lunch was over they all hurried to the house where the meat platter race course was. The meat platter was up on a shelf in a cupboard, and soon the Teenie Weenies had crowded up to the shelf and pulled the two bicycles after them.

The General was made judge of the race, the Old Soldier timekeeper, and the Cowboy starter.

"Now," said the General, addressing the two racers, "when the Cowboy fires the pistol the race will start, and when he fires again you must stop."

"All right," cried the racers, and jumping on their wheels they began to speed around the edge of the plate in order to get a good start.

"Bang!" went the Cowboy's revolver, and off they went whizzing around the plate so fast it almost made the Teenie Weenies dizzy to watch them.

"My, but isn't this exciting," cried the Lady of Fashion, grasping the Doctor's arm.

The Turk was ahead on the sixth time around the plate, and then, little by little, the Dunce crept up until he was right beside the Turk. The Cook got so excited he fell off the cup on which he had been sitting and almost broke a saucer.

"Bang!" went the Cowboy's gun again, and the race was over.

"Ladies and gentlemen," cried the General as the racers jumped from their wheels and stood waiting the decision, "the Turk is winner of this great race by half a plate!"

"Three rousing cheers for the Turk!" cried the defeated Dunce, and they were given with a will.

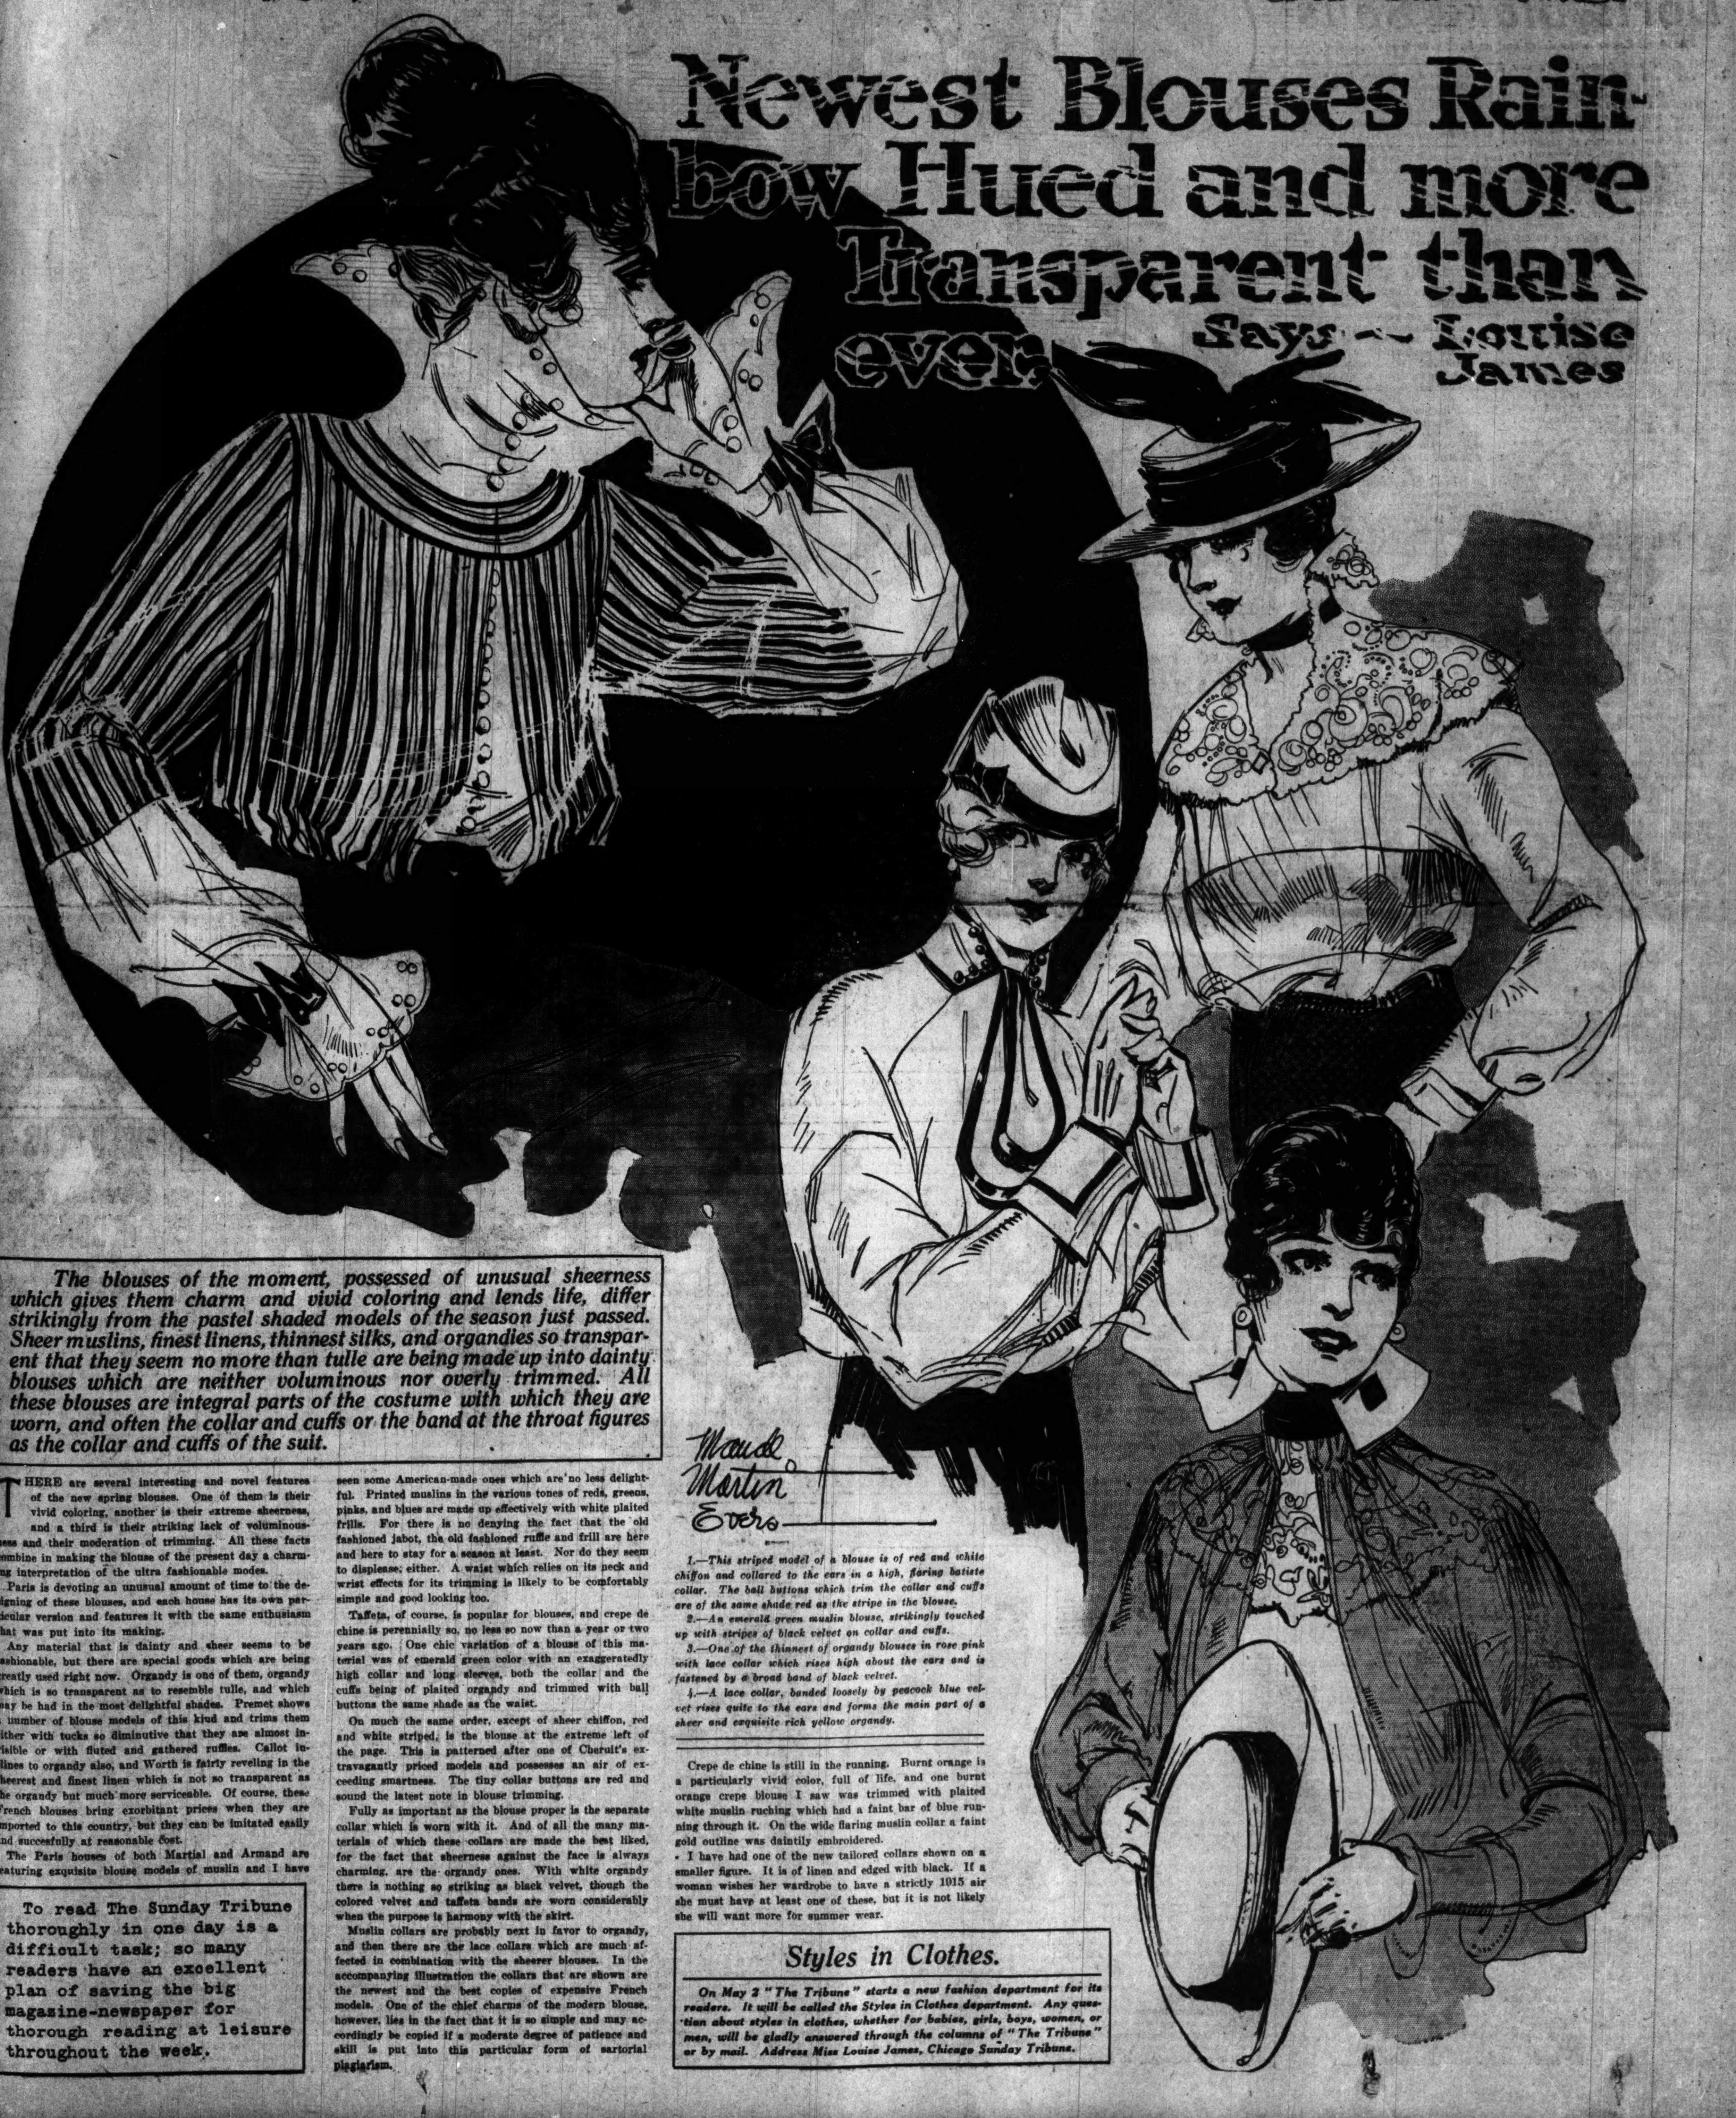
Newest Blouses Rainbow Hued and more Transparent than ever

Says -- Louise James



The blouses of the moment, possessed of unusual sheerness which gives them charm and vivid coloring and lends life, differ strikingly from the pastel shaded models of the season just passed. Sheer muslins, finest linens, thinnest silks, and organdies so transparent that they seem no more than tulle are being made up into dainty blouses which are neither voluminous nor overly trimmed. All these blouses are integral parts of the costume with which they are worn, and often the collar and cuffs or the band at the throat figures as the collar and cuffs of the suit.

THERE are several interesting and novel features of the new spring blouses. One of them is their vivid coloring, another is their extreme sheerness, and a third is their striking lack of voluminousness and their moderation of trimming. All these facts combine in making the blouse of the present day a charming interpretation of the ultra fashionable modes.

Paris is devoting an unusual amount of time to the designing of these blouses, and each house has its own particular version and features it with the same enthusiasm that was put into its making.

Any material that is dainty and sheer seems to be fashionable, but there are special goods which are being greatly used right now. Organdy is one of them, organdy which is so transparent as to resemble tulle, and which may be had in the most delightful shades. Premet shows a number of blouse models of this kind and trims them either with tucks so diminutive that they are almost invisible or with fluted and gathered ruffles. Callot inclines to organdy also, and Worth is fairly reveling in the sheerest and finest linen which is not so transparent as the organdy but much more serviceable. Of course, these French blouses bring exorbitant prices when they are imported to this country, but they can be imitated easily and succesfully at reasonable cost.

The Paris houses of both Martial and Armand are featuring exquisite blouse models of muslin and I have seen some American-made ones which are no less delightful. Printed muslins in the various tones of reds, greens, pinks, and blues are made up effectively with white plaited frills. For there is no denying the fact that the old fashioned jabot, the old fashioned ruffle and frill are here and here to stay for a season at least. Nor do they seem to displease; either. A waist which relies on its neck and wrist effects for its trimming is likely to be comfortably simple and good looking too.

Taffeta, of course, is popular for blouses, and crepe de chine is perennially so, no less so now than a year or two years ago. One chic variation of a blouse of this material was of emerald green color with an exaggeratedly high collar and long sleeves, both the collar and the cuffs being of plaited organdy and trimmed with ball buttons the same shade as the waist.

Fully as important as the blouse proper is the separate collar which is worn with it. And of all the many materials of which these collars are made the best liked, for the fact that sheerness against the face is always charming, are the organdy ones. With white organdy there is nothing so striking as black velvet, though the colored velvet and taffeta bands are worn considerably when the purpose is harmony with the skirt.

Muslin collars are probably next in favor to organdy, and then there are the lace collars which are much affected in combination with the sheerer blouses. In the accompanying illustration the collars that are shown are the newest and the best copies of expensive French models. One of the chief charms of the modern blouse, however, lies in the fact that it is so simple and may accordingly be copied if a moderate degree of patience and skill is put into this particular form of sartorial plagiarism.

1.—This striped model of a blouse is of red and white chiffon and collared to the ears in a high, flaring batiste collar. The ball buttons which trim the collar and cuffs are of the same shade red as the stripe in the blouse.

2.—An emerald green muslin blouse, strikingly touched up with stripes of black velvet on collar and cuffs.

3.—One of the thinnest of organdy blouses in rose pink with lace collar which rises high about the ears and is fastened by a broad band of black velvet.

4.—A lace collar, banded loosely by peacock blue velvet rises quite to the ears and forms the main part of a sheer and exquisite rich yellow organdy.

Crepe de chine is still in the running. Burnt orange is a particularly vivid color, full of life, and one burnt orange crepe blouse I saw was trimmed with plaited white muslin ruching which had a faint bar of blue running through it. On the wide flaring muslin collar a faint gold outline was daintily embroidered.

I have had one of the new tailored collars shown on a smaller figure. It is of linen and edged with black. If a woman wishes her wardrobe to have a strictly 1915 air she must have at least one of these, but it is not likely she will want more for summer wear.

To read The Sunday Tribune thoroughly in one day is a difficult task; so many readers have an excellent plan of saving the big magazine-newspaper for thorough reading at leisure throughout the week.

Styles in Clothes.

On May 2 "The Tribune" starts a new fashion department for its readers. It will be called the Styles in Clothes department. Any question about styles in clothes, whether for babies, girls, boys, women, or men, will be gladly answered through the columns of "The Tribune" or by mail. Address Miss Louise James, Chicago Sunday Tribune.

The Confession I Wish I Had Never Made.

Did you ever make a confession to a friend, husband, wife, or the one you promised to marry that you lived to regret bitterly having made? Or have you suffered because of a confession you should have made and didn't? "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published. Address Doris Blake, Chicago Tribune.

Doris Blake Says

The April flower is the daisy and its birthstone is the diamond.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

Fails to Telephone.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am in love with a man three years my senior. Now, this man, when with me, shows his love for me in all ways, and when he leaves he says he will call me up, but does not do so. I made several dates with this young man and he promises to call up to let me know if he is coming, and he does not do so. Now, please advise me what I should do. Do you think I ought to give him up? I love him very much. BETTY."

It depends upon how seriously he disappoints you whether you ought to refuse to have anything more to do with him or not. If he breaks engagements with you and offers no explanation, of course you won't want to have anything more to do with him, but if he merely neglects to telephone when he has said that he may call you up, he hasn't done anything dreadful.

She's Starting Out.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have a number of questions to ask you.

"1. Is a girl 16 years old, and working, too young to go out with the young men?

"2. On leaving my friend in the evening what could I say to him?

"3. When young men ask to take me home, what could I say to them?

"4. Is it all right to wear his ring?

"I am just starting out in life and thought I would rather ask you the questions than make a fool of myself. A. J."

I think if a girl is capable of earning her own living she is capable of taking care of herself under most other conditions. However, I don't approve of a 16 year old girl staying out late evenings or going out every night in the week. Simply thank your friend for the pleasure he has afforded you. If you wish them to accompany you home say, "Thank you, I shall be happy to have you accompany me home." No; don't wear his ring. Write me any time I can be of assistance to you.

Parents Favor Half-wit.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a girl 16 and have a very important question I would like you to advise me on.

"There is a sort of half-witten young fellow in my neighborhood, who has several times asked me to marry him. He seems offended if I hint at refusing him. His parents and mine are very dear friends and wish me to marry him. I do not love him now, but think I could learn to if I had to.

"Would you advise me to marry him? I graduated from high school last spring. "E. H. J."

Really, I can hardly believe you when you say your parents want you to marry a half-witted person. Don't do it. Marriage is a state in which each of the contracting parties requires all the wits allotted the normal human being. You surely must misunderstand your parents' attitude, for no parent nowadays encourages a 16 year old girl to assume the responsibilities of marriage.

Send Her Picture.

"Dear Miss Blake: I am a young fellow, 21, in love with a sweet girl of 19. I have known her since childhood, and we belong to the same church. I have been keeping company with her about six months. She has a very sweet disposition and is interested in subjects I talk about. Her birthday comes soon. Kindly suggest an appropriate gift that is not too expensive. Do you think she would appreciate a picture of me? She has promised me one of her."

Have you a perplexing love affair in which you need the counsel of a friend? Write to Doris Blake, care "The Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply send stamped and addressed envelope.

If the girl likes you there is nothing that would please her more than to have a photograph of you. Why not send it to her with some flowers?

About Invitations.

"Dear Miss Blake: I have a few questions that are puzzling me. If you have an announcement party are those invited to the party expected to be invited to the wedding, or is it optional with the bride? When an invitation is addressed, for instance, to Mr. and Mrs. Jones, does this invitation include the children? R. H."

It isn't necessary to invite to a wedding the guests that participated in the announcement party. The family is not included in an invitation addressed to Mr. and Mrs. Jones.

Is It His "Mary"?

"Dear Miss Blake: In the paper of March 16 a girl signed "Mary" asks you a question. The question just fits my case, but the company she had was not company I would have my sister have. Please let me know the address or town this girl lives in. If she is my Mary we will say good-by at once. ANXIOUS."

I am sorry that I cannot give you "Mary's" name and address. All letters which come to me are considered strictly confidential. There are any number of Marys in Chicago, so that it was probably not your Mary, anyway.

Troubled at 15.

"Dear Miss Blake: A friend I have known for some time asked me for an engagement with him some evening. I refused rather haughtily, saying I had to do this and that and other things.

"As I have told you, my age is 15. Do you think if I go about with boys once in a while it would be considered not 'nice'? He has treated me with expressed kindness and was gentlemanly while about me.

"That evening I acted queer—I realize that—and do you think it would be proper if I should write a note of apology?

"He seems to think he is not good enough for me, thinking I think that, but, in reality, I have no such thought towards any one. Tell me just what you would do. L. H."

You are too young to go around with boys, but that is no reason why you should be rude to them. Why didn't you tell the boy quite frankly that you weren't allowed to have callers? That would have been the best thing to do. You are probably imagining that you have hurt his feelings much more severely than you really did. The next time you see him be nice to him and he'll forget all about your haughtiness. No, don't write to him. You don't owe him an apology as much as all that.

Love Letters

Her Misstep in Love.

Dear Ralph: It is hard for me to write you after all that has happened, but I'll try, for I promised I would, and please ignore the frequent incoherencies that my letter may contain.

It was splendid of you to come to me in the time of my recent trouble, and surely you cannot doubt how deeply touched I am by your sympathy. I am sure that above all people I deserve the least kindness from you, but even if I tried I could not change a thing that has passed. Your call did me more good than anything that could have happened, but since then I have been unhappy for fear I gave you more encouragement than I should, though I am not writing to take back one whit of it. It wasn't because I dreaded to hurt you more than I have all these years—I have been through too much to be cowardly—but I wanted you to know that if what you are hoping for can ever be possible I will help, and I couldn't do more, could I?

As for love coming again, I can't say, for even though I have suffered miserably with my husband it has all been buried with him, and I feel only that wretchedness and heartache of a blasted, disappointed love. Would it be fair to give you no more than the shackles of my affection? I care too much for you to do that.

I still cherish that girlhood feeling for you. Ralph, you have been the truest, most unselfish friend a person could have, and I know I haven't deserved you. But you may be gratified to know that always you have represented my ideals of manhood, and your consideration and thoughtfulness of me and the love I have never been able to return have bolstered my courage more than once to make me a better woman.

But now I am free to start life again and, as before, you are near to help me. Much of my impetuosity is gone; deeper, finer things have been instilled in its place, so writing you isn't an impulse, but the action of a level headed woman. It is true that I tried to shirk the responsibilities which came to me, but how much of spiritual development I would have missed if I had not grown up at last!

Through all that has befallen me I have learned well what our beloved Van Dyke has written, "That love is not getting, but giving; not a wild dream of pleasure nor a madness of desire. No, love is not that. It is honor, and peace, and pure living. Love is that, and it is the best thing in the world, and the thing that lives longest."

And that, dearest Ralph, is just what I'm wishing for you with this letter.

Faithfully, HELEN.

A Long Delayed Tribute.

Dear Woman of Long Ago: Tonight in the silence of my offices, weary body and brain, and lonely in spite of my success as a master or finance I'm going to write to you. I've never written love letters and this one may be a poor attempt, but I know that if your dear eyes look ever upon these words that, as of yore, you will understand, better than I can express myself, the love and reverence in my heart for you.

"The Tribune" will pay $5 for every original love letter published. No letters copied from a book or magazine will be considered. Address Doris Blake, "Chicago Tribune." Letters must be written on only one side of the paper. No manuscripts returned.

In the old days when I had you with me, life like new wine had gone to my head; intoxicated with youth and my own ambitions I forgot to tell you all you meant to me. I failed in all my golden opportunities to fill the cup pof your life with the gladness and youth of mine. Failed to give you words, for flowers of love to wear in your heart as all good women do. And you were always so patient and loving, always gentle and forgiving. Giving me always the best of your life, asking nothing in return but that mine should be a happy and worthy one. Ready to efface yourself or needs should I be served thereby. The one woman in the world who loved me perfectly!

And tonight, looking back over the long years since you left me, I crave with every fiber of my manhood, which you built, to weave a garland of words, tied with my ambitions, and lay them with my soul at your dear feet—a perfect tribute for the one woman!

Out of my heart's blood would I write of what you have meant to me these long, long years. My hair is white now and my shoulders bent from burdens of the long journey since your going. Time did not heal but increased for me the pain of your loss. And when I arrived to success, a wife and children and social peerage, I but missed you the more.

I wanted then your smiling tender lips to praise me. I wanted to share with you the fruitage of my man's success, and to give you in overflowing measure what in my youth I failed to do—my love and tender consideration. It is to you and your influence and your love that I owe all of the success I may be today as citizen, home maker, or man.

I've played the game of business "fair and square" according to your counsel. When the road of beauty turned into that of duty in my home life I still played "fair," remembering you.

Through the gateway of your pain I came into life; through your building and your counsel that life has achieved worldly success and when the time comes that the life be released to the realms beyond, for happiness there I humbly ask the Giver of All, to send me to the one, the perfect woman—my mother.

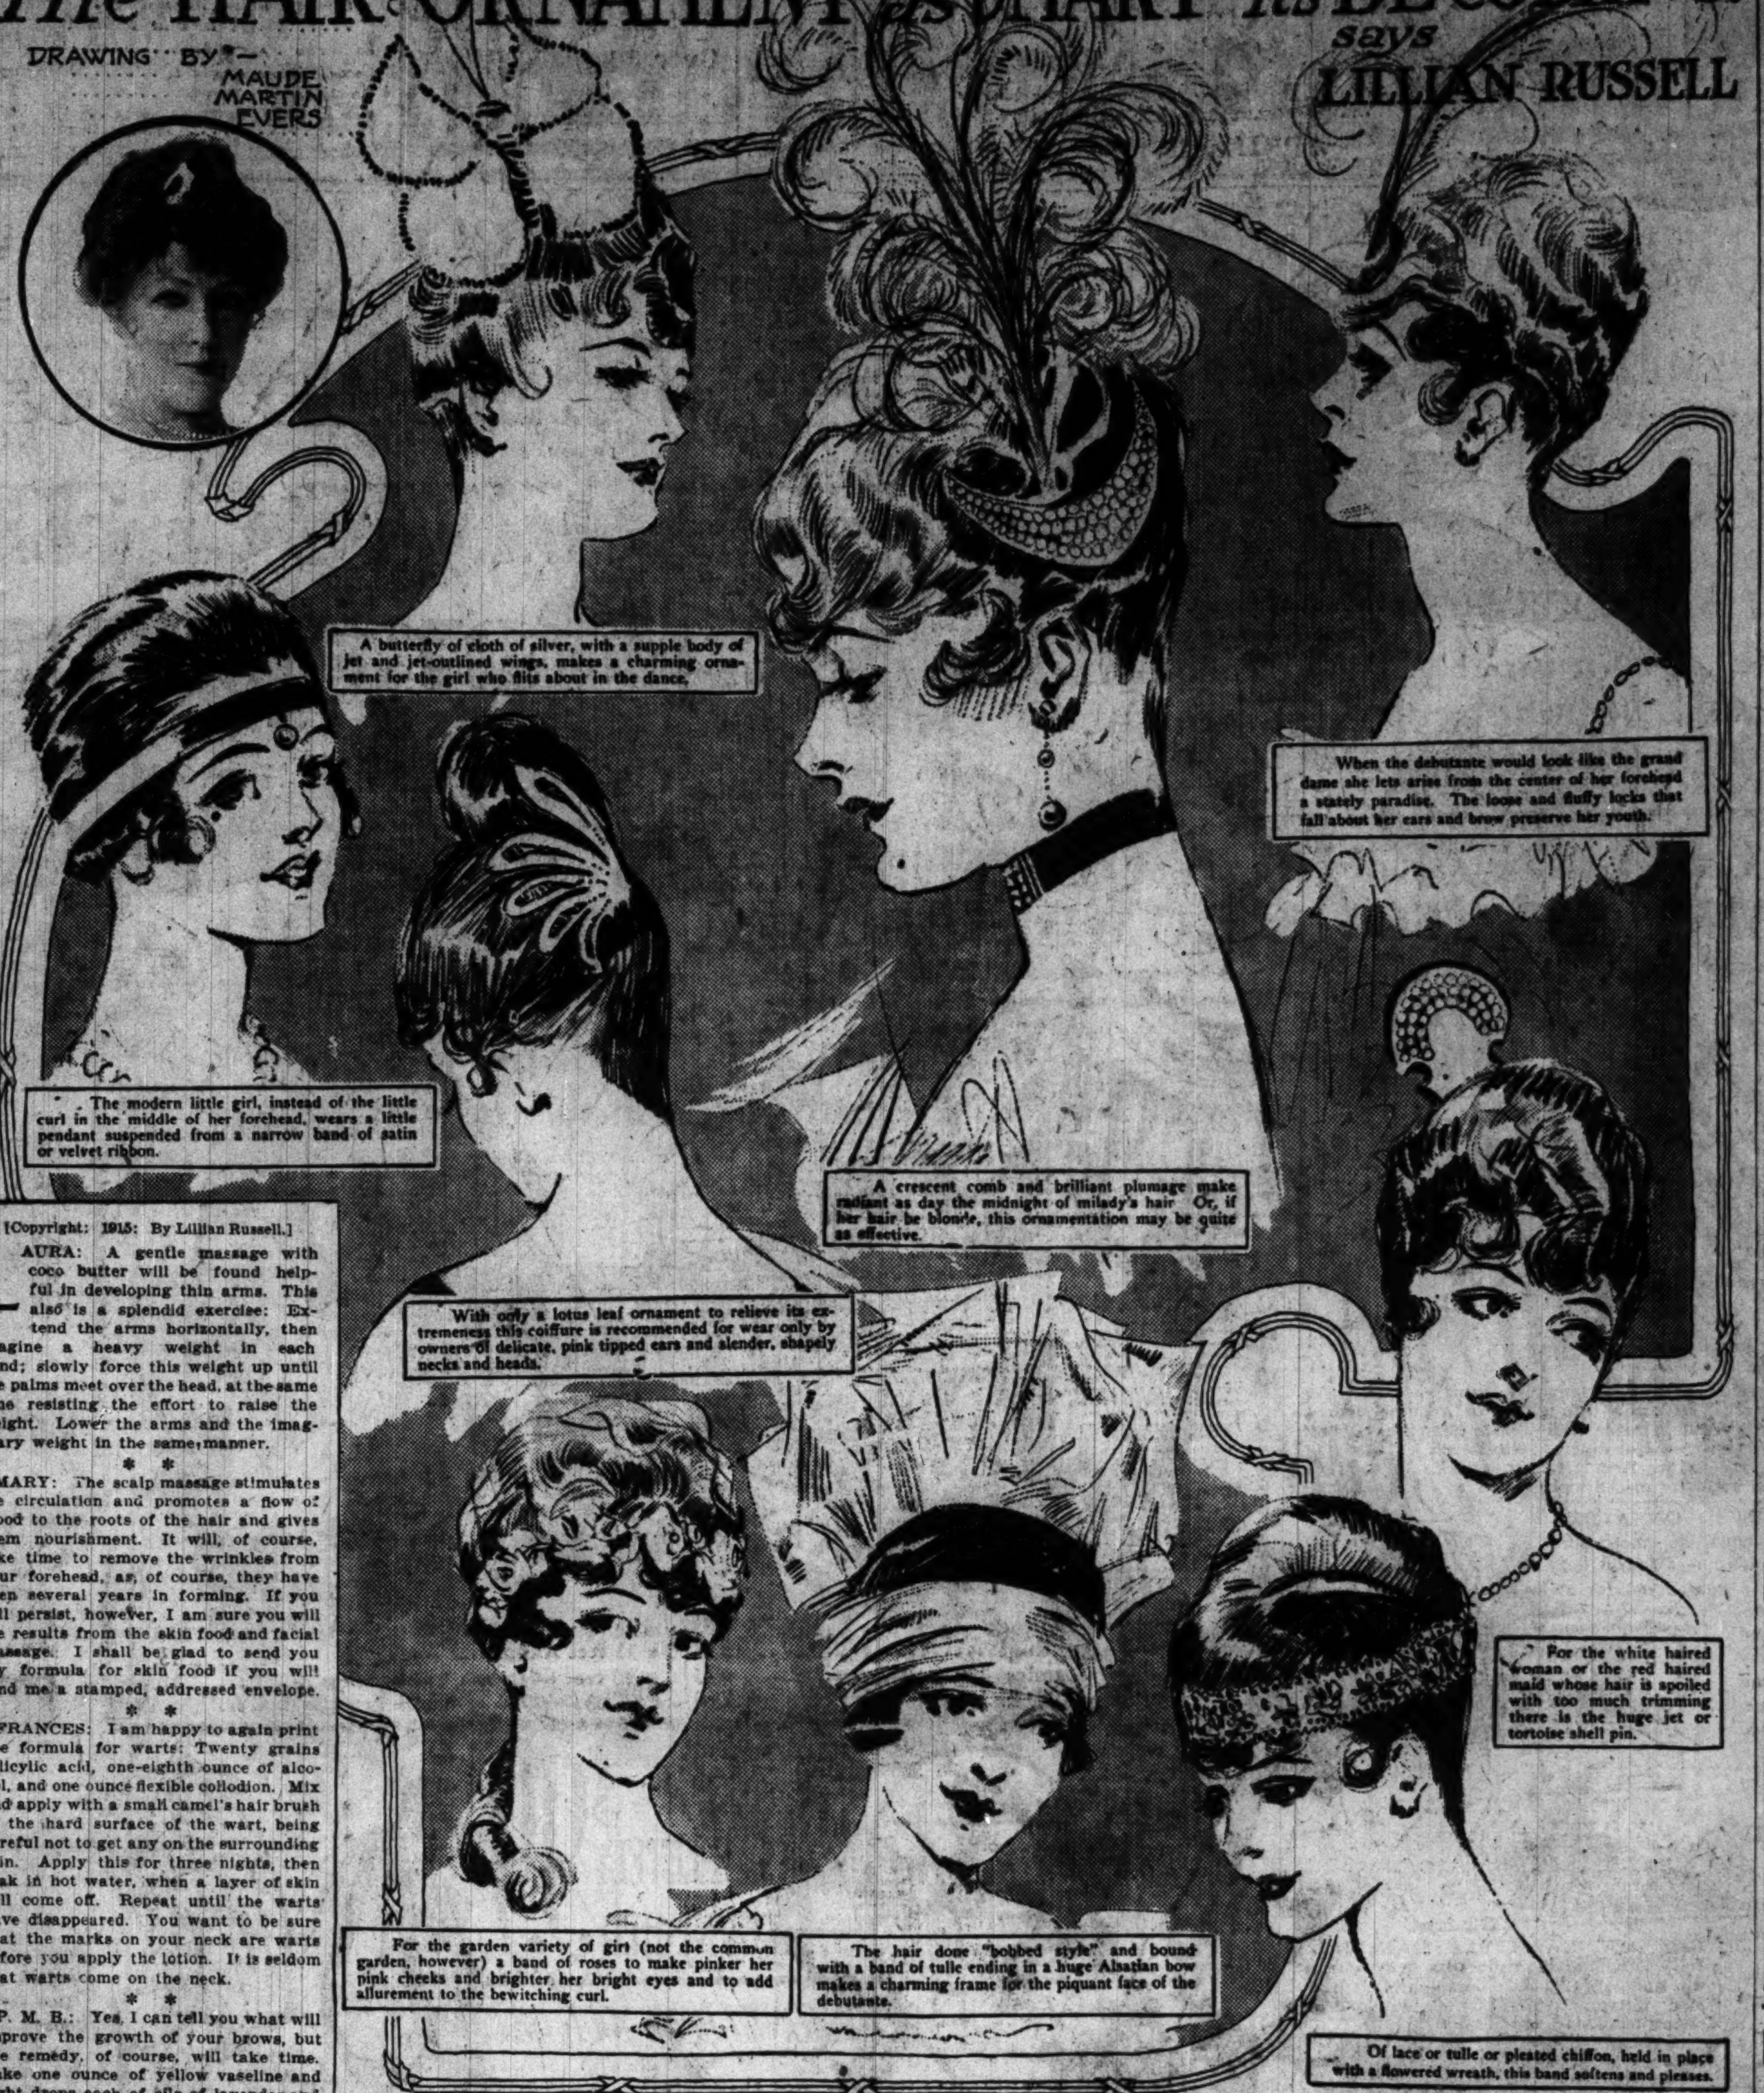
The HAIR ORNAMENT is as SMART as its BECOMING! says LILLIAN RUSSELL



DRAWING BY MAUDE MARTIN EVERS

A butterfly of cloth of silver, with a supple body of jet and jet-outlined wings, makes a charming ornament for the girl who flits about in the dance.

When the debutante would look like the grand dame she lets arise from the center of her forehead a stately paradise. The loose and fluffy locks that fall about her ears and brow preserve her youth.

The modern little girl, instead of the little curl in the middle of her forehead, wears a little pendant suspended from a narrow band of satin or velvet ribbon.

A crescent comb and brilliant plumage make radiant as day the midnight of milady's hair. Or, if her hair be blonde, this ornamentation may be quite as effective.

With only a lotus leaf ornament to relieve its extremeness this coiffure is recommended for wear only by owners of delicate, pink tipped ears and slender, shapely necks and heads.

For the white haired woman or the red haired maid whose hair is spoiled with too much trimming there is the huge jet or tortoise shell pin.

For the garden variety of girl (not the common garden, however) a band of roses to make pinker her pink cheeks and brighter her bright eyes and to add allurement to the bewitching curl.

The hair done "bobbed style" and bound with a band of tulle ending in a huge Alsatian bow makes a charming frame for the piquant face of the debutante.

Of lace or tulle or pleated chiffon, held in place with a flowered wreath, this band softens and pleases.

LAURA: A gentle massage with coco butter will be found helpful in developing thin arms. This also is a splendid exercise: Extend the arms horizontally, then imagine a heavy weight in each hand; slowly force this weight up until the palms meet over the head, at the same time resisting the effort to raise the weight. Lower the arms and the imaginary weight in the same manner.

MARY: The scalp massage stimulates the circulation and promotes a flow of blood to the roots of the hair and gives them nourishment. It will, of course, take time to remove the wrinkles from your forehead, as, of course, they have been several years in forming. If you will persist, however, I am sure you will see results from the skin food and facial massage. I shall be glad to send you my formula for skin food if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

FRANCES: I am happy to again print the formula for warts: Twenty grains salicylic acid, one-eighth ounce of alcohol, and one ounce flexible collodion. Mix and apply with a small camel's hair brush to the hard surface of the wart, being careful not to get any on the surrounding skin. Apply this for three nights, then soak in hot water, when a layer of skin will come off. Repeat until the warts have disappeared. You want to be sure that the marks on your neck are warts before you apply the lotion. It is seldom that warts come on the neck.

P. M. B.: Yes, I can tell you what will improve the growth of your brows, but the remedy, of course, will take time. Take one ounce of yellow vaseline and eight drops each of oils of lavender and rosemary. After washing the face, smooth the eyebrows carefully with an eyebrow brush upon which a drop of the tonic has been placed. The eyebrow brushes can be purchased at any drug store or department store at a cost of not more than a quarter. There are less expensive ones.

VIRGINIA: Yes, a gentle massage with warm cocoa butter around and upward along the glands will help to enlarge the bust. Eat plenty of fat making foods, plenty of butter and fat of meat, drink cream and milk, sleep lots, and don't worry. Deep breathing will also help. This is a good exercise for developing the bust: Double your fists as tightly as you can, bringing them together in front with the arms raised so as to be horizontal. While keeping your arms on a level with your shoulders slowly separate your fists as widely as possible. Do this 100 times every night.

WORRIED: You cannot have a pretty, shapely ankle if you constantly wear low shoes the year around. High lace or button shoes are best to wear to keep the ankle in trim. There isn't any harm in wearing a low shoe for evening wear, for the short time you would have it on would not tend to increase the size of the ankle. The epsom salts paste will help to reduce the size of the ankles. I shall be glad to mail you the formula if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

VERA: Blonde hair requires especial care in shampooing. Nothing is more attractive than glossy blonde hair with a golden tint. Do not bleach your hair to keep it light. It must be shampooed about once in three weeks to keep it in good condition. Care must be taken in selecting a suitable shampoo. This is an excellent formula: One tablespoon of listerine, three tablespoons of tincture of green soap, and the white of an egg. Wet the hair and scalp with warm water, pour the shampoo over the head, and rub with the finger tips until a stiff lather is formed. Do this three times if the hair is heavy. Rinse the hair well, for if any soap is allowed to remain it will spoil the gold tint so much to be desired by the blonde girl.

MARGUERITE: There is harm in pinching your cheeks to make them red. You will make the muscles sag and the cheeks will become flabby and wrinkled. If you wish rosy cheeks look to your general health. Get all the exercise you can in the open air. Walk at least three miles a day. Sleep eight hours, with plenty of fresh air in the room.

RUTH: Try the swimming exercise for developing the thighs. Stand with the feet about eighteen inches apart, with the right foot advanced and the right leg straight; the weight is thrown on the left leg, and the arms bent at right angles ready for the beginning of the stroke. Shoot the arms directly forward, straightening the left leg, incline the whole body forward, and throw the weight on the right, which should be bent. Then sweep the hands and arms outward in a horizontal plane until the arms, trunk, and legs are brought into the original position. Then take the same exercises, reversing the positions of the right and left legs.

MAE: Drinking lots of water will often correct puffiness under the eyes. This condition may be caused from eyestrain, kidney trouble, or late hours, and sometimes crying causes it. Try to learn the cause and correct it. Bathe with warm water and then massage under the eyes with a good massage cream or skin food, being careful not to touch the eyeball. In the morning bathe the eyes with cold water. I have an excellent formula for an eye wash which I shall be glad to send you if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

BERTHA: Your skin has become dry because it lacks the natural oils. At night rub a good supply of cream or skin food into your face, leaving a portion of it on over night. This will supply the oil that is lacking and make the skin soft and smooth. I shall be glad to send you my formula for a good skin food if you will send me a stamped, addressed envelope.

MRS. W. E. R.: Have you ever tried using the sour milk treatment for whitening the neck? You first bathe the throat in warm water until it is quite warm. Do not dry it, but while it is still warm and damp pat on a quantity of the sour milk, place a thin piece of linen over the application of sour milk, and leave it on for at least half an hour, or if this be done at night before retiring leave it on over night. In the morning or after the milk is quite dry bathe the throat with a piece of flannel dipped in lukewarm water and borax, or lukewarm water in which a few drops of benzoin have been mixed, and, last of all, sponge the neck with cold water. The cold water closes the pores of the throat and prevents taking cold and also hardens the cuticle of the throat.

VERONICA: Massaging with a good skin food will, I am sure, remove the scaly, rough condition of your face. Pimples and blackheads often come from indigestion and from poor circulation. The best cure is fresh air, exercise, and a careful diet. Do not eat rich and spicy foods, pastries and sweets, and oily meats, such as pork and veal. Drink coco, chocolate, and milk, instead of tea and coffee. Walk several miles a day and get all the exercise possible in the open air.

Before and After Marriage.

Never Used to Be Heavy.

In our courting days he used to hold me on his lap for hours and I was never too heavy, but now when I sit on his knees for ten seconds he groans and says, "Get off; I've got a cramp in my leg."

Began to Cheer Up.

I am now at the age of 53 and have retained my beauty by a simple process.

Two years ago I was a sallow, raw boned, extremely plain looking woman, unloving and exacting. About that time I went to live with my daughter-in-law, who was of a loving disposition, cheerful and pretty, who took great pleasure in making other people happy. She persisted in my reading good books of cheerful nature and about broad minded men and women; took me to operas, musicals, and good lectures; took complete charge of my skimpy wardrobe and made me wear soft colors instead of stiff blacks, and lacy, ribbony affairs, which completely changed my appearance.

At the end of a year I was completely changed and was married to a man who belonged to my new set. I am considered now a pretty, cheerful woman, and all on account of thinking pleasant thoughts, reading broadening books, and wearing soft, pretty colors. L. M.

He Beats Her Up.

John, ere the nuptial knot was tied,
Was gallantry personified,
A lover, tried and true.
But once that knot was fast and tight,
His faults began to come to light.
Now, what was I to do?

The most peculiar thing to me,
(And I am sure that you'll agree,
At least that it was queer),
About the same time every morning,
He "beat me up" without a warning,
The while he called me "dear."

'Tis seven years since we were wed.
A happy life we two have led;
Our love is sure and steady.
John ne'er will change his ways, I fear,
He "beats me up," the good old dear,
And gets the breakfast ready.

Wears a Good Corset.

I used to think myself very sensible for going without corsets. One day I began to wonder why my clothes always looked so sloppy and ill fitting, and it dawned upon me that perhaps a good corset, that fitted me, might make a difference. Now my friends are saying, "Why, I never noticed before what a good figure you have." J. A.

Broke a Bad Habit.

When a girl, I had the worst habit of standing with my arms akimbo, and thus making my hips sag down. My mother finally broke me of this, after a good deal of patience, by calling me the old washerwoman, and for which I am everlastingly grateful, for now I am not the laughing stock of everybody. H. M.

Clothes Add Attractiveness.

I have found that the best route to attractiveness is through clothes. One's attire must correspond in character with one's type of beauty. By that I mean that a delicate dainty "pink and white" blonde should wear delicate, dainty, pink and white clothes to match her beauty. When I was young my mother's selection of clothes for me never quite suited me, and now that I am old enough to have something to say in the matter, I have discovered and overcome the difficulty. I am not a sweet, delicate appearing girl, and so the sweet, delicate, soft clothes I had to wear made me look as out of place as a duck out of water. I'm a brunette decidedly, my features are sharp, snapping, and pronounced. So give me clothes to match—striking suits, chic hats, the latest in boots, extreme waists and gowns—and all of them plain and simple—then I am at my best. L. B.

Did you transform yourself from an ugly duckling by a beauty trick? Write and tell me what that beauty trick was. "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published. Address Lillian Russell, Chicago Tribune.

People See Only Her Eyes.

I never was a beauty nor could I truly become one, but I decided to do my best. After studying my face, which is too round, I found my eyes were my best feature, so I put vaseline on my eyelashes till they were quite long and thick, and which I always blacken both above and beneath. Then I pulled out my eyebrows until they pere a perfect arch and so thin they looked penciled. This was some trouble, as one must keep it up, but I was well repaid for my work, as any number of people have admired and complimented me on them, even beauty specialists. Then, as a last touch, I put a small beauty spot at the side of the right eye. All these things bring out the size and brightness of the eyes, which I try to always open wide and fill with expression, and people in admiring my eyes and brows forget or overlook my poor features and call be good looking. C. D.

Arched Her Eyebrows.

About five years ago I took stock of my beauty points. I had a few. My eyes, forehead, chin that boasted of a dimple, and mouth were all right, but my eyebrows spoiled my face. They grew across my nose and ran up in a peak across my eye. To add to the effect, they were black and heavy and my hair is a bright brown, nearly red.

I got a pair of tweezers and pulled them out, all the spare ones, and now they are just slightly arched. I go over them once a week and "weed" them out.

My cheeks were a trifle full. I gently massaged them just like I was rubbing the flesh off and did. The last touch was to part my hair on the side and always keep it waved off my face. I wear the colors that look well on me.

When I compare my used to be self to myself now I am sure the time and effort I put in were worth it. MRS. B. W.

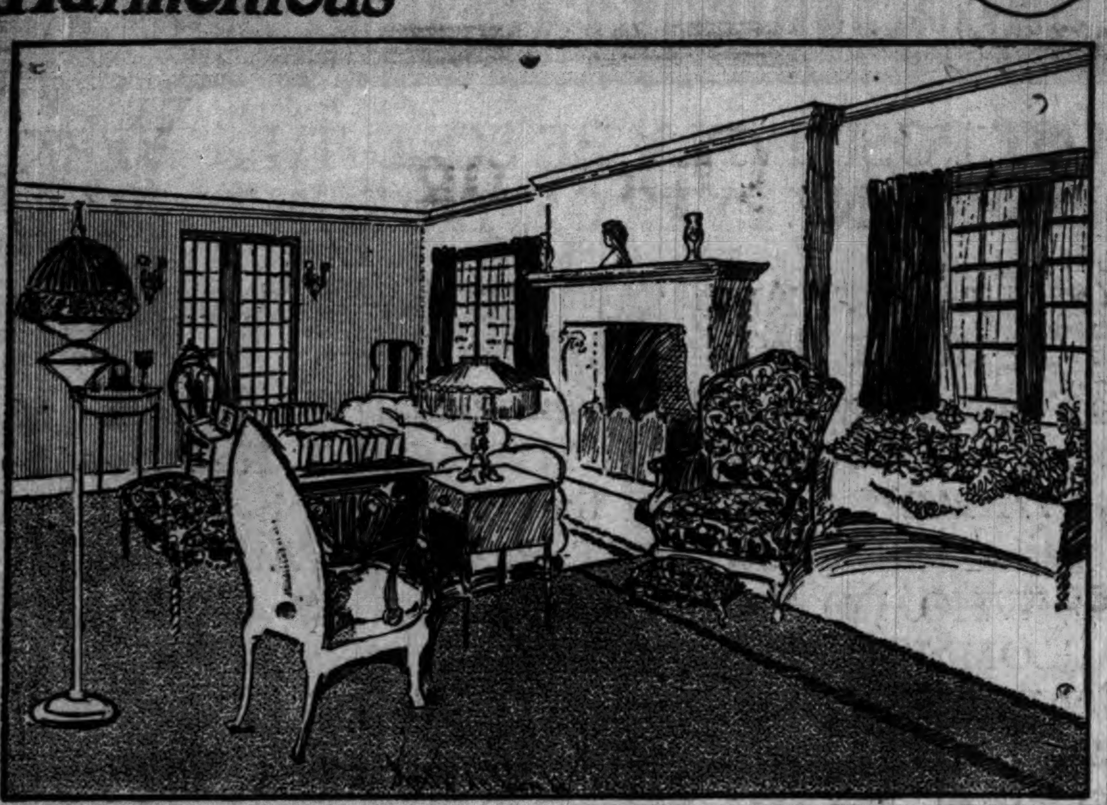
The Home Harmonious

No Useless Ornaments in Modern Homes.

Anita de Campi



Modern living room showing frugal use of bric-a-brac.

CAN anything so completely disfigure a home as the injudicious use of bric-à-brac? The architecture of a house may be perfect, the furniture chosen with discrimination; it may all be in harmony, good in line, exquisite in color, fine in quality, but if it falls into the hands of some one who has a weakness for bric-à-brac—presto! the whole-fine effect is changed in a jiffy.

Have you never seen a charming apartment full of delicate tints, and graced with the simple lines of Louis XVI. furniture, made into a veritable junk shop by the addition of "lovely things" purchased at random, inconsequential, tasteless trifles crowded into every corner? Rooms of this sort are what decorators call "torture chambers." Sad to relate, they are not uncommon.

The fine minority of women who are well posted on decorative effects concede that bric-à-brac has gone out of fashion. They refuse to litter their mantel shelves with all manner of useless objects.

A decided change is noticeable in the bric-à-brac departments of the big stores. While these departments are still flourishing, the buyers admit that sales are largely restricted to useful objects. Ornaments, especially small ones, merely as ornaments are seldom considered worth buying.

Our exclamation "How beautiful!" on seeing something really attractive on the display tables is now immediately followed by the query, "What is it for?" and unless that question can be answered satisfactorily we lose interest. The result of this new insistence upon usefulness is that objects not purely ornamental are better made than they were formerly. It has dawned on the manufacturers that they must serve the double purpose of utility and beauty.

A great many vases are still being sold, but the majority of them are converted into bases for electric lamps. Buyers either order silk lamp shades to match the vase or contemplate making silk shades at home. A few small vases are sold as flower holders, and these are kept out of sight unless filled with flowers. A few large ones are sold for their decorative value purely. They may lend just the right note of color to the room and be useful in that way. Frequently a decorator keys a whole room to the one color note that vase embodies.

Restraint is the slogan of the modern decorator. No attempt is made at composition in the arrangement of minor details. Formality is the first requisite. Vases, candlesticks, etc., are decorously arranged in pairs. No profusion is allowed. The almost invariable arrangement for mantel shelves is to have a clock, a bust, or a standing picture in the center, with a vase or candlestick at either side, and absolutely nothing more. Tables that formerly were loaded with objects d'art boast one or two pieces only. More attention is paid to table covers. Very lovely are pieces of brocade or fine needle work employed for living room tables. Often no other ornament is desired but a bit of exquisite fabric.

To a large extent ferneries have taken the place of jardnieres. Small flower holders for window sills are practical.

Miss de Campi will be glad to assist the home maker in any problems pertaining to interior decorations. Address your letter to Miss Anita de Campi, "Sunday Tribune," Chicago. Inclose a stamped, addressed envelope if you wish a personal reply.

These are of ornamented wood, or wicker, of bamboo built around oblong zinc trays. Potted flowering plants are placed in them without being transplanted. The idea is to have fresh ferns or blooming flowers in the window at all times, and this is easily done by replacing one pot by another as the plants wither. The long, narrow, shallow baskets are little more than trays; they accommodate a single row of pots and have handles at either end.

Ferneries made on legs are also much in use. They come in a variety of styles and prices and are really valuable decorative adjuncts.

Boxes of different sorts are among the useful bits of bric-à-brac. Many are modeled after antique jewel cases. They are used for cigars, for small bottles, for jewelry, or letters, and some rather large ones are designed to hold photographs—a sort of modified family album, as it were, and not at all a bad idea.

Candlesticks were never more in favor and never more really used than they are now. Brass candlesticks are especially popular. Composition models copied from old Italian candles are hardly distinguishable from real carved wood.

Among the novelties of the season are some ornate little bird cages on high stands similar to bases of floor lamps. Both cages and stands are done in white enamel. The cages are screened in around their lower edge with white wire screens ornamented with festoons of delicately colored flowers done in stucco. These make alluring adjuncts to dainty break- A heavier quality that is adapted to linfast rooms or sun parlors.

H. S.: While mahogany is lovely it scratches easily and requires rather expensive materials to go with it. If you are to have a five room flat, perhaps fumed oak throughout, with a few pieces of fumed wicker and several upholstered pieces, would be more serviceable. Furnishing throughout with the same sort of furniture allows of variation in changing the pieces about from room to room. Have a comfortable living room instead of a parlor. If you are going to use the blue and pink spread alternately, have draperies that combine these two colors and buy a brown rug.

THE GARDENER AT WORK

The Garden Editor will give expert advice on planning gardens, organizing garden clubs, and planting flowers, vegetables, or shrubs. Address The Garden Editor, "The Tribune."

Planting the Rainbow.

IN the seedling garden as well as where perennials are put to stay for years, thought for color effects doubles the enjoyment. Where there is a decided taste for brilliant hues, as the blue delphiniums, the yellow cone flowers, scarlet lychnis, orange helianthus, or gaillardias, the effect is enhanced by interspersing gypsophila, white shasta daisies, artemisia, or ornamental asparagus. The feathery green and lace-like white flowers add to the beauty.

The columbines are more charming when colors are kept separate. The fancy spurred of coral and orange tints are handsome in their own foliage. Blues planted with them look common, and the heavy species of the doubles in white and pink are awkward, yet if grown separately they are beautiful.

Masses of pink and white foxgloves growing tall with a thick border of finely shaded sweet williams at their feet are admired.

A splendid assortment of delphiniums of the bluest blue, with shasta daisies and coriopsis reflect blue, white, and yellow in taste.

Tall hollyhocks massed in pale colors take kindly to anemone japonica before them and a lowly border of bellis perennis, the English daisies, on the edge of the grass. The dicentra or bleeding heart and the clove pinks come at the same time. If Michaelmas daisies are planted among the dicentra they will be inconspicuously green and blossom later when the bleeding hearts are over.

FLORAL changes have come so rapidly that the usual order of tree flowers, Easter shows, blossoming bulbs, budding shrubbery, and violets in the grass has been broken. The spring came in with a burst of sunshine and warm days such as brought every budding plant to the light to do its best. The park gardeners find the season weeks ahead.

Enough tree flowers remain to make them worth while for a Sunday visit. The pussy willows which came out in March were followed by the elms, maples, ash, box elder, birches, and the others that extend until the catalpas and lindens entertain the bees in June.

Along the Drexel, Grand, Garfield, Franklin, Diversey, Washington, Lake Shore, or Sheridan road boulevards and parkways, and wherever the elms border the roads, hosts of tiny flowers are wreathing the graceful trees until the foliage hides them from view and they have ripened their fruits which were blown away by the wind.

Although the brightly colored tulips and hyacinths in park gardens are adorning the ground, no flower seeker will forget to look for the flowers in the tree tops in the parks and everywhere. The tender green leaves coming out on the willows and veiling the elms are worth watching.

The flowers of the elms, maples, and ash are delicate and fairy-like. The willows and poplars (cottonwoods among them) divide the honors, the male tree having golden pollen bearing tassels and the female tree the fruiting tassels. The oaks put forth velvet claws after their fine flowers in May, the locusts bloom in white, and horse chestnuts are gay.

Answers to Queries.

F. [illegible]: Hyacinths and other bulbs that run to foliage have been taken to the brilliant light before the roots have formed. They may have had too much heat and water.

Curious Reader: Salpiglossis has a trumpet flower like the petunia but salpiglossis has innumerable colors. It grows easily, blossoms freely, and is pretty in vases or as a table decoration.

Fred G. M.: Seedsmen sell a special poison for slugs. If your method of catching cutworms in the pansy bed is successful keep it. Turning over the ground with a pronged fork lets in the sunshine and air and helps the plants.

Mrs. D.: The cardinal climber, a new annual, can be recommended for your porch. It is an ipomea, likes the warm, sunny situation, fern like foliage a blaze of fiery flowers from midsummer until frost and climbs twenty-five feet.

Amateur: You can trust the novelties advertised by established seedsmen. The seeds have been tested. Fibrous rooted begonias make a showy bed. The melaine has white flower edged with pink and blossoms all summer until frost.

Earl J. Levy: If your gladioli bulbs did not flower they were probably poor bulbs. Do not buy bargain bulbs. Two dozen tulips I bought at a bargain counter in the fall have not come to anything. Buy of a reliable florist. Bone meal and manure for home gardens sold by the pound are good fertilizers.

Corner House: For edging your lot nothing can be better than the marvel of Peru or four o'clocks (mirabilis). Get the sweet scented and mixed colors. Bushes short and stocky. Kochia or summer cypress is good, too.

Elsie E.: Throw a tablespoonful of soil into half a glass of water. Add a teaspoonful of ammonia. If the mixture turns brown or black acid is present. Another test of sour soil is made with blue litmus paper to be had of a druggist. Mix half a cup of soil with water to the consistency of butter, insert a strip of litmus paper in the watery batter, and if the paper turns pink, the soil contains vegetable acid. Spade your plot and sweeten with lawn lime.

Small Gardener: All poppies are not perennials. The Shirley is one of many lovely annual poppies. The California poppy Eshscholtzia has golden yellow blossoms and makes a good border. Scratch the ground on your sandy place and sow quantities of mixed annual poppy seed now. If they do well this summer, they will sow their own seeds for next year.

THIS LIQUID ATTACKS HAIR UNDER THE SKIN

To gain control of coarse, bristly growths which have been caused by the unwise use of pastes, rub-on preparations and other things which merely remove hair from the surface of the skin, you must use DeMiracle, the original liquid hair remover. Art de la Mode says DeMiracle is "the best method." Only publications of the highest character are quoted by us. Beware of so-called hair removers which are supposedly recommended through bogus quotations from so-called magazines which do not exist. DeMiracle is sold at all good stores, including The Public Drug Company and Buck & Rayner's five stores.

Does Woman Ever Propose?

She Cried for Him.

One evening about four years ago I took a certain young woman downtown to the theater. We took the elevated home and as we were sitting in the car the girl started to cry. I bent over to ask her why she was crying and she threw her arms around my neck and said I should promise right there and then that I would marry her, as she had waited three years for me to pop the question and was sure that we would never get married unless she proposed. When I raised my head after assuring her it was all right, all the passengers were smiling and I certainly did feel embarrassed. I am married now, but not to that girl. G. M. O.

How Mother Did It.

My father tells of how, when he was a young man and had been courting mother for some months and was desperately in love with her, he finally screwed his courage up to the point of proposing. Instead of falling into his arms, as he had secretly supposed she would, mother coyly drew herself up and said, "Why, Henry, you frighten me." Father took this as a refusal and changed the subject to commonplace things. He soon rose to leave, then mother timidly laid her hand on his arm and said, "Henry, aren't you going to frighten me again?" L. L. C.

Her First Day Confusing.

I think this boss takes the cake for queerness. It was my first day and I was trembly. I was requested to take his dictation and make haste to put in my appearance at his office. I looked around, no one was in sight, and a voice began to dictate rapidly. I was so confused that I missed half of it. Presently the boss put his head out of the clothes closet and said: "Ah, good; very good!" which I afterwards understood was a comment made on my looks. He then cleared his desk of papers and books, lay down upon it, and lifted first one leg and then the other. This was to reduce, I understand, but I cannot see its effect on him, for he weighs about 200, and he dictated all the time. M. H. J.

Planning for Vacation.

THERE are not many business girls, one is safe in saying, who have not not given their vacation a thought and who have not made some sort of plans for it, but one wonders how many of them have already started a vacation fund. There are some girls who are naturally systematic and forehanded, girls who have a fund for their winter and spring wardrobes, for Christmas and for vacations, and they always have money enough to carry out any plans they make. But the easygoing girl who always thinks there is time enough to start to save and keeps putting it off until it is too late to accumulate enough money to take the trip she planned needs a reminder.

Those who have not yet done so by starting right now and practicing various small economies without stinting themselves on meals or the things they actually need, can have a respectable sum saved by summer and will not be disappointed when vacation time comes and they have to listen to the plans of the girls they know who have been saving for months and months.

A girl I knew for several years spent her vacation with relatives who lived on a farm not a great distance from her home. The railroad fare was reasonable, and as she was a guest of her relatives she had no other expenses. So she had never found it necessary to save for her vacation. However, after visiting the farm for three or four years she decided she would like a change, and made up her mind to take a trip of some length the next year and to start saving right after Christmas. But at Christmas time her vacation seemed a long way off and she felt that she could wait for a month. After a month she resolved to start the next week, but her resolution came to nothing and she completely forgot her savings account until her employer told her he was making up the vacation list.

She was panic stricken then, and frantically figured up how much she would have to save, but it did not take her long to realize that in the few weeks that remained she could not possibly save the amount necessary to cover the expenses of the contemplated trip.

So the fund was abandoned and again she went to her relatives in the country. So great was her regret at having so carelessly allowed the chance for a real vacation to slip by that she got little or no pleasure out of her visit. It seemed to her when it was too late that the only thing that would have given her pleasure then was the trip she had to forego for lack of funds.

The following letter is from a girl who is puzzled as to the course she should take:

"Dear Miss King: A girl who works with me is furious at our employer for having reproved her before the whole office force for being late three mornings in succession. He merely reminded her that it was the third time she had come in after 9 o'clock and asked her to be more punctual in the future; but the fact that we all heard it made her angry, and she has not yet forgiven him. Yesterday she told me that she is going to leave in a month to be married, and is not going to tell the boss until the day she leaves, to 'get back' at him.

"If she carries out her threat it will interfere with the work, as ours is a busy office, and if a new girl has to be broken in after Miss K. is gone it will mean that the girl who now helps Miss K. with her work will have to teach the new girl and work overtime to keep her own and the new girl's work up to date.

"I am strongly tempted to tell my employer that Miss K. is going to leave, not only because I think she is treating him unfairly but because of her lack of consideration for the other girl. If I do tell him he will hire another girl a week or so before Miss K. leaves, and she will, of course, know that I told him and will be angry at me for interfering. Do you think it would seem just like officiousness on my part to tell, or do you think it would be better to say nothing and let Miss K. have her revenge? J. D."

If it is going to seriously interfere with the work in your office having Miss K. leave without giving notice I believe you would be justified in telling your employer. Your loyalty always belongs to your employer and I cannot see that Miss K. deserves consideration. It is childish and silly of her to want to be "revenged" because her employer rebuked her publicly. That is his privilege, although it would have been nice of him to have called her to his office and told her privately.

"No," said the little miss, "I'se glad that I'se mad, 'cause then you wouldn't a give him no nickel."

"Yes, but that won't do you any good; it's his nickel."

"Well, but I'm gonna be good with him after dinner," was the instant reply.

What Fascinated Me Most.

Had a Slouchy Silhouette.

Not long ago I met a young man who instantly fascinated me. It was not because he was handsome, for he was not, in any striking way. For quite a while I tried to dislike him, but I could not find fault in any way. I watched him in the hall at school, and one day as I was watching his silhouette against the east window it flashed upon me that it was his slouch I admired—his weight upon his left foot, the right knee bent, right hand in pocket, and head slightly forward. That's what fascinates me, for his features, if anything, are ugly—except through love's eyes.

How to Order Your Clotilde Patterns.

In ordering a waist the size should be determined by the bust measure. Give the bust measure. In ordering a skirt the size of the hip is more important than the size of the waist, but give both the hip and the waist measure. Ten cents for each waist, coat, or skirt.

In ordering misses' patterns the age should be stated—12, 14, 16 or 18 years. Ten cents for each waist, coat, skirt or dress.

In ordering children's regular patterns order them by the age of the child. Ten cents each.

No. 1123—This is an exceptionally chic model adapted to general summer use. There is a box plaited skirt that is joined to a shaped yoke, and the upper edge of this yoke is joined to the blouse, so that there is a one-piece dress resulting that is closed at the back. The shield effect is quite novel and exceedingly interesting. Here the dress is made of blue linen and the shield is of white, and the simple little embroidery is executed in white threads. Comes in sizes for girls of 10, 12, and 14 years.

No. 1125 shows one of the fashionable ruffled skirts with a charmingly attractive full blouse, the lower edges of which are finished in points that are in every way novel and interesting. Like the preceding dress, this one can be either plaited or gathered, and consequently is adapted to all thin, dainty silks and also to the washable fabrics. Here it is made of silk viole, which is a wonderfully charming material and a durable one as well, but if the dress were gathered it could be utilized for a great many different fabrics—for the silk, if that is liked, and also for the cotton materials that are exceedingly dainty and exceedingly varied this season. It is a simple little dress, an easy one to make, yet exceedingly smart in effect. Comes in sizes for girls of 10, 12, and 14 years.

No. 1124—This dress can be made with either an accordion plaited or a gathered skirt. In the picture the material is white crepe de chine and the skirt is plaited and the plaiting is charming in that material. If the frock were to be used for cotton voile, or cotton crepe, or any similar material, the gathered skirt would be preferable, and these fabrics are charming for graduation and also for general summer wear. For graduation or for confirmation, when the frock must be all white, a white girdle can be worn, but a colored one will be smart later in the season. Comes in sizes for girls of 10, 12, and 14 years.

THE summer dresses which Clotilde has designed for the girl of 10, 12, and 14 years, and which she offers in pattern form today, are suitable for any occasion which takes place in the afternoon or evening. They are not too dressy for such youthfulness, and yet at the same time they are up to date and especially appropriate for graduation exercises. They are not too dressy for such a youthful age, and at the same time they are eminently stylish and full of charm. No woman who is at all clever with the needle and who can follow instructions that are more than adequate need be afraid to attempt these dresses.

Now is the time when every mother with girls in the family between the ages of 10 and 14 has to be thinking of just such frocks as these for summer wear. June is full of occasions when these dresses should be worn. There is the graduation, the wedding of an older sister or relative to which the younger member is included, and all the informal parties among those of her own age which happen in the late spring and summer. For all of these occasions Clotilde's dresses are suitable and pleasing, and cut with an acuracy which insures a perfect fit.

The long waist line more than holds its own for youthful models. From Paris come delightful creations for girls on the verge of their teens, which feature the long waist and the normal waist over and above the much advertised short waist. No woman need be doubtful as to where she places her waist line for the girl of 10, 12, or 14. A short, high waist at that age is decidedly hard to wear and not overly becoming to any type of girl.

Organdy, batiste, mull, dimity, lawn, and linen are all suitable for these dresses. The washable silks are modish, too, but not so serviceable.

Rode in Coffin.

He had come to Clinton, Mo., in a special train expressly to attend the circus, from Springfield, and had a few friends along to help enjoy his new fortune. The saloons did a thriving business at his expense, and the next day found him in Nevada, Mo., tagging after the circus. He and his chums were full of the devil.

EXPRESS HALL

He hired an express wagon for $200, got a coffin box, got in it, and was driven through the streets, raising up occasionally to throw his money out to the awestruck Missourians. He was arrested for his capers, put in jail, and finally went home, where he turned his money loose in a short time.

He died poor and a suicide. H. J. B.

$217 in One Day.

She Got It.

Her husband made $35 a week. She wanted a swell flat, which meant $40 rental per month. She got it. She wanted a box seat at a downtown theater every Saturday night. She got it. She wanted a card party every Thursday afternoon. She got it. She wanted a taxi ride on Wednesday afternoons. She got it. She wanted a horse to ride every Sunday morning. She got it. She did not want a divorce, but she got it. LOUIS E.

Spent Stolen Money.

The biggest spendthrift I ever knew was a young man who was a frequent visitor in our small town, but was always a moderate spender in every way.

After an absence of about six months he came into town one day dressed in the height of fashion and a roll of bills so big he could hardly cram it into his pocket. He proceeded to spend this in the most extravagant manner, and as there were about eight in our crowd, he had some bills to pay.

A big car and chauffeur hired by the day, dinner, theater parties, and loads of [illegible] and flowers for we girls was the daily program. Of course we were the envy of all the other young folks not in our bunch, but imagine our humiliation and shame when on the evening of our last party our rich young friend was arrested.

He had stolen a new automobile in an eastern town, had driven it to Chicago and sold it, and had come to our small town for one big time. He is now in prison, serving several years, but we girls aften laugh about the big times of that one week. MRS. A. J. B.

Buys Yards and Yards.

The most reckless spender I know is a woman who has a passion for buying lace. Her husband has only a very moderate income, yet she can never resist the temptation to stop at the lace counters in the stores, and she always buys whole bolts of whatever strikes her fancy. She has dressers and boxes full, yet when she goes shopping she invariably leaves the family provisions unbought, and brings home more lace. J. F. G.

Traded with Bandmaster.

He was a Chicago manufacturer, on an automobile tour or "joy ride" in the west. Arriving in a town in Washington, he visited the county fair, listened to the band, and tipped the leader $20 after each selection. At the conclusion of the program he tore a hundred dollar bill in twain, handed the bandmaster one-half and promised him the other half providing his musicians would furnish the music for a dance the same evening, a proposition that was readily accepted.

Meeting the bandmaster in a café later on, he exchanged his coat for the uniform of the bandmaster. "Now," he said, "you are Mr. —— and I'm the bandmaster. Buy a drink." With this he handed the musician a $10 gold piece and the latter in turn ordered drinks for the house. This was continued until about $60 had been spent.

During the three days' stay in this particular town, this spender managed to get rid of about $1,000 per day, his spending proclivities becoming so notorious that an account of his conduct appeared in one of the Chicago papers. I might add that the last time I heard of him he was being sued by a prominent club of Chicago for a bill of $80 or thereabout, and I suppose he is now entirely down and out.

Penchant for Diamonds.

A friend of mine struck it rich in Leadville, Colo. The first shipment from the mine netted him $25,000. He was so elated he bought a diamond studded watch, chain, rings, and pins, hired a special car, stocked it with champagne and other things to match, and took a party of a dozen friends to the world's fair, telegraphing ahead for the best rooms at the most expensive hotel. They had a high old time in Chicago, and only retained enough of the money to get back to Leadville. But the vein had pinched out, never paid another dividend. My friend had to pawn his watch to get out of town. MRS. A. J. D.

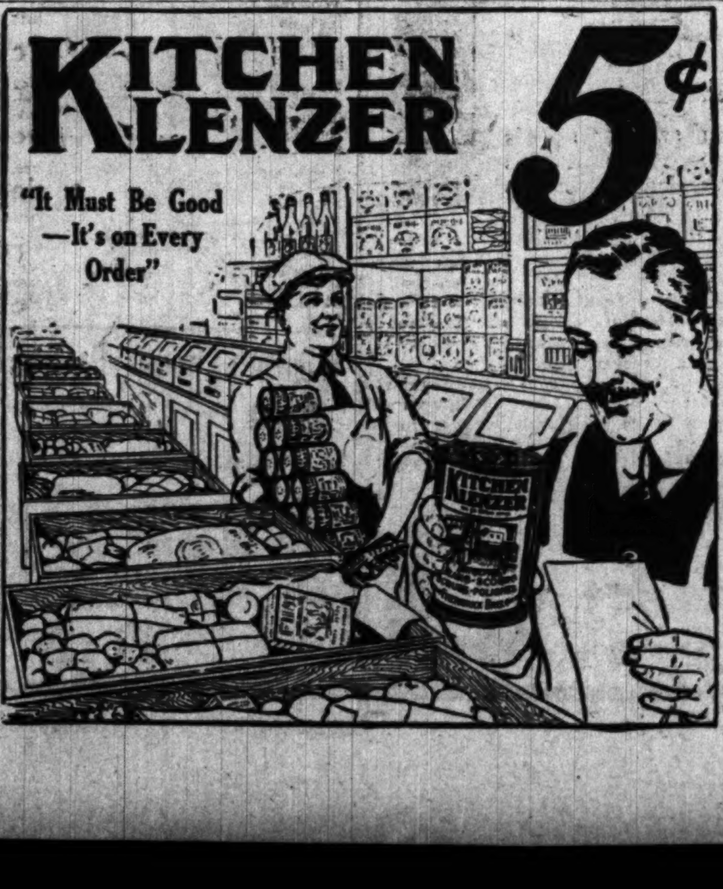
Dissolves Superfluous Hair—Doesn't Burn

Superfluous hair may now be removed almost as easily as though they were simply merely wiped off with a cloth. This is accomplished in a very remarkable way by the new method of simply applying the wonderful new toilet preparation, Sulfo Solution with the fingers or a little cotton swat on the hairs to be removed. Sulfo Solution, which can be obtained at any drug store, is a creamy, golden liquid of pleasant odor and as harmless to the skin as water. In this respect it is unlike any other depilatory ever discovered, as it is the one, and the only one, of which it can be said, "it will not burn." Other depilatories, the powders, pastes and thin liquids, cannot remove hair without burning it off and leaving the skin red, irritated and often badly injured. Sulfo Solution, on the other hand, dissolves the hair and makes it disappear under your very eyes. It is as bland and soothing to the skin as a fine lotion would be, and as easy to use. It is impossible even to irritate the most sensitive skin with this new article, as it never fails. It solves the hair-removing problem for all women. Sulfo Solution is sold at all drug stores at $1.00 a large bottle or sent direct by the manufacturers, Cooper Pharmacal Company, Thompson Bldg., Chicago, Ill.



TINY RED PIMPLES ON DAY OLD CHILD

Got Larger. Hair All Came Out. Cried Terribly. Could Not Sleep. Had to Walk Floor to Quiet Him. Used Cuticura and Now Well.

La Crosse, Kansas.—"When my son was one day old he began breaking out on his face in tiny red pimples that seemed to itch, as he was uneasy and couldn't sleep. The pimples got larger and changed to water blisters. They would break and run and cause new ones to break out until he was covered all over with a thick crust. His head was so bad we were afraid to wash it almost. All his hair came out. We kept him on a pillow for fear of breaking the blisters. Every time they broke they seemed to smart and burn, as he would cry terribly. The eruption disfigured the baby. We had to walk the floor with him to quiet him.

"When he was four weeks old I bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and box of Ointment. The first time I used them he slept better than he had for a long time. He is now, at the age of nine months, well." (Signed) Mrs. John W. Sutcliffe, June 30, 1914.

BUSINESS TONIC

What's in a name? Would Billikens and Kewpies by any other names become so great? Imagine calling them "dolls!" Apply the same principle to your advertising. Which would you be most apt to investigate? "Mile a minute" or just crochet lace? Coverall or "Nell Brinkley" aprons? Quilts or a "Tree of Paradise" quilt? "Delmonico" or plain coffee cake? Doesn't the name make the offer sound more businesslike? And to get business you must be businesslike! Determine your price, put it in the advertisement, if possible, and stick to it. If people phone or write, answer promptly, and, wherever you can, submit samples. Work with your advertisement. If you have professional talents stick to them. Don't try to make pies if you are a dressmaker. Don't be afraid of publicity; be proud of the fact that you have something to put before the public. Lastly, but most important, if you have a good thing, stick to it—"Rome was not built in a day."

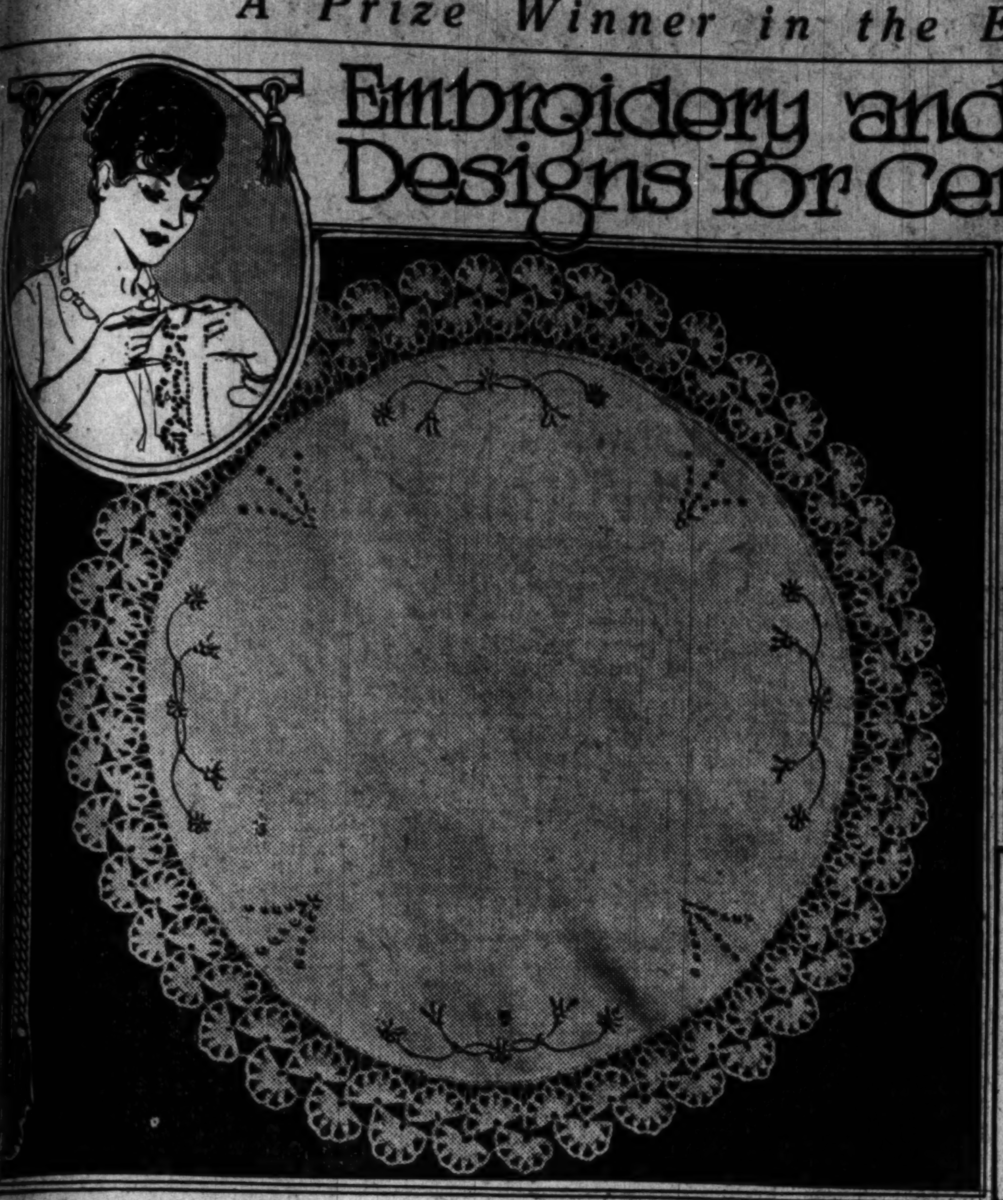
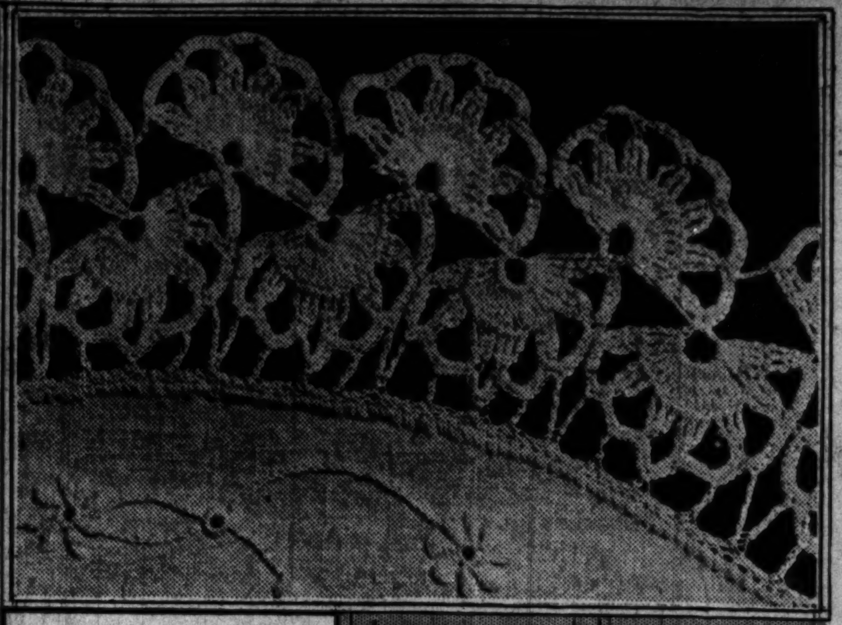
A Prize Winner in the Embroidery Contest.

Embroidery and Crochet Designs for Center Tables





Mrs. Samuel Fry, 6410 Green street, Chicago, is the winner of the five dollar prize this week. To crochet the edge: Chain six stitches and fasten together, then chain three stitches, throw the thread over needle two times, and crochet into the ring seventeen times. Then chain three stitches and throw thread over the needle two times and crochet into the top of the first two, making a group of three. Chain six stitches between each group of three, making six groups in all, and fill in the space of six chains with nine short stitches. At the end chain six stitches and start another fan. Fasten each fan in second group of the three stitches.

Are you a clever needlecrafter? Have you any original embroidery designs or original crochet and lace patterns you have used yourself and which you have found attractive and satisfactory? "The Tribune" will pay $5 for each design published.

The Tribune Cook Book

by JANE EDDINGTON

All recipes have been scientifically tested by Miss Eddington with current market materials and are indorsed by her.

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

DURING the last six months a good many correspondents have asked for fruit salad recipes, and there has come a recent request for a list of those which can be served in glasses. As to this latter, any of the pure fruit mixtures, or macedoines, or mixtures of fruits and nuts, may be served in cocktail or compote glasses. When served with lettuce or mixed with celery, the fruit is served in bowls or on little platter-like dishes.

In order to cover as much ground as possible, I have tried to give below the general principles only, since so few specific examples at the best can be given, with a few illustrations, so as to show how various are the combinations, etc. It is necessary to say at the start that the artistic skill of the salad maker, and her imagination as well, greatly influence results.

The German "bowle" is, for instance, like one sort of fruit salad; that is, a shredded fruit in sirup and light wine. A pineapple bowle made by an expert is a delicious blend in the eating of which one is not reminded of the wine, but an exactly similar mixture may be unbelievably poor. Merely to follow a recipe for making a bowle, without having had any experience with it, is not to succeed except by chance. Skill counts nine-tenths in all of the simplest recipes.

Lemon juice or sirups can take the place of the white wines or liquors in which cut up fruits are chilled, as a preparation for salad, but a large number of recipes prescribe wine, practically all English fruit salad recipes. The fruit cocktails are generally prepared with wine.

The fruit salad is modern, but it is only a real salad when it is served with a true salad dressing, yet many of the so-called fruit salads are not so served. As for mixtures with the fruit, the real salad greens, nuts, vegetables, and even candies are sometimes used, and such blossoms as nasturtiums, pea, and rose. Pieces of marshmallow are not infrequently used.

How the salad shall be cut and served depends much upon the particular service it is to render. For instance, with duck, an orange salad is generally served, either sliced oranges or the whole sections. Sections with small pieces of curled celery, with a French dressing, are sometimes served separately and sometimes as a garnish to the meat.

The old fashioned Waldorf salad, under various names, was served with roasts and broiled meats. When whipped cream mixed with grated horseradish is used with it, the name is changed to salad caprice.

Apples (fine grained), bananas, cherries, dates, figs, grapefruit, kumquats, lemons, melons, including the alligator pear, oranges, peaches, pears (for the epicure), pineapple, tangerines, and some of the not well known tropical fruit are used in fruit salads.

Fruit Salad Dressing.

The favorite fruit salad dressing is the white mayonnaise, which is plain mayonnaise mixed with about half cream, more effective if whipped. Cooked salad dressing used to be served with the Waldorf mostly, and it is good with many combinations. It may be thinned with whipped cream. The French dressing, much used with fruit salad combined with lettuce and endive, is sometimes made with vinegar, but usually with lemon or lime juice. If it is to be used with grapefruit and orange combined, sometimes both juices are used. Paprika instead of black or white pepper is used, and this, like any French dressing, may be mixed with thick cream or cheese, particularly Roquefort. Sherry wine and paprika with sugar alone are used with such a mixture as grapefruit, oranges, and pineapple. Many fruit salads are garnished with whipped cream, which is often sprinkled with nuts or variously seasoned.

French Salad Combinations.

Apple is not only combined with celery and walnuts and served with a mayonnaise, but it is combined with all the sour fruits either cut in julienne strips or in dice. The easiest and most economical way to keep it from growing black is to rub it with the cut side of a lemon, but it may be sprinkled with lemon juice. Chopped apple is mixed with many of the more expensive fruits, or is used alone as a salad with French dressing, with thin strips of pimento as a garnish. Halves of canned peaches and pears are used in the same way, but most commonly with a cream dressing. Apple and cress is a combination some people like. In a celery mixture it is used half and half.

Bananas are particularly good with dates and nuts, but are used with the sour fruits. Banana is also used alone with pimento. Cut with a silver knife. Banana skins with one strip removed are frequently filled with fruit salads, part banana, and called banana boats.

Cherries are mainly used as a garnish, but fresh and large ones are sometimes stuffed with nuts and used as a salad.

Dates are best prepared by pouring boiling water over them, letting it come to boil, then draining out dates and heating them in the oven. When thoroughly heated cut them up in strips, or stuff first with nuts and then cut up and serve with French dressing.

Grapes, skinned and seeded, are much used with oranges and nuts and as a garnish.

One of the best of the many grapefruit salads is made by cutting the fruit in two, removing the pulp from the "rag," then sweetening it generously and adding one tablespoon of sherry to each grapefruit. Some shredded pineapple, or common fine grained apple soaked in lemon juice, may be added and the whole served in compote glasses or in skins or in low dishes. The red cherry is the most highly favored garnish, but at this season mashed strawberries may be used.

When canned fruits are to be used, such as a little peach, pear, and some pineapple in sirup, with strawberries at this season, these may be served in a glass as a macedoine, with a cream dressing and a garnish of whipped cream, perhaps sprinkled with chopped nuts, such as chopped pistachios for a green effect. When a full mayonnaise is to be used with any fruit salad, chopped pistachios or, better, pounded ones, may be mixed with it. Sometimes a whipped cream mixed with chopped fruits of all sorts which have been sweetened and soaked in wine is called a salad.

Pineapple in slices, or shredded, or in dice, is used in many different fruit salads. A slice of pineapple on a lettuce leaf, a slice of orange on that, a half of a peach, back up, on that is served with a white mayonnaise. Pineapple is one of the best blending agents when sour combinations like oranges, grapefruit, and apple are used together.

Tropical Salad.

Tropical fruits of all sorts are now being extensively exploited, and in almost every case one of the means is a collection of recipes, in which will be found good fruit salad recipes. A recipe for tropical salad in one of these books, by an author whose work I have commended in this column more than once, is as follows:

"Cut into sections four oranges, two firm bananas, and a cup of marshmallows. Make the dressing by scalding three-fourths of a cup of cream and thickening it carefully with two egg yolks beaten with a tablespoon of sugar. As it cools add a little salt and the juice of half a large lemon. Blend thoroughly with the salad materials."

It is this dressing which I wish to commend here for general use on fruit salads. Many may prefer it to the white mayonnaise, and it is not any more expensive if so much so, and cream is sometimes procurable when olive oil is not.

WHAT WAS YOUR MOST TACTLESS REMARK?

What was the most tactless remark you never forgot? Maybe you made it yourself. Maybe you heard somebody else make it. Maybe it "got you in wrong" or maybe it got some one else in the same predicament. Everybody either makes or hears tactless remarks made. What was yours? Tell us about it. "The Tribune" will pay $1 for every letter published. Write on one side of the paper only, make your anecdote short, and address it to the Tactless Remarks Editor, The Chicago Sunday Tribune. No manuscripts will be returned.

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING-HAND

by MARION HARLAND

This department appears every day in "The Daily Tribune."

"I HAVE recently moved into a new home and am settling in it. I desire to put out some shrubs, roses, and summer flowering bulbs, and I wonder if among all your readers there is some one who has a surplus of plants. I already have violets and cannas and in return for the plants I wish I would be glad to give seeds of the elephant ear mustard, white velvet okra, and a prolific pepper, which is a pretty plant for bedding. It grows in bouquet form and is loaded with purple, yellow, and red peppers; the fruit is hot. I also have a quantity of Burpee's 'Daylight Dolichos.' The vines grow quickly to a height of eight or ten feet and blossom profusely from base to summit. The large spikes of pure white flowers stand out boldly from the rich green foliage. As the flowers drop from the long spikes they are succeeded by broad, velvety white pods, which retain their freshness of color for a long time. A. A. C."

This description is enough to move any flower lover to a wild desire to possess the vine. I hold her address.

Catching and Mounting Butterflies.

"Perhaps I am coming to the wrong place for information, but you seem able to answer so many questions that I venture to put one to you. Can you or any one of your readers tell me how to catch and mount or preserve butterflies? Or if you cannot give me the information, can you direct me to some source where I can procure it? A. R."

I am sorry to say I shall have to refer this inquiry. If you lived in a large city, where there was a good public library, I should advise you to go to the librarian for counsel. As it is, I think the best plan is to do as I have done successfully on many other occasions when I have thrown myself upon the good will of the constituency. I am sure some one will be able to reply to your question and I will gladly give your address to any one who asks for it.

He's Waited Five Years.

"I have a little boy who wants a violin so badly that several times he has tried to make himself one. We are too poor to buy him one. His father is dead and a friend who is a music teacher has offered to give him lessons, but we can't see our way clear to get the violin for him. The boy is 11 years old and I am so eager for him to have the instrument when he is so desirous to learn to play it. He has longed for it ever since he was 6 years old. "E. M. P."

When a child has an overmastering wish for a violin for five years, one is pretty likely to imagine that he has the true love of music. Under the circumstances, it is to be hoped that some one may be able to put some sort of a violin in his way. Even if it is small and cheap, it will do for him to learn on and to prove if his wish for it is merely a boyish whim or springs from a genuine passion for music and a wish to make it.

Wants Carriage for Twins.

"I have twin babies and am anxious to get a double cart for them. We are not able to buy one ourselves. They need the fresh air badly, but I am not able to take them both out without a cart or carriage of some sort. Do you suppose some one has such a conveyance which is no longer needed and would be willing to give it to me? It would do the babies so much good and I would be most grateful. "MRS. T. O. M."

Twin go-carts or baby carriages are not seen frequently and I am a little afraid that on this account this correspondent's wish may not be granted. All the same I print it on the chance of its being seen by the lucky parent of twins.

Wants a Darky Monologue.

"Can any of the Cornerites send me or tell me where to procure a copy of this darky monologue? It is a southern courtroom scene. A number of darkies are brought before the judge and he hears the complaints and their defense. No doubt it is familiar to many and I would appreciate it if some one could supply me with a copy of it. Later on I hope to send the Cornerites many little things. "A NEW MEMBER."

This monologue is not known to me, but it may be to others. I have heard that usually such recitations and the like are owned by the persons who deliver them or that such artists have the exclusive right to the parts they take. In that case it may not be possible to give the selection the correspondent asks. But if it can be obtained I am quite positive she will get it from some of the constituency. I will give her name and address to those applying for it.

Appeal Generously Answered.

"Some time ago I made an appeal to the Corner for help in decorating a lonely cabin. I am glad to state that my appeal has been more than answered. I received a large number of pennants, books, papers, pictures, a couple of dictionaries, and several other small but useful articles. Also there came a number of cheerful letters, offering to send still more. I can hardly realize that there are so many kind hearted people ready to lend a helping hand in time of need, and as it will require quite a long time for me to answer all of my benefactors for their extension of good will, I take this opportunity to express my deep gratitude. I wish you could all see the genuine pleasure you have brought to me and to others as well, for there are many besides myself here for the same purpose as I and living under the same conditions, and I can share with them. Many packages were sent anonymously and it will, therefore, not be possible for me to thank the givers individually, but I hope they may see this acknowledgment. May the Corner long continue with its splendid work. G. S."

I dare say most of the Cornerites recollect the story of the writer of this letter, who was sent away in quest of health and was established in a lonely and bare cabin. The appeal for pennants to help decorate the naked walls and for a little reading matter has brought the response to which he refers. Sometimes I think I know my Cornerites and what to expect of them, but every now and then, when a case arises of this kind, I feel that I have never fully appreciated their prompt and loving generosity in replying to appeals for aid. Like the writer of the letter, one could never have imagined there were so many kind hearted people ready to lend a hand in time of need. God bless them all. That the young man shares in the spirit he commends is proved by his eagerness to help and cheer others with the brightness which has come to him.

My Most Embarrassing Moment.

She Was Only Embarrassed!

One Wednesday evening, while sitting on my front porch with my new fellow, my old fellow came along the street and saw us. Walking up the steps, he said, "I'm through with you!" because he was jealous of my new fellow. Then he went home, and when he came back he had a gun. He came up the steps and stuck it against me somewhere around the waist line, and then said, "Come on, now. Give me my ring!" Well, you can imagine how mortified I was with all this going right on before my new fellow! It sure was my most embarrassing moment.

Brought a Cent.

I had started a savings account in a bank where I was well known, and I received a small savings bank to put change into. After a month I took it to the bank to be opened, and there was 1 cent in it, and I got the laugh from the receiving teller. I afterward found that I had put my change in my brother's bank, which was just like mine. M. K. J.

Right in Church.

During a week last winter our church held special services every night, and the orchestra, of which I am a member, played each evening. During one service I happened to sit by the piano, and while the preacher was praying I leaned against it. Growing tired of my position, I attempted to move quietly, and to my great embarrassment my hand landed on the keys, making a loud noise. Everybody jumped and looked to see what had happened, and I executed several plain and fancy blushes. R. C.

DANDRUFF MAKES HAIR FALL OUT

25 cent bottle of "Danderine" keeps hair thick, strong, beautiful.

Girls! Try this! Doubles beauty of your hair in few moments.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

ETIQUETTE

by ELIZABETH VAN RENSSELAER

THE matter of seating guests at a luncheon or dinner is always a moot question. In foreign capitals where there is much official life and also at Washington, where the same condition of officialdom prevails, this business of precedence and seats of honor is considered important and there are rules and regulations governing every hostess which leave her little leeway in the matter. But in cities like Chicago it is not so cut and dried and many a hostess is puzzled as to how to place her guests so as to show honor to those to whom especial honor is due.

Here are a few simple rules which can easily be followed. Of course, if a dinner luncheon is given for some one, that person sits at the right of the host or hostess.

Any question on etiquette will be answered if you write to Elizabeth Van Rensselaer, "Chicago Sunday Tribune." If you wish a personal reply inclose a stamped, addressed envelope. Please write on one side of the page only.

Otherwise, if there are out of town guests, they occupy these places.

If there are any officials—the mayor of the city, foreign consuls, or other people in governmental posts—they and their wives are given especial recognition. The mayor of a city should always occupy the seat at the right of the hostess if the governor of the state or president of the nation is not present. Failing these exceptional guests, age takes precedence. The host escorts the oldest woman present to her place at his right; the hostess places the senior among the men guests on her right hand.

The only exception to this rule is if there are present a bride and groom. For six months after marriage a bridal couple are accorded the posts of honor wherever they go.

DOUBTFUL: One call is sufficient in the case you mention. With it you cover what the French call the "visite de digestion" (the party call) and also return the first call.

L. G. x. It is not good form to smoke when walking with a woman, though many an otherwise well mannered man does it if he is with his wife or sister. In the country it is allowable, if permission has been asked and given.

The Love Letters of a Lonely Girl

This is the sixth of a series of "Love Letters of a Lonely Girl" which will appear in "The Sunday Tribune" every Sunday.

DEAR, Dearest You: I need you so this night! Depression and loneliness are fighting for possession of me and I want your companionship. Outside the weather jade is swishing her gray wet draperies against the window, with now and then a gusty sob or moan. Everybody in this big house has gone out for the evening except Little Me. I can't go out at night alone even if I had the desire or the place to go, for I am an arrant coward. Even the deadly silence here to night frightens me.

All the people here with whose faces I had become familiar are gone now. Jeanne, the little dancer, the dear old octogenarian, the Spanish student, and the bronze haired widow have gone their several ways—even Erin, my maid, has been replaced by a stout Polack who drags her feet about sullenly to her work. I miss Erin's sunny smile and chirpy gossip. I miss them all, for there is some comfort in familiar if not friendly faces.

And the new faces at my table are even less interesting than those on yesterday's page of my life here. I call them Mr. and Mrs. Woe and Mr. and Mrs. Joy. Mr. Woe might be classified as "a perfect lady" if it were not for the dapper, brutal conceit which looks out through his fishy pop-eyes into those of poor Mrs. Woe's perpetually tear red ones. Furtively, adoring she watches him each night as he unwinds a bit of string from a piece of chamois on a finger of his left hand, tucks it in his pocket, and then carefully drapes the said hand upon the table where the light will most effectively show up the big diamond he has uncovered for our view. We were duly impressed—but not with the diamond!! And if Mrs. Woe ventures a remark at the table she is promptly told "She is wrong and that it is this way"—and he continues her timid venture into conversation with blatant assurance. Oftentimes he tells her to "not try to talk, for women have no sense, anyway—she least of all." And poor Mrs. Woe! She confided to me at luncheon one day that "Mr. Woe was absolutely irresistible to women—she was jealous; she couldn't help it, for she herself was so plain"—and ended by a flood of tears. I suppose he had told her that.

Will it go on this way forever and ever and ever? Shall I, imbedded in obscurity, live on here until I, too, have become an old maid with a "settled" business and cards and gossip for my sole diversions? Dear big You, please don't let that happen to me! Lay your hand on my head right now and tell me that it shall not. Tell me that soon, very soon you will become more than a mere dream man, an anchor and a hope for me. Tell me that out of the vista of dreams you will come into the present reality and carry me away from all this gray, stagnant existence into the lilt and joy of real living. I can't—O, I just can't—go on this way—always.

But there—enough of all that. Poor little Bonnie Dandy is whimpering from my tears. There is a shadow on your dear face, too; and you must think me a great silly baby to cry like this when I had promised that we should have a cozy evening, we three alone this night. Please forgive me. I'll stop at once and sit on the arm of your chair and talk to you of pleasanter things than the wretched self of me. Tomorrow the storm will have gone, the sun will shine, and the mood have passed. Wellington Holme will return and there will be my work again and perhaps afternoon jaunts to quaint unknown or wonderful places! And who knows—perhaps fate will bring you when I least expect it.

And, O my! I quite forgot to tell you what happened to me since our last talk. A real adventure! Anyway, we'll call it that to make it sound exciting. I left you, you remember, to go for a run with Bonnie Dandy. Well, we walked up to Lincoln park and played ball for a long time on the grass; then on past the gorgeous flower beds of rioting color, intending to go into the conservatory for a peep at the exotics and lovely ferns. But Mr. Policeman thought otherwise. "Hey, there, miss; you can't take that dog through the park unless ye've got him on a leash," he called to me.

"But he is so tiny—he can't hurt any one, and he won't wear a leash—he lies down and won't move," I replied politely.

"Thin ye kin carry 'im or git out or be arristed," said he. And I "got." I ran as fast as I could to the walk edging the park. I did not want to be arrested nor did I intend my doggie should miss his accustomed amount of exercise. Once safely out, we continued our play-walk undisturbed by any more Irish boomerangs.

But at the end of the park, where Diversey boulevard turns, you know, Dandy took it into his naughty head to visit with a litlte white poodle a half block up on the other side of the street—and away he streaked. In vain I whistled and called to him to come back. I ran fast as I could to catch him before he crossed the driveway. But I was too late! He successfully dodged the first two automobiles, only to go down before the third machine, which passed right over him.

I screamed; the girl in the machine screamed, too, while Dandy yelped pitifully. A man leaped out of the car, which, fortunately, had been rounding the corner slowly, and ran to where Dandy lay a quivering heap and picked him up. Opening the door of the tonneau he said to me, "Get in; this is my sister; we must get the dog to a veterianry quickly.

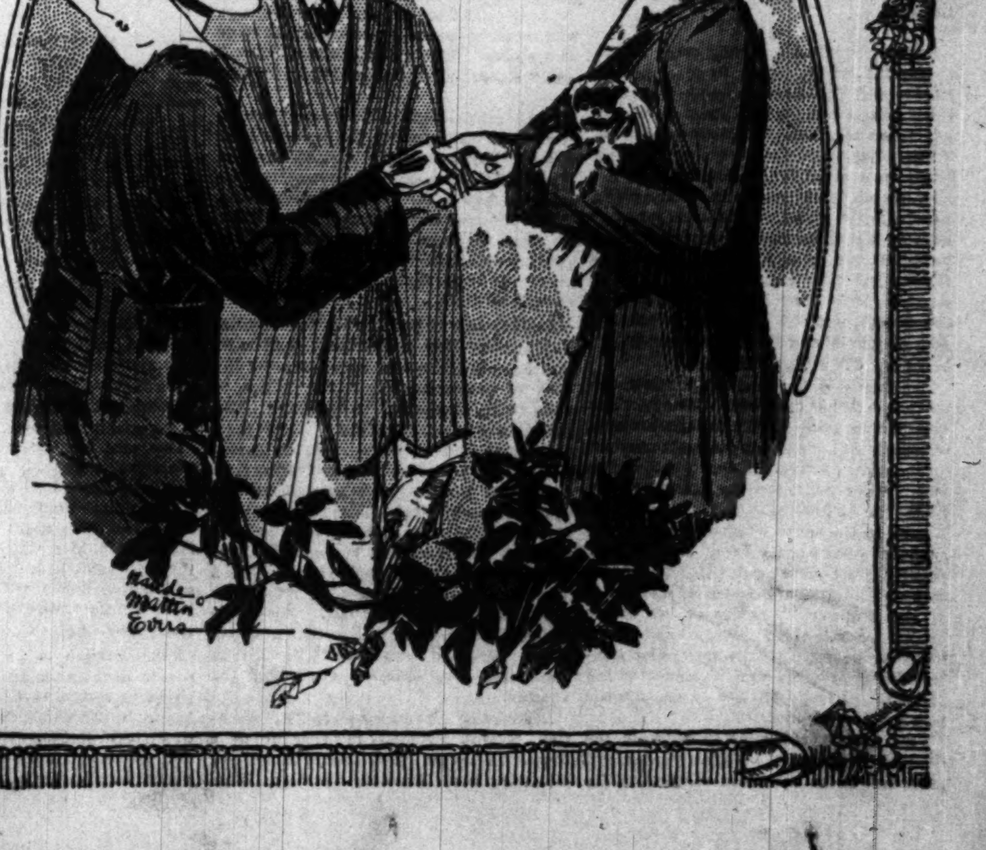
"Is he dead?" I sobbed, while obeying his command. "No, but we must find out how badly he is hurt," he replied, laying Bonnie Dandy in my lap, gently. Then he sprang in, took the wheel, and away we dashed. The girl in the tonneau with me put her arms about me and said, "Don't cry—it may not be a very bad hurt after all." But I wept on, unable to take the comfort offered. All I could think of was the little huddled black mass in my lap which only a few moments before had been chasing so gleefully his ball or the birds in the park.

The veterinary had the kindest face I have ever seen. His look of tender compassion was beautiful as he carried Bonnie Dandy into his office. After only petting and soothing him, as I thought for about fifteen minutes, he pronounced him "only stunned and nervously shocked." The motor had evidently passed over, without touching him—he would be all right. I was so happy and so relieved! But my lips still twitched nervously as I turned to thank the man and his sister who had brought us there for their kindness. In my grief and fright and the swiftness of the happening I had not before been aware of them except as just people. And they were both young and handsome, but of entirely opposite type. She was a decided brunette with pretty, darting, birdlike movements and an indescribable something about her that seemed foreign. Perhaps it was the chic smartness of gown. Or it may have been the saucy tilt of her hat on the black wave of her hair.

And the brother, a perfect Viking type of man about 28. Big, blonde, athletic, he towered above the little sister like a mountain of strength guarding adverse winds from a frail flower. I envied the girl—not her beautiful clothes and evident luxuries, but her brother. If only I had a brother like that—things would be different for me. And, happy and smiling with me over the escape of Bonnie Dandy, they insisted on bringing me home. I declined, protesting that already we had been of enough trouble to them. They would not listen to me at all. Each took me by the arm and laughingly hustled me back into the tonneau. Disheveled and wind blown from my play-walk with Dandy, unpoised from my emotional stress, all at once I felt consciously shabby. They were so evidently of the class that have money and leisure for culture and well groomed immaculate attire. Instantly I agreed with the satirist who said that "clothes were a woman's moral support." I was vividly aware that I was ashamed to tell these people where I lived—that I had not the moral courage to stand on my own merits; I wanted the support of beautiful clothes, a home with all that means to a girl.

But there was no escape. I had to answer that "Where to?" of the blonde giant at the wheel. And when we arrived before this gloomy high mass of brick they both came to the door with me. And the girl took my hands in hers and said, "My name is Janet Dorr—what is yours? I do hope we may see you again." And the blonde giant just smiled down on us and said he "hoped the pup would be all right." And then they were gone. And this morning—what do you think? A great big, big box of white roses came for me. I could hardly believe they were mine. And there was my name clear and quite right on the tag. And when I opened the box and found the card—what do you suppose was written on it? Here it is—see: "From Janet and Malcomb Dorr to Bonnie Dandy in the hope he is fully recovered and that we may soon again see his mistress." Now wasn't that lovely of them? I thought they would never want to see me or even think of me again after they found out I was merely an "inmate of this institution." But, dear You, how shall I write and thank them for their beautiful kindness? I don't know their address. Look in the telephone book? Of course; how stupid of me not to have thought of that for myself. O, here it is: Malcomb Dorr—Lake Shore drive. I must write immediately that they may not think me lacking in appreciation or courtesy. Here, dear You, is your paper and a magazine. Now you read while I write the note. No? You must be going—it's late? O, dear dream man, if you must, you must, I suppose, but please let the time be short between your good-by and your coming again. And in the day when you really come as a big, living fact, instead of a dream vision, you will bring to me red roses—heaps of them, won't you? And if it be spring when you come let it be white lilacs and trailing arbutus you bring to me—I love them best of all flowers. Good-night. Here's a kiss for the palm of each of your wonderful hands to carry away with you to sleep land, from your BETH.

"And the blonde giant just smiled down on us and said he 'hoped the pup would be all right.'"



Comment by Mme. X.

By Mme. X.

THE situation of Americans at the present time is a most curious and unprecedented one. From many of the unhappy lands across the sea come people who make long journeys just to talk to us. We are entreated by one after the other to listen—also to give—but above all else to listen.

Mr. Schwann, the Swedish peace advocate, has come back to Chicago and is ardently prosecuting his peace propaganda. He is being entertained by many Chicago hostesses interested in his mission.

On another errand is Dr. Sarolea, the well known Belgian litterateur, who fills the chair of Romance languages at the Edinburgh university. He comes to present the case of Belgium much as Dr. Dernburg is in this country to explain Germany's position. Dr. Sarolea's work on the Anglo-German situation, which appeared three or four years ago, is one of the most widely read books of the day because of its keen analysis of the two nations and of his remarkably accurate prophecies which are now being fulfilled.

Mrs. Robert H. McCormick Jr. gave a dinner and reception for him last Monday evening. Madam Slavko Grouitch of Serbia was also a guest on that occasion.

Dr. Sarolea is a man of rather unusual appearance, slender, of medium height, with what seems to us somewhat hairless Americans, a slight oversupply of hair. His eyes are keen, his English is excellent, his manner expresses a tense nervousness under control. His whole effect is that of one who is at the same time a man of the world and a man of letters.

A charming representative of Belgium is the Countess de Hemptinne, who has come here to sell lace made by the women of Belgium—most of them widows with children to support, helpless, wretched, innocent victims of the war.

The countess is a "femme du grand monde," most attractive in appearance, speaking exquisite English, with the air of one used to all the elegancies and luxuries of life. And yet she has known all the hardships, miseries, and privations that have been the lot of her country women. Belgians, as represented by Mme. Vandervelde, Mme. de Page, Countess de Hemptinne, Dr. Sarolea, and the members of the Belgian commission who came here last October, have been a revelation to us Chicagoans.

Mrs. Robert H. McCormick Jr., to whom Countess de Hemptinne brought letters, gave a small tea for her Wednesday afternoon and will give the countess the use of her charming house in Erie street for her lace sale on Tuesday.

Mrs. Arthur Ryerson entertained her at a small luncheon on Friday and took her to the symphony concert afterwards.

Mme. Grouitch, who has been pleading the cause of the wretched Serbs, left here on Thursday after having formed a permanent committee, of which Mrs. Jacob Dickinson is chairman and Mrs. Hamilton McCormick is secretary. Through this committee Mme. Grouitch asks for gifts of money, clothes, household and agricultural equipment, and implements for the 700,000 Serbian peasant families whose everything has been destroyed.

Chicago society has not been, however, entirely absorbed in listening to tales of woe. Many ex-Chicagoans have been here the last week, giving an occasion for much entertaining. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Deering are in town to see their second grandson, Charles Deering McCormick, eldest son and heir of the Chauncey McCormicks.

Charles Deering is hurrying his preparations so as to sail shortly for his castle in Spain, though it is rather more substantial than most castles in Spain, as it is a solidly built ex-convent on the cliffs overlooking the Mediterranean near Barcelona. Here he delights to spend his summers with his artist friend Casas, the well known Spanish painter.

Mr. Deering is one of the few people who appreciate the utter delight of a summer in southern Europe, where the world is steeped in a certain splendor of heat and color not to be had elsewhere. The sapient know that summer is the time to visit such southern lands as Greece, Italy, and Spain, while winter is the season for Russia, Sweden, and Norway.

Another ex-Chicagoan is Mrs. Harold Emerson Smith, whose father, the late John C. Grant, was for many years the head of the Harvard school on the south side. She and her husband have been spending a few days here and been much entertained during their stay.

Mrs. John Carpenter gave a luncheon at the Casino for Mrs. Smith on Tuesday. On Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. Roy McWilliams were hosts at a dinner of thirty in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Smith. The popular tenor, Sig. Daddi, was among the guests and sang and led the company in singing familiar Italian ditties. An amusing impromptu skit, acted by some of the company, added further luster to a gay evening.

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hale also gave a dinner for the Smiths on Thursday, taking their guests later on to the actors' benefit ball, that chief social event of the week. The ball was a grand combination of imported and home talent. The actors furnished the "stunts," the pageant, cabaret vaudeville, the special dances, and the Chicagoans provided the setting, and—most important of all—bought the tickets.

Society has had a strong tinge of the theatrical lately. Last Sunday at the Saddle and Cycle club, among the out of town guests being entertained at luncheon there was Miss Elsie Ferguson of "The Outcast," looking particularly lovely in a broad black sailor shaped hat and simple, dark blue suit. Sitting at a nearby table was Cyril Maude, who has been such a social lion during his sojourn here that one hopes he is not living at the Blackstone "en pension." His leading woman, Miss Elsie McKay, was also at the Saddle and Cycle for luncheon that day, as was Frank Craven, author of and actor in "Too Many Cooks."

The day was an ideal one for that, the most delectable spot near Chicago. The first warm spell of the season brought everyone out as if we were all narcissi or jonquils waiting for the touch of the sun. After luncheon the company forsook the clubhouse and gathered in groups on the terrace (where the brilliant crimson chairs had been so recently painted that an occasional dash of red was added to the otherwise subdued hues of the costumes). Other groups either sat on the warm, dry, white sand of the beach or wandered in the increasingly entrancing formal garden, or inspected the great white basin that is to contain the new swimming pool.

This pool stands midway between the tennis courts and the Italian garden and promises to be the great feature of the club this summer. It looks big enough for all the club's 500 members to swim in it at one time—a very triumph of a Roman bath, fit for Caracalla himself. There is an air of gayety, informality, and good fellowship about the Saddle and Cycle club hard to equal anywhere else.

Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor and Mrs. Harold Russell (much better known to the world at large as Miss Ada Dwyer) gave a luncheon on Wednesday at the Casino in honor of Mrs. August Belmont. The latter was one of the most popular of American stars when, as Eleanor Robson, she played in many a success of the season. Now that she is the wife of the well known New York financier she is as popular in her new field of activities as in her former sphere. She is active in the many philanthropic and reform organizations which are the hobby of New York's great ladies.

The Hull house players are giving this afternoon a special performance of their two pieces, "The Magnanimous Lover" and "Rosalind," in honor of Cyril Maude.

The committee of the Lafayette Kits association, which under the leadership of Mrs. Arthur Ryerson, Mrs. C. M. Ely, and Mrs. Ogden Armour has accomplished its mission, had a meeting at Mrs. Roy McWilliams' apartment Tuesday afternoon, at which occasion it was announced that the organization had raised over $4,000 and had dispatched 2,000 kits to the French soldiers.

Besides this it has, under the especial guidance of Roy McWilliams, had built and equipped a motor ambulance at the cost of approximately $1,000, which is soon to be dispatched to the front. The ambulance is a smart one. Wider than the usual run of these vehicles, it has been fitted up with places inside for four stretchers (the ordinary ambulance has place for only two). There are also an electric light inside, some canvas wall pockets, and a rubber mat—these three features being suggested by Mrs. Ogden Armour, who has taken great interest in the construction of the car. The car is painted gray, with a big red cross on either side, and the words "The Chicago Lafayette Ambulance" encircling the crosses.

After some discussion as to its destination, it was decided to send it to a former Chicago girl, member of one of our best known families, Mrs. Douglas Turner, who was Miss Mary Borden, a daughter of the late William Borden and sister of John Borden. She is doing a remarkable piece of work in northern France. Alone she has equipped and is managing a flying field hospital, that is, a hospital corps that takes its stand just behind the zone of fire and moves with the army. She works under the orders of the French military staff of the Eighth army corps. She has in her charge 150 beds, twelve collapsible houses, and all the equipment she could collect, the whole costing between $30,000 and $40,000, of which she herself has given $25,000, hoping to raise the rest from outside sources. Besides this $25,000 she contributes every month $500 (and much more usually as necessity arises, for she will not stint her patients). She writes home urging her relatives and friends to aid her in her work.

Mrs. Douglas Turner is an unusual personality. In spite of a quiet and almost indifferent manner, she is extraordinarily energetic and enterprising, with a keen zest of life from all sides. She has a charming house in London in Park Lane and a lovely country place just outside that city. She knows many different sets of people there, being quite intimate with the George Bernard Shaws and the brilliant literary coterie which revolves about them. She has written plays and had them acted in London. She is devoted to her husband and children—one baby is only 2 months old—and yet she gives up all these interests and joys to undertake the most terrible task within reach of women today—that of picking up the mangled remnants of humanity left on a modern battlefield.

She met her husband when she was making a world tour some years ago. He is a Scotchman and was then at the head of the Young Men's Christian association in India. She spent several years in India with him until his especial work there was finished. He is now, on account of his familiarity with many Indian dialects, acting as one of the interpreters for the British Indian troops at the front.

John Borden is at present running a motor ambulance for his sister, but expects to return to Chicago by the end of May. Both this brother and sister, under quiet, self-contained exteriors, have hidden springs of passion for strenuous adventure and wide experience. Neither is going to waste life on commonplace trivialities or every day routine.

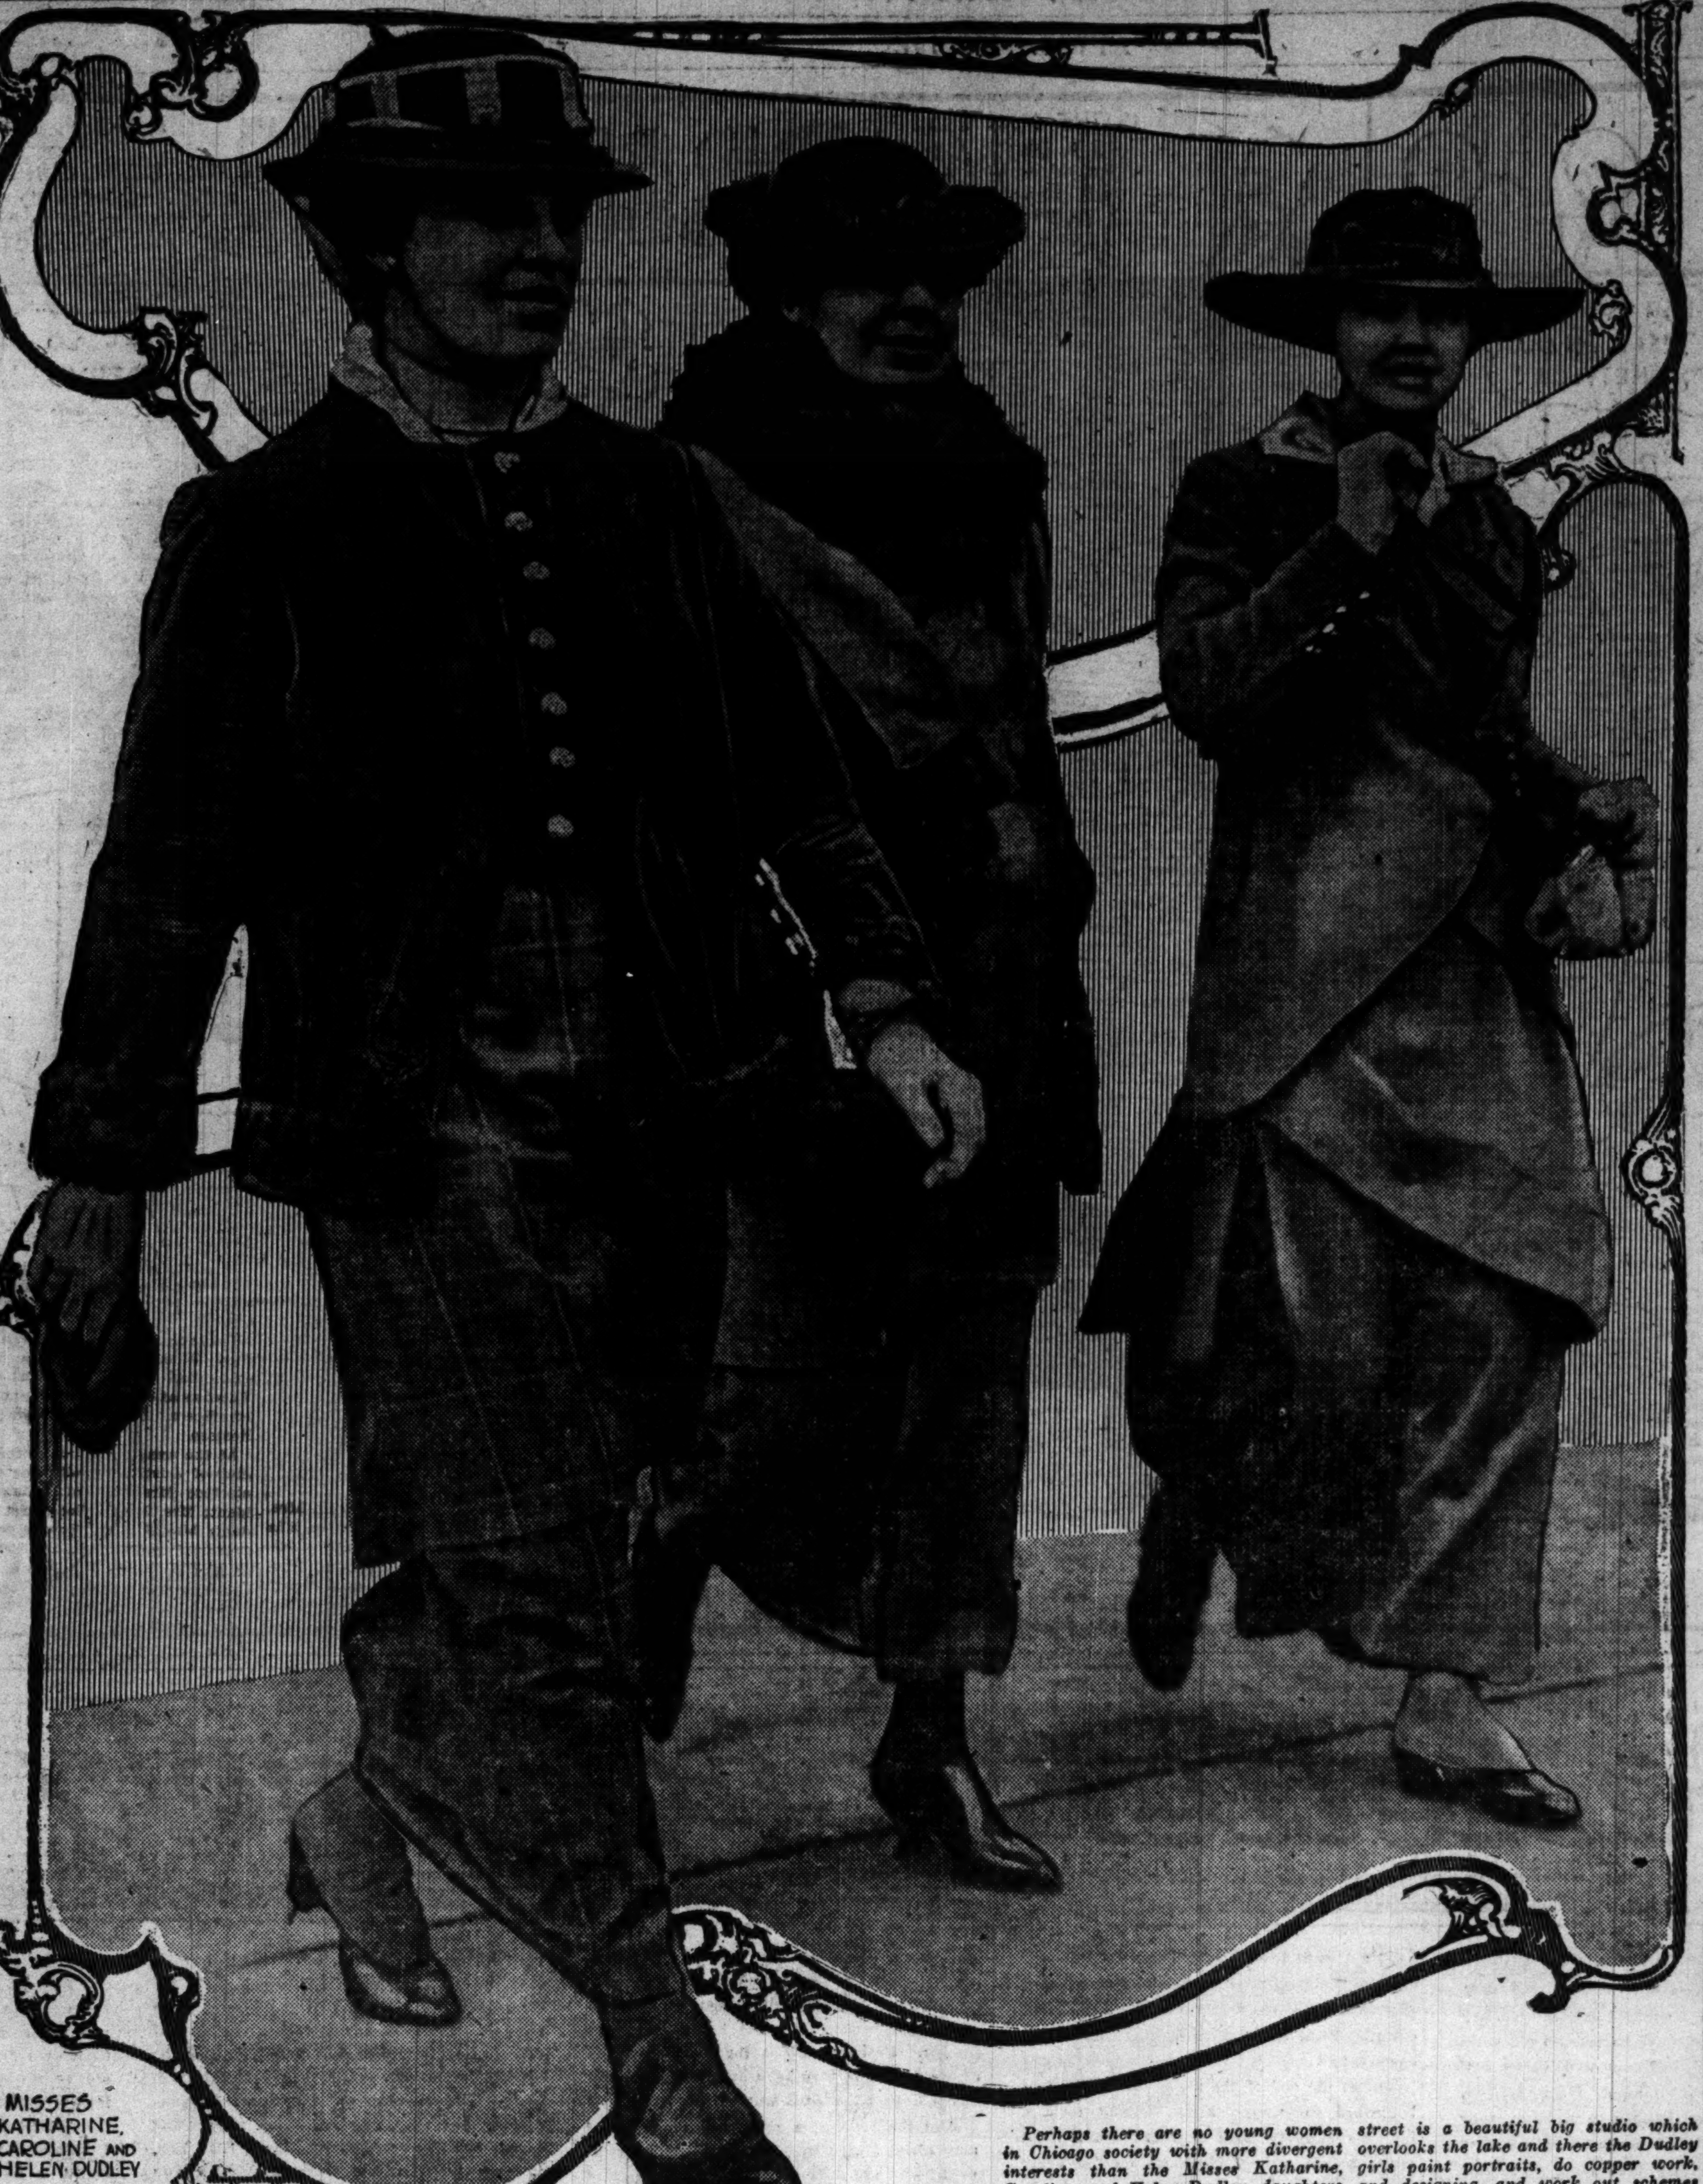
The Society of Midland Authors is a most interesting young organization here. It had its first annual election yesterday afternoon at the Auditorium hotel, with Hobart Chatfield-Taylor as chairman. It grew out of the Writers' guild last autumn and was fathered by John M. Stahl. At first the intention was to have it confined to Illinois writers, but with those bubbling wells of literature, Indiana and Kansas, so near, it was decided to widen the bounds of the society to include William Allen White and James Whitcomb Riley, so the confines now are from the Alleghenies to the Rockies, and from the Ohio river to the Canadian border—twelve states in all.

Among the local literary lights who illumine the Society of Midland Authors are Miss Edith Wyatt, Hobart Chatfield-Taylor, Miss Harriet Monroe, Hamilton Garland, and Edwin Balmer, while Zona Gale from Wisconsin, George Fitch from downstate, George Ade from Indiana, and Brand Whitlock from Ohio are all on the membership roster. Douglas Malloch is secretary and general "deus ex machina" of the association, whose object is merely to promote sociability among people of presumably similar tastes.

The Versatile Dudley Sisters Out for Their Morning Walk.



MISSES KATHARINE, CAROLINE AND HELEN DUDLEY

Perhaps there are no young women in Chicago society with more divergent interests than the Misses Katharine, Caroline, and Helen Dudley, daughters of Dr. and Mrs. E. C. Dudley of 1545 Astor street. They have their fads, artistic, literary, and athletic, and indulge them in a fashion that interests their friends and themselves as well. At the top of the Dudley home in Astor street is a beautiful big studio which overlooks the lake and there the Dudley girls paint portraits, do copper work, and designing, and work out schemes in home decoration during many interesting hours. There is another sister, Mrs. Henry Harvey, whose portrait, as painted by Miss Katharine Dudley, was much discussed at the recent exhibit of Chicago artists at the Art institute.

News of the Chicago Women's Clubs

By Inez Travers.

THAT Chicago's club women are up to the minute as well as persistent in their efforts to further a better social condition and thereby a better municipality is attested by the [illegible] and efficient way in which they coöperated with the various aims of the newly established public welfare bureau. Mrs. Leanora Meder, commissioner of public welfare, says that no demand has been made on them in vain.

It was the club women whom Mrs. Meder secured to chaperon and conduct the municipal dances, thirty-five of which were held in the city. Later it was the club women who helped Mrs. Meder secure employment for the thousands that the welfare bureau helped. Some of the clubs continued the dances at their own expense and under their own management, after they were abandoned by the city.

There were 152 women called for the municipal dance committees and 151 of these responded. Some of the clubs interested in this work are the Woodlawn Woman's club, the Welfare league, the Englewood Woman's club, the South End club, the Altrui club, the Lake View Woman's club, and the Every Wednesday club. Mrs. George Ellwood McGrew and Mrs. Robert McCall were especially active.

The welfare bureau inaugurated a social directory, the first in Chicago, and the club women gave their hearty coöperation. Mrs. Joseph K. Bowen of the Woman's City club, Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton of Hull house, and Miss Minnie Low, connected with several Jewish clubs, aided in this connection.

It was Laura Dainty Pelham, at the head of the City Gardens association, who gave Mrs. Meder the idea and the help she needed to inaugurate municipal gardens. The city now has 180 acres which will be devoted to farming this summer.

Mrs. Meder is also investigating the hotels of a cheaper sort in the city in order that young girls may be saved at least one moral danger. Many of the club women interested in rescue work will help in this. There will be a meeting in Mrs. Meder's office the first of the week to discuss the work.

The Chicago Educational club, which has started a domestic science school and a kindergarten in the First ward, has made Mrs. Meder president so that the coöperation of the club and the bureau may be interchangeable.

The various settlement clubs coöperated with the welfare bureau in regard to the preferential ticket given to the unemployed. And out of this situation some of the clubs are planning to establish a transportation bureau to send all the unemployed who do not belong in Chicago back to their native towns.

Dumb Merchants

It might well be said that "there are none so dumb as they who will not speak."

There are merchants who would consider themselves sorely afflicted if they could not talk, yet who willfully and deliberately place themselves in the silent ranks of the non-advertisers.

In the modern business world the non-advertiser is like the unfortunate mute; but with this added handicap:

His failure to utilize this powerful modern weapon—publicity—is a reflection on his courage and intelligence.

His voluntary silence—his failure to tell his story to the world—encourages belief that his story will not stand scrutiny.

For a merchant's proposition must have substantial merit if it is to be advertised successfully in The Chicago Tribune. It is there subjected to the censorship of both The Tribune and The Tribune's highly intelligent body of readers, trained to demand sincerity and cleanliness in advertising.

Tribune readers know that Tribune advertisers are the livest, most progressive, most responsible of all those seeking their patronage.

BAD COLD? TAKE CASCARETS FOR BOWELS TONIGHT

No headache, constipation, bad cold or sour stomach by morning.

Get a 10-cent box.

Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, head and nose clogged up with a cold—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system, is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.—Advertisement.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

by Mme. Y.

NEW YORK.—[Special Correspondence.]—One of the loveliest brides of the day was Miss Noel Johnston, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Johnston of Washington square. Time was when the neighborhood in which is located their enormous four story stone front house was the most fashionable part of New York. As a matter of fact, now that the Fifth avenue busses are making this part of the city accessible, it is becoming one of the extremely popular parts again. It has a flavor and an atmosphere with which the miles of stone and mortar which constitute upper New York can never compete.

Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, who, as an art critic said, would be celebrated as an artist if it were not for her husband's polo playing and the fact that her father was Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, has a studio down here. More concentrated wealth is represented on the north side of Washington square, if you add up the rating of the residents, than in any other like area of the city—not excepting Fifth avenue. Henry James wrote one of his most delightful stories about this famous part of New York. But this started out to be a disquisition on wedding gowns, and not on the history of the metropolis.

Miss Noel Johnston was one of the most prominent brides that we shall have this season, and her wedding costume will probably be copied with modifications many times. To get away from our present foolish, mid-Victorian notions, what period should she choose to reproduce but the early Italian? She looked a bride out of Dante's "Paradise," as she appeared in the big family parlor. Brides of those days were not only slim but they represented square lines in their costuming.

The train of Miss Johnston's gown fell from her shoulders and the ends of it made a parallel line on the floor to the one which extended from arm pit to arm pit. It gave an effect of unearthly beauty, accompanied, as it was, by a veil over a cap that fitted down so closely over the head that not one hair was allowed to show, any more than would a nun's of that moyen age. Of course, a bridesmaid to so quaint a bride could not very well blossom out in one of our present idiotic styles.

Mrs. Louis Noel held this very responsible position of chief attendant, and she spoiled it by no such blemish. Her costume, too, was of an early Italian day, in a pastel shade, and cut square in the neck. The effect of this costuming was really impressive and memorable. Quite incidentally and parenthetically and as an afterthought, the name of the man whom this unusual bride married is William H. Appleton.

Miss Mary Ludlow Fowler, being a very young bride, perhaps took advantage of an artist's written advice recently regarding the wedding gown of the young woman in her early twenties. "There should be something very youthful and very appealing about it," he says. "Something fragile, evanescent, perhaps, like the cloud of the apple tree in bloom." Miss Fowler, who was married to Eliot Tuckerman, had on something that looked not so much like a dress as a succession of clouds. It was billow after billow of tulle and it fluffed from a rounded neck and ran down into puffed sleeves to the wrists.

There was something very poetic and almost pathetically sweet about it. I shall always remember those two weddings—they carried so much of the subtle romance and charm and of that sadness which is a part of everything into which emotion enters. To make wedding dresses like those is to perform a work of art as distinctive and valuable in its way as to paint a picture and to make a piece of sculpture.

MRS GEORGE J. GOULD
© MARCEAU

Mrs. George J. Gould, although a grandmother, is considered one of the most beautiful women in New York society. The picture shown above is her most recent portrait, having been taken last week.

But the weddings described are as nothing to those yet to come in for attention. This period after Lent is merely the little season, popular for the winter crop of engagements. But the real time for marriages is June, and I expect to see at least 500 more wedding gowns before I am two months older. Society was electrified and delighted this week to hear of a very popular young woman's engagement. It seems no time at all since I described her sister's wedding to the extent of almost a column. This girl is Miss Kathryn Steele, who is to marry Frederick H. von Stade, and her sister was Miss Nancy Steele, who married the famous polo player, Devereux Milburn.

A taste for athletes seems to run in this family, for this acquisition of the younger daughter is a polo player himself—as indeed is Miss Steele. It is a romance that is the direct outcome of the Panama exposition—the first that I know of to go on record. As you are aware, the elite of New York have become aware of the west for the first time, and are going mad over it. They step out there as jauntily as of yore they took a boat for Europe. Now they make up special parties and take a private car.

Mrs. George J. Gould still remains the despair of the smart set matrons and the enigma of beauty specialists because of her youthfulness and beauty. Of course, all know that Mrs. Gould is a grandmother—and she is proud of it—yet in appearance one might easily mistake her for a debutante of the season. Most attractively gowned, she appeared the other night at a charity affair a picture of roseate loveliness and charm.

TABLOID BOOK REVIEW

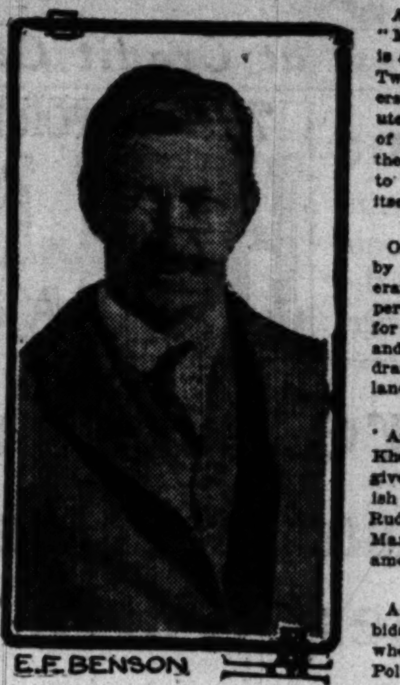
by FANNY BUTCHER

ONE OF THE BENSON FAMILY.

E. F. BENSON isn't just posing for his photograph here, he's really having the time of his life. There's nothing that he'd rather do than spend the winter in Switzerland. He's one of that famous Benson family, brother of Arthur Christopher Benson, the essayist, and of the late Robert Hugh Benson, the novelist-prelate, and son of the archbishop of Canterbury. He has traveled into all sorts of out of the way places. Three years he spent in Athens excavating with the British Archæological school, then a year in Egypt for the Hellenic society, but since then he's just been wandering about.

More interesting than the mere facts of his life, however, is his theory of novel writing, which he confided recently to a friend in America. "I am a great believer in thinking out the idea of a story," he said; "that is, the outline and composition of it, as fully as possible and for a long time, and then writing quickly. When I begin to use the pen, the whole of the main outlines are settled, and, whenever possible, I go ahead as hard as I can, writing a little in the morning, but doing the bulk of my work between 4 p. m. and dinner, and often putting in a couple of hours afterwards. In the actual writing I go straight on till it is finished, then correct a typewritten copy. When the characters get too obdurate, when they persist in developing in a way I had not intended, I always let them go their own way. This I think happens when one has unconsciously thought about them more than one knows."

His latest novel is "Arundel" (Doran), and in it he is very serious about love—a surprise when one remembers "Dodo" and its delightful frivolity.



It scarcely seems possible that Allan Quatermain has been a hero of fiction for thirty years. But so it is. Thirty years ago Rider Haggard began the series of adventure stories which have brought him fame and knighthood. "Allan and the Holy Flower" (Longmans-Green) marks the publication of Sir Rider Haggard's fortieth novel.

Elmer E. Ferris, author of "The Business Adventures of Billy Thomas" (Macmillan) knows what he is talking—and writing—about when he tells us how Billy Thomas got on. He is connected with the Alexander Hamilton institute, one of whose purposes is to deal with modern business problems in a constructive way. Mr. Ferris travels around delivering lectures before business men and Y. M. C. A. classes on the subject of the principles of salesmanship.

Albert Bigelow Paine, author of "Mark Twain, a Biography" (Harper's), is about to compile a collection of Mark Twain's letters. He asks that all owners of Mark Twain's letters will contribute to the work by sending him, in care of Harper & Bros., New York, copies of the letters, for which he will be happy to make acknowledgment in the work itself.

Of the total number of orders received by a German publishing house for literature for the soldiers at the front 48 per cent were calls for fiction; 19 per cent for serious reading—philosophy, religion, and the arts; 17 per cent for poetry and drama, and 16 per cent for light miscellaneous stuff, including humorous works.

An illustrated monthly magazine called Khaki has been started in London to give the news of the empire to the British soldiers in the field and in training. Rudyard Kipling, Jerome K. Jerome, Marie Corelli, and Israel Zangwill are among the contributors.

A new order of the Russian censor forbids the circulation of Tolstoi's work anywhere in Russia. Henrik Sienkiewicz, the Polish writer, whom we know best in this country as the author of "Quo Vadis," has until now suffered by the ban of the Russian censors, but coincident with the action on Tolstoi's work he has been elected a member of the Russian Academy of Arts and Sciences.

If you want to read a story of a big black horse whose name is Pat and who has all sorts of adventures and a most interesting equine psychology, you will find it in "Bred of the Desert" (Harpers) by a new author, Marcus Horton.

Somebody asked Oliver Onions, author of "Mushroom Town" (Doran), how he got his material. "Why, I'm interested in things wherever I am," he answered; "first in what a man says, and next in how he looks when he says it. Give me those two data and I can usually manage the rest for myself."

ART

By Anne Ellis.

THE murals made by Edwin H. Blashfield for the home of Everett Morse of Boston and now on exhibit at the Art institute more than fulfill their purpose of decoration as well as expressing a definite artistic purpose clearly. There are seven murals, three large, almost square, and four panels. The subjects are music, books, and hospitality.

Hospitality is expressed by two graceful female figures, a youth carrying an urn, a small and beautiful boy with laurels and palms, and a clamorous parrot (a clever touch of color in the foreground), and by the broad steps where they stand and by the composition of the picture more than anything else. Mr. Blashfield has been clever about composition all the way through; he has kept a perfect balance as to color and distribution of objects in every picture.

The group representing music is probably the most beautiful of all and the most expressive also. A slim girl, evidently having abandoned a game of ball, for she still holds the toy in her hand, leans against an older woman on a marble bench, while another woman plays a sort of lyre. In the background among the shadowy trees a male figure leans against the wall. The thing about this picture that raises it from a mere decoration is the expression on the face of the girl. It is youth listening to music. Wistful, wonderful, illusioned, filled with poetry and hope.

Mr. Blashfield has costumed his figures wtih a sort of glorified mediævalism which gave him a chance to display his prowess as a colorist. His taste is exquisite, daring, and original. He has used soft colors garishly, obtaining grandeur, and garish colors softly, obtaining warmth.

In a word, there is a breathless sort of beauty about the murals that unfolds slowly into interest.

Mr. Stock's Plans for Next Orchestra Season.

By Ronald Webster.

EVEN the position of musical director has its disadvantages. The director of a symphony orchestra is known by his band and by his press agent, and by his back. Much may be learned, indeed, from these. Mr. Frederick Stock is known by his band and by his back to thousands. But he has no press agent.

Thus Mr. Stock is known to most persons chiefly as the captain of his orchestra, the director of its programs. His policies, as such, have been deducible from his actions, but they have not been spoken nor generally circulated.

His difficulties this year, however, are not those of getting his beliefs before the public (they never have been), but with finding music fitting for a twenty-fifth anniversary of the founding of the orchestra. Mr. Stock told, a few days ago, about some of the difficulties and some of his plans to overcome them.

The chief obstacle, he said, lies in an almost universal barrenness in musical creation. This state is not traceable to the war, but to the fact that both in the symphonic poem and in the symphony the highest degree of development seems to have been attained.

"After Bruckner and Brahms," he said, "symphonies can hardly be anything but imitation, and imitation will not do. We need more standard symphonies. We cannot keep on playing the same symphonies year after year."

Nothing much is to be expected from the Germans, nor the French, nor the Russians. All of them are, of course, tied up with a war, and their music is music for special occasions—chauvinism turned into sound.

"And I do not expect much from this war," Mr. Stock continued. "Beethoven was inspired by the great figure of Napoleon when he wrote the 'Eroica' symphony. Afterwards he saw what Napoleon was. He changed his mind. But the work remained. Wagner was inspired by the wars from 1860 to 1871.

"But Strauss and Debussy won't be inspired by this war. This is a trade war. All of the nations are fighting for expansion in trade. It will not produce music."

Mr. Stock says he believes on the contrary that the war will be bad for the cause of music. Not only has the war prevented the writing of music by the leading European composers, or diverted them to a kind of music which will not be acceptable in America, but it has made it almost impossible to bring over such meritorious works already written as have not been produced in this country.

It will be remembered that Mr. Stock did not reach Europe last year. He was turned about in mid-ocean and returned to Bar Harbor, Me. To this trick of fate he lays his failure to obtain Gustav Mahler's Eighth symphony—a colossal work employing an orchestra of 150 and a chorus of 1,000. Another conductor reached Vienna and made arrangements with the publishers for the first American performance.

"It would have been a good work for the twenty-fifth anniversary," he said. "It might have been given as a benefit performance for the pension fund."

Mr. Stock hopes, nevertheless, to obtain one of Mahler's symphonies for production. Mahler's first was played at the fourth concert of the season just past. According to the verdict at that time, it was interesting in spots and dull in spots. It is nevertheless remembered. There is also a new symphony by Alfven, the Swedish composer, which may be available.

The problem of providing novelties, Mr. Stock said, is more difficult of solution this year than last. The past season has seen the performance of a number of works which have lain on the shelves of the orchestra library—many of them by the great composers. That mine is almost exhausted.

By Percy Hammond.

CHICAGO, April 18.—Dear P. Hammond: I saw "Outcast" last night. I had read no review of it, but this morning I read yours, with a thrill. The stage is safe while honest and intelligent people (I arrogantly refer to you and me) differ so widely. I object to "Outcast" not only because it is inconsistent, which is a minor matter, but because it is insignificant, which is not.

Inconsistent in little matters and big. One little matter—Miriam has been a leading dancer at a well known Paris café, the mistress of a man who takes her to Monte and leaves her twenty pounds, and yet she can't earn enough in the old and popular profession to buy a bun or pay her rent. What nonsense! She has to be attractive, yet she has to be pathetic. Well, that could easily be managed, but it isn't; the audience is contemptuously left to muddle over, or ignore, the contradiction. And then one big matter. There is not one touch of intelligence or human feeling about Valentine, not one, till suddenly at Miriam's entrance (last act) she first treats Miriam in a human way, and, second, is convinced, like a judge at a college debate, by the development of a forensic point. Again, that could be managed; my objection is that the author doesn't manage it.

But the main point is the insignificance of the play. There is one clever piece of dramatism—Tony's casual bomb as he goes out (third act). But is there even one good line? I believe not. Is there one type of character with a fresh touch? I cannot recall it. Is there a new situation? Read Clarissa Harlowe, John Belford's letter to Lovelace on the responsibilities of men to their mistresses. And if the thing offers no novelty you would surely not contend that it exhibits life? Is there a relationship shown which does not reek of sentimentality? Take one example—Geoffrey's sudden conversion from the drug habit. What motives it? He declares, Miriam's portrayal of the sad lot of many who are worse off than he. But what has Miriam said? How has she portrayed this mournful group? I can't answer.

When I see you this summer sometime tell me how wrong I am.

Yours, JAMES WEBER LINN,
The University of Chicago.

AFTER at expostulation than at eulogy, I have caused Mr. Linn, through no fault of his own, to mistake an expression of mild approval for a statement of a belief that "Outcast" is a masterpiece. It was my faulty endeavor to deal with Mr. Davies' play on its own level without complaining that it did not rise to other altitudes. A drama, given the qualities of consistency, inexorable motivation, originality, and significance, demanded by Mr. Linn, would, I think, be what a Peoria pundit last week termed "The Trojan Women"—a chef d'œvre." He prefaced the caption with the cautious qualification "little"—"a little chef d'œuvre"—perhaps to evade a possible predicament similar to my own. I meant to say that "Outcast" is a story-play in which I found myself interested in a chap who, jilted by the lady he thought he loved, acquired a delightful substitute from the streets, discovered a moderate consolation in her arms, and at the end married her with a reluctance inexplicable and true to type. The author's characters, I further attempted to say, gained a certain glamour from the personalities of Miss Elsie Ferguson and Mr. Charles Cherry, so that my concern in the events was enhanced by my concern in two such attractive young people. Mr. Linn, you see, is one of those true critics who can choose his soul's esthetic adventures, selecting, as a rule, only the perfect ones, while I, like Mr. Walkeley's vagrom man, must adapt my moods to my horizons, and be thankful that they are no more inhospitable than they are.

Thus I have the disadvantage of being unable to share Mr. Linn's academic and actuarial knowledge that prostitution as a means of livelihood may not be precarious as well as lucrative. I have believed that an unthrifty light o' love might, after having been deserted in Monte Carlo, be hungry in Leicester square, because I recall a lady who in similar circumstances beseeched a friend of mine in Paris to pawn her ermine overcoat to Miss Olga Nethersole, which he did not. I know, personally, of a minor Cook county adventuress who, desolate and sick of an old and unremunerative passion, something like the party in Mr. Dowson's poem, went to Paris and there achieved an entire floor in the Elysee Palace and was the heroine, aside from the winning horse, of a memorable Grand Prix at Longchamps. As a person who learns about life vicariously in the theater rather than actually on the Midway and its environs, I have formed the specious impression that there is nothing less vendible than a woman's caress when it is advertised in the vast for sale column of unchastity.

I am further hampered in my function by the preposterous belief, derived from the drama, that there are women who live and breathe, like Valentine in "Outcast," and who yet are intelligent and inhuman, and who, like Valentine, are persuaded to do the thing they really want to do by some unimportant and unconvincing circumstance. If I had been writing "Outcast" I should have tried, and failed, to find a device less slender than Miriam's distress to cause Valentine to return to her titled husband and boredom. There was Mr. Davies' opportunity for ingenuity; but, as Mr. Maurice Browne asserts, the Parthenon is not ingenious, and therefore no other example of art should be. As a matter of fact, Valentine needed no device to inspire her again to abandon Geoffrey, because she was chill and weak and selfish, and there is nothing in the play which pictures her as otherwise. And if Mr. Linn should banish all unintelligence and inhumanity from the drama, we should lose Lear, and Hamlet and Lady Macbeth and Goneril and Regan and Iago, Tartuffe, Pastor Manders, Solness, J. G. Borkmann, Aubrey Tanqueray, Anatol, Potash and Perlmutter, Otis Skinner, Dorothy Meadows, the Drama league, Charles Chaplin, the Peace Foundation, and innumerable other objects which still insist on the belief that the drama is an art.

Mr. Linn further fascinates me with the information that life is a thing of new types of character, of new situations, of good lines, of new responsibilities of men to their mistresses; that sentimentalism is not an ingredient of existence, and that a lady may not be attractive and pathetic simultaneously. He desires, I infer, epigrams from stolid middle class Englishmen who are Something in the City. He cannot see why intimacy with Miriam via the toxic Miss Elsie Ferguson, would cause a man to abandon morphine, though as a rule an attractive woman is as efficacious as the gold cure. He pleads for novelty, though "Hamlet," which, perhaps, he does not approve, has been rewritten by Musset, by Tourginev, by Paul Bourget, and by Ibsen, and by none of them without impressive acclaim. I can conceive of no mistake by Mr. Linn, because he is a sane, unsentimental, wise, humorous, and experienced critic. It may be, however, that he has confused, in an uncritical moment, defects in impersonation with flaws of what he calls "dramatism" in Mr. Davies' play. At any rate, I ask him to tell us what better drama he has seen recently than Mr. Hubert Henry Davies' "Outcast." Until he and others have failed so to do I must exclaim with Mr. Shaw's hero, that it is a lonely thing to be a champion!

Grand Opera house—"The Songbird," a play by Frederic and Fanny Locke Hatton, being opus 3 in the catalog of their longer compositions so far vouchsafed the community of their abode, their social and journalistic activities, and their hope and pride. As a result of "Years of Discretion" expectation runs high regarding the new work. The play has had a preliminary exhibition in Los Angeles, where it was liked enthusiastically. The story of "The Songbird" has to do with a prima donna who puts aside domesticity and its ties to be free to devote herself to the public which adores her. Among the ties is a son, who is come to maturity of thought and action at the opening of the play. She insists that he means nothing in her life, and the working out is to a denouement proving that she is entirely wrong as to her real emotions in the matter. The part of this singer is acted by Miss Jane Cowl, known best in this community because of her photographs, which are frequently printed in the newspapers of New York City. She has not acted here since "The Gamblers" in 1910. William Courtleigh, George La Guerre, Thomas MacLarnie, and James Gleason are of the company. First time this evening.

Olympic—"Along Came Ruth," a Franco-Belgian comedy which has been Yankeefied by Holman F. Day, the writer of short stories and the play called "The Circus Man." It is about a precocious girl who energizes a moribund business house in a small New England town and wins for herself a highly desirable mate. The comedy was a notable success of two years ago in Paris, where it was called "La Demoiselle du Magazin." Its projector, Henry W. Savage, would have Chicago know that his version of the comedy is $2 entertainment, but that he is doing his part to meet economic conditions by letting the best seats go for $1. First time this evening.

Blackstone—"Grumpy," with Cyril Maude. The play is well plotted hokum. Mr. Maude is vastly amusing in his characterization of a sly old criminal lawyer. Eighth and final week. Miss Ethel Barrymore in "The Shadow" follows May 3.

Princess—"Too Many Cooks," Frank Craven's human and clean comedy about the tribulations of a nice chap who tries to build a home for himself and bride-to-be. He plays the nice chap, and does it most engagingly. His company is good, and the whole makes excellent entertainment. Fifth and final week in the Princess. "The White Feather," the new play about German spies in England, follows Sunday evening next.

Powers' — "Outcast," with Miss Elsie Ferguson, triumphant in beauty and mainly persuasive in art as a noctambulist, who runs a seltzer drenched hat into a ménage, a trip to the Argentine, and matrimony. Charles Cherry is excellent in the vis-à-vis part. Fourth week.

Auditorium—"Life," high pressure melodrama of the hit and run type, staged to exhaust most of the mechanical and scenic possibilities of the three walled stage. Nothing else of its immediate kind has been so well done. It is popular and prosperous. Miss Kathleen MacDonnell, Miss Leonore Harris, Sheldon Lewis, Walter Hampden, and Effingham Pinto are among the uncounted players. Fourth week.

Illinois—"The Girl from Utah," with Miss Julian Sanderson, Joseph Cawthorn, and Donald Brian dividing the opportunities and the applause. It is good entertainment. Sixth and final week. The engagement includes next Sunday evening.

Cort—"Keep Moving!" This farce will be taken hence at the end of this week, its fourth, and will be replaced by "Too Many Cooks."

Garrick—"Dancing Around," with Al Jolson, the black and blue entertainer. It is a Winter Garden extravaganza as to matter and manner, but its appeal is well nigh wholly that of Mr. Jolson, who is both tireless and untiring. Miss Lucy Weston, Frank Carter, and Harry Clarke are of the cast. The choristers are kept in that propinquity to the audience which is characteristic of the Winter Garden pieces. Second week.

VAUDEVILLE.

Palace—Miss Henrietta Crosman in "Thou Shalt Not Kill"; Miss Grace La Rue in songs; Percival Knight in "The Masterpiece" McWaters and Tyson in "1915 Revue"; Raymond and Caverly, German comedians; Marshall Montgomery, ventriloquist, etc.

Colonial—"Ye Old Time Halloween" and "The Dairy Maids," musical production; Marie Sabbot and Armand Wright in songs and dances. On Thursday "The Gray of Dawn," an underworld play.

"Hyphen" Hissed in New York.

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special correspondence.]—The great good humor of the American audience is again to be commended. A play that, had it been even a quasi-success, would have done more to set our German neighbors by the ears and arouse a prejudice it were most wise to avoid at this time, was frankly laughed out of countenance Monday night last in the Knickerbocker theater.

"The Hyphen" is the play's title and the awakening of a new American patriotism—a patriotism that shall stir the loyalty of foreign born citizens for their adopted country—its purpose. But it was neither patriotic nor stirring and very badly constructed. Consequently, though the audience was large and quite ready for demonstrations of one kind or another, it gradually came to see the humor of the forced situations and openly sneered at them. "The Hyphen" proved, as you might say, a short dash to ridicule.

The play is one of those hurry-up affairs meant to catch the public in an eager and impatient mood for the arguments it contains. It was written by Justus Miles Forman, a successful novelist, who usually confines his labors to that literary vineyard wherein the he-an-she love story flourishes. A few weeks ago he decided to take the timely subject of the hyphenated American and write a drama around him. He found inspiration in the fact that Theodore Roosevelt and William of Germany are in agreement on the statement that there can be no such animal as a German-American. "Germans, I know; Americans, I know; German-Americans, I do not know," said the kaiser. To which Theodore hearheared. A man is either one or the other, so far as his participation in the European trouble is concerned, and should be so catalogued.

The story is that of an old German ironmaster, retired and living in Pennsylvania. For thirty or forty years he has been a good American citizen and as an inventor and manufacturer of steel and ammunition has prospered exceedingly. At the outbreak of the war, being sentimentally touched by the plight of his own, his native land, he gave $1,000,000 to the kaiser's war chest and at the opening of the play a delegation of Germans is come to present him with the order of the white eagle as expressive of the emperor's appreciation.

The old gentleman is proud of the decoration, but he also has come to look rather seriously upon his proper attitude as an American citizen. Something whispers to him that he is not quite so neutral as he should be, and when the committee suggests that in addition to the order it is the emperor's wish to create him a baron, he protests. All that he is and all that he has he owes to America. When as a young chemist he submitted his formulas to Berlin no one would listen to him. It was not until he came to this country that he was given so much as a hearing, and it was here that he won the support that guaranteed him success and a fortune. It is to his adopted country, therefore, that he purposes remaining loyal. His heart bleeds for the fatherland, but in no un-American way will he take part in the war. (Scattered applause and a hiss or two.)

The propagandists recall to him what they repeatedly refer to as "the law of 1914," by the decrees of which every man of German birth, wherever he live or whatever his assumed obligations of citizenship, shall hold himself a German first, subject to the call of his emperor and ready to forswear all other alliances at that call. (More applause and likewise more hisses.)

Still the old gentleman denies them. He is of the old, peace loving, home loving Germany; not of the new, war crazed nation of Prussian militarists! (Considerable excitement.)

If he is a true hearted German, declare the propagandists; if he has his own, his family's, and the fatherland's welfare at heart, he will not only remember the law of 1914 but he will assist this committee in its outlined work, which is to blow up the ammunition plant nearby, now manufacturing explosives for French guns. And if he is the man his $1,000,000 donation would indicate he will help along the work of putting a bomb aboard every ship that leaves these shores with food or munitions of war for Germany's enemies. [Applause, hisses, and a small sized riot imminent.]

The old man is thereupon pained that they should even suggest such a thing in his house, and when they, in an outburst of enthusiasm, start to sing "Die Wacht am Rhein" he tries to commandeer the voices of his own family to help him with "The Star Spangled Banner." But, being Americans, no one of them knows the words beyond the initial interrogation and the curtain falls with the agitators triumphantly mannerchoring "Deutschland ueber alles."

But this is the last of the excitement. Early in the second act the play begins to fall to pieces. The conspirators, working with the son of the household, find him of more impressionable material than his father. He not only is radically pro-German in sympathy, but is eager to do something to help the cause, and readily agrees to drop the bombs that shall blow up the ammunition works, using his handy aeroplane for the purpose.

The plan is frustrated by the heroine, a personable young woman who has come to the German household as a visiting cousin from Leipsic whom the family never has seen. In reality she is an agent of the American secret service, and is working hand in hand with the butler, an English spy. Also, properly to serve the purposes of the plot, she is in love with the radical son and prevents his making the bomb throwing flight by exposing the leading agitator as a discredited Prussian officer.

Mlle. Anna Pavlowa with her ballet is to appear at the Auditorium this afternoon in a series of ballets and divertissements. "Amarilla," a ballet-drama based on Hungarian folk lore, is the opening number. "Chopiniana," a ballet done to Glazounow's arrangement of a number of Chopin's short compositions, is second. It was presented on New Year's eve at the Studebaker theater for the first time, but was not then adequately rehearsed. The third part of the program offers seven divertissements—Pas de Trois (Mlle. Pavloca and Zalewski), Mazourka (Mlle. Plaskovietzka, Vajinski, and Dromoslavski), Holland Dance (Mlle. Leggierova and M. Pavley), Moment Musical (Mlles. Plaskovietzka, Butsova, and Crombova), Valse Triste (Mlle. Swirskaia and M. Oukrainski), Valse Danube (sixteen women and three men), and L'Autumn Bacchanale (Mlle. Pavlowa and M. Volinine).

The national choral peace jubilee committee has begun its "peace song service" and its peace bulletins. W. B. Sloane, president of the Apollo club, is chairman of the committee.

Mr. Stock Tells Orchestra Plans.

The fact that the orchestra begins its twenty-fifth season next October makes the director's problem so much the more difficult. "Features" will be necessary. As one of them Mr. Stock purposes a "Shakspeare concert"—a program of the musical works inspired by various plays of the stepfather of German drama. There are scores of compositions which use the plays as programmatic bases. Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" music, Scheinpflug's "Overture to a Comedy by Shakspeare," Dvorak's "Othello" overture, Berlioz's "Romeo and Juliet" symphony, and a large amount of music from Shakspearean operas. Inasmuch as the April 23 of next year is the three hundredth anniversary of his death, the program might serve a double purpose.

Best Sellers in Music.

The three most popular Victor records as indicated by the sales of a leading distributor during the last week are:

"Illusion Valse" (hesitation) and "The Only Girl" (waltz hesitation), Victor orchestra.

"Elegie" (Massenet), Caruso and Elman.

"Sunbeam Sal," Nora Bayes.

The same music house furnishes the names of the three best selling rolls for player pianos. They are:

"Virginia Lee."

"I'm on My Way to Dublin Bay."

"Doodle-Ooodle-Dee" (fox trot).

The Edison company furnishes a list of the records with which their local salesmen have had the best success. They are:

"Rondino" (Vieuxtemps) and "Le Menetrier," mazurka (Wieniawsky), played by Carl Flesch.

"Just a-Wearyin' for You" (Carrie Jacobs Bond), sung by Marie Morrissey, and (a) "Yesterday and Today" (Spross) and (b) "Because" (D'Hardelot), sung by C. N. Granville.

"Scene de Ballet" (Czibulka) and "Grande Valse de Concert, the Whirlwind" (Mattei), reed orchestra.

LATEST NEWS FROM MOVIE LAND

By Mae Tinee

HERE'S CHANCE FOR $50.

PREPARE to be excited, because the loveliest thing is going to happen to you. You're going to write an essay, and it's going to bring you money. So saith this prophetess, vurrily. Read further.

Beginning with THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE of May 9 you are to be presented every single Sunday with a picture of a motion picture star—done by the new rotogravure process—and you're to choose the one you want. You're to vote—just as you did for the pictures that were to appear in "The Frame of Public Favor." Then you're to write an essay of 200 words or less telling just why your favorite is your favorite.

For the best essay $50 will be paid each week.

Each week the votes will be counted and the favorite receiving the most votes will enter your home, all ready for a place in a frame.

Now, pay close attention. We want to know—

Who is your favorite madcap heroine?

Send in your vote for her and, attached to the vote, send an essay telling just why she is your favorite madcap heroine.

We also want to know—

Who is your favorite society heroine, and why?

We also want to know—

Who is your favorite daredevil hero, and why?

Attach your essay to your ballot and send the whole thing in.

In these essays it is the ideas that count. The essays will not be judged by composition, spelling, or anything of the kind. If you haven't pen and ink handy, use a pencil—we won't worry.

Here's the ballot:

> In the near future I wish to receive with my "Sunday Tribune" a picture of
> My favorite Madcap Heroine—
>
> ....
> My favorite Society Heroine—
>
> ....
> My favorite Daredevil Hero—
>
> ....
> Attached to this ballot are my essays telling why the favorites I have designated are my favorites.

Understand that each essay is for a separate prize. The reason we are asking for three names on a ballot is that the rotogravure process is so complicated it is necessary to have considerable time on each picture. And only one picture a week will be given away. You will receive your favorite madcap heroine one week; your favorite society heroine the next; your favorite daredevil hero the next—and so on.

Now, dear children, put your name and address, written plainly, on each essay. Put essays and ballot in an envelope which you will address Film Star Editor, The Sunday Tribune, Chicago.

If there's anything you don't understand, write or telephone to Mae Tinee and matters will be explained to you.

All aboard for fame and—fifty dollars!

Irving Cummings, who is taking the lead in "The Diamond From the Sky" American serial, obtained his start in the dramatic profession from a woman to whom many owe their opportunity to be seen and heard on the boards. He called on Mrs. E. L. Fernandez, who was the agent for many famous theatrical managers. Mrs. Fernandez gave him lots of good advice, but could not change his purpose, so instead she found him a position with William H. Crane in "David Harum" and he had ten whole words to speak.

According to William Wing's own statement the report that he scenarioized "The Avenging Conscience" is an erroneous one. Frank Woods, he declares, is guilty.

The Selig Polyscope company, in conjunction with THE TRIBUNE, offers $500 for the best stories of 500 words each about the funniest event of your life. The $500 will be divided into four prizes, as follows: First price, $175; second prize, $150; third prize, $100; fourth prize, $75.

Your stories must be told in either 500 words or less. They will not be considered if they are longer. Put your name and address on a separate piece of paper, inclosing it in a plain sealed envelope, and put your manuscript and the plain envelope in another envelope which you address to Contest Editor, Right Off the Reel Page.

The contest will close at midnight next Sunday.

The prize winning stories will be made into scenarios by the Selig Polyscope company, and will be produced at the company's earliest convenience. The prize winning stories will be printed in the paper when a decision has been reached by the three judges, who are William Lord Wright, scenario editor of the Dramatic Mirror; George Fitch, the famous Peoria humorist, and B. L. T., the Line o' Type editor of THE TRIBUNE.

Please remember that any questions you may care to ask regarding the contest will be gladly answered, either by mail or telephone. When telephoning ask for the Contest Editor, Right Off the Reel Page. Address your inquiries to Mae Tinee, Right Off the Reel Page.

Employés of THE TRIBUNE and the Selig company are barred as contestants.

Feature Films of the Week.

A CHILD OF GOD—A four part drama featuring Francelia Billington. The "diamond in the rough" hero from the west conquers the effete eastern girl by might and main, proving to her that it's what a man is after all and not what he looks to be that really counts in the long run. (Mutual.)

GRAUSTARK—Six reel picturization of George Barr McCutcheon's novel of the same name, featuring Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne. Full of heart throbs, portrayed in the popular Bushman manner; well seasoned with adventure and colored with suspense. (Lubin-Vitagraph-Essanay-Selig, Inc.)

NIOBO—Five part comedy, featuring Hazel Dawn. Sounds like a weep, but is guaranteed by its fond sponsors to be a gay deceiver in that it is a laugh from start to finish. It will be shown at the Ziegfeld this week. (Paramount.)

THE CUP OF LIFE—Five reel drama, featuring Bessie Barriscale. A wedding ring, or the primrose path without one? This is the pregnant question that furnishes the motif for the picture. Will probably be popular with the clergy. (Mutual.)

THE PARDON—Three part American drama, featuring Thais Lawton, Percy Standing, and W. T. Carleton. If you were interested in the "widowed mothers' pension bill," presented at the recent legislature, you'll be anxious to see this film. It deals strongly with the subject. (Pathe.)

THE STOOL PIGEON—Two reel drama, featuring J. Warren Kerrigan. A case where we shudder with Warren, girls! (Universal.)

THE SPANISH JADE—A drama, featuring Betty Bellairs. Quaintly costumed and effectively staged, it is a tale of love and tragedy that should have a wide appeal.

PHOTOPLAYS THAT REMAIN.

THREE WEEKS—Picturization of Elinor Glyn's red, red novel. Showing at the La Salle.

THE LILY OF POVERTY FLAT—Five act picturization of Bret Harte's exciting story, featuring Beatriz Michelena. You are carried through a wild scramble for wealth in the gold fields—love, intrigue, tragedy—and their accompanying emotions. (World.)

THE HIGH ROAD—Featuring Valli Valli in what promises to be a whirlwind of a feature. (Metro.)

THE WOMAN—Adapted from the play and featuring Theodore Roberts, James Neill, Mabel Van Buren, and Lois Meredith. It's a story of domestic and political intrigue and is one of a series of features to be made by the Lasky company in association with David Belasco. Can be seen at Orchestra hall Saturday. (Paramount.)

THE AVENGING CONSCIENCE—A screen triumph. Showing at the Fine Arts.

THE ETERNAL CITY—Spectacular picturization of Hall Caine's novel of the same name. Showing at the Studebaker.

Costs less

-to Buy

Certainly does—at $1385, this Studebaker SIX costs VERY much less, hundreds of dollars less, in fact, than any SIX that begins to approach it in QUALITY. The low price is made possible only by the resources of Studebaker—one of the largest manufacturing organizations in the world manufacturing motor cars. You don't have to spend one dollar more than $1385 to get ALL that a SIX can give.

Just take the cars that cost more and study them side by side with this Studebaker SIX at $1385. You'll find one SIX that's priced at nearly $4,000 that has a semi-floating rear axle—one of the old-style axles that Studebaker has long since replaced with the SAFER FULL-floating rear axle. More costly to manufacture—but QUALITY comes first with Studebaker.

Take another of the Sixes that costs a few hundred dollars more than this SIX, and you'll find that it has no brake-equalizer—while the only other brake-equalizer like the one that Studebaker uses is on a $5,000 car.

Other Sixes, you'll find, all of them higher in price, drive thro' the springs—don't care to go to the expense of a design that calls for radius rods, even tho' radius rods save your springs and make the car EASIER-riding. Others are using ball bearings and annular bearings, where Studebaker uses more costly but better Timken Bearings.

And so you can go straight thro' this Studebaker SIX from "stem to stern" and find QUALITY that no other SIX within hundreds of dollars of its price begins to give. Quality that's built into it "—because it's a

-to Run

And so, too, when you get this Studebaker SIX on the roads, you find that you keep on paying less. You find that if it's ECONOMY to buy it—it's even more ECONOMY to run it.

For the simple reason that it's the LOW-upkeep SIX.

Built to be—that's all. Low upkeep is as important as any quality in a car. When Studebaker engineers designed this car, low cost of maintenance was one of the BIG things they had in mind.

And you can see the results the minute you begin to study this SIX. For you'll find, for example, drop forgings and pressed steel used in this car where castings are used in other cars. Forgings and pressed steel are stronger, but MUCH LIGHTER, too, than the castings that other cars use.

And then, you'll find a wonderful BALANCE in the car. The chassis has been simplified by three years' continuous and concentrated study. Every one of its units is placed with the idea of best distributing the car's weight.

The engineers have given it balanced lightness. They cut the cost of upkeep—the cost of tires and the cost of fuel. They made it a car that's easier to drive—a car that steers at the touch of two fingers, a car that hangs to the road at 50 miles an hour and a car with marvelously improved riding qualities.

And with its dignity of design and its elegance of finish, this Studebaker SIX is one of the handsomest cars you ever saw. Your eyes will tell that. But the BIG thing now is to ride in it, to drive it and to KNOW what Studebaker "balanced lightness" means. Come in and see this SIX that costs less to BUY and less to RUN—we'll welcome any test.

The TRIBUNE'S WEEKLY ALMANACK

APRIL-MAY

May.

THERE are elements of melancholy in a spring evening which do not yield to accurate analysis but which persist through the senses. They are the imponderables. The things which may be weighed and which occupy space all are gracious and inspiring. The rebirth is encouraging and lovely. Its aspect invites jocundity and inspires the light heart. Its meaning rejoices and yet there is the imponderable element of melancholy.

There's a touch of it in the after glow, a distinct flavor of it in the vespers of the woodthrush, a perceptible influence in the soft breath that comes odorous from the woods and fields where the hylas peeps. It may be because it is ephemeral and therefore admonitory or too gracious and therefore minatory. It may be that it approximates ideality and therefore stands contrasted with reality. It may be that it is the actual new year and therefore reminds that a door is opening upon scenes set for good or bad, for fate or fortune.

Possibly the lotus eaters were not happy, merely cloyed. There is a sense of resistance weakened. A blustering autumn day, signifying approaching desolation, stimulates. A grey day drives a human to make his comforts, spiritual and physical. A perfect spring evening asks nothing of him but enjoyment and he wonders that his enjoyment has the tinge of sadness.

Possibly all estheticism has the imponderable element of melancholy, born of the regret that it is not the ordinary and that it could not be the ordinary. It cannot be possessed fully and to know that a thing to be enjoyed most must be elusive and slip the grasp, must be the occasional in life, the ephemeral rather than the dominating and continuous may be to mix the emotions of pleasure and sadness.

Meanwhile the woodthrush sings and May apples have raised their tents, the blood root blooms and violets fill the woods.

Have Color in Your Cheeks

Be Better Looking—Take Olive Tablets.

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should take Olive Tablets.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 17 years of study with his patients.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

If you want a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days, you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after effects.

They start the bile and overcome constipation. That's why millions of boxes are sold annually at 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

Take one or two nightly and note the pleasing results.

VACUUM CUP TIRES

If you drive a light car, your mileage expectancy can reasonably be placed at far beyond this average.

1915 Vacuum Cup Tires are toughened by a new process that is yielding in actual service 50% greater mileages than last year's tires, which rolled up the A. C. A. record — incidentally doubling the life of the guaranteed non-skid Vacuum Cups.

And this economy is further marked by our having more than met our proportionate share of price revisions, reducing our differential over ordinary tires to a small margin.

The $75,000 Sale of "Karpen" Furniture Opens on Monday

This Is One of the Greatest Furniture Sales Ever Held Anywhere in the United States

The Entire Purchase Is to Be Offered to the Public at Almost Half the regular Prices

KARPEN is a name to conjure with in furniture, because behind it are sound principles, a high standard and a capable organization.

Karpen upholstered furniture is sold the world over. To the best of our knowledge it has never been sold for as little prices as we shall offer it tomorrow; nor has been offered at any special price so large and complete a variety of the Karpen product.

To Be Exact, There Is $74,428 Worth of Furniture which we shall sell, beginning tomorrow, Monday morning, at almost half price, two, three and four piece suits, davenports, sofas, easy chairs, rockers, hall chairs, sofa beds, couches; upholstered in leather, Spanish leather or tapestry and velour; bearing the Karpen guaranty as well as ours.

HISTORY—Nine Karpen brothers founded the business in a little loft a third of a century ago.

There are only seven brothers now; but the little loft has grown into five acres of factory buildings with five more acres of land for storage of lumber and other materials, the largest plant of its kind in the world, turning out each year three times as much upholstered furniture as any other factory, and selling it in every State in the Union and in the larger cities of the world.

Why? Because Karpen furniture has always given satisfaction. It is furniture that people have found comfort in using; it is artistically designed; pleasing to the eye; it wears well; and it has not the usual handicap of excellence—an expensive price.

Karpen
Guaranteed Upholstered Furniture
CHICAGO-NEW YORK

The Guarantee

Karpen Guaranteed Upholstered Furniture represents the highest achievement of three generations of cabinet makers, who still cling to the old-fashioned idea of doing things in the best way in which they may be done.

All furniture bearing our name is guaranteed to be as represented or your money will be cheerfully refunded by the dealer.

S. KARPEN & BROS.

The Sale Stocks

The Karpen complete line of upholstered furniture for living room, library, den, sitting room, bedroom and hall.

The Karpen Bros. offered us this furniture because once a year they clear their floor samples and surplus stocks.

To make a long story short, we took the stocks. Now that we've got them, we can admit frankly we were mighty glad to get them. They constitute a complete sample line of the Karpen product, the pieces whose excellence have brought them large orders. Every one is in first-class condition. 95 per cent are the newest Karpen styles of upholstered furniture in daily demand; the other 5 per cent are staple styles of slower moving stocks; 40 van loads in all, and with but few exceptions only one piece of a kind.

Now We Must Move These Great Stocks Quickly from Our Floors

Every piece is offered, without previous reservation, beginning at store-opening tomorrow, Monday, morning.

A few pictures are shown on this page merely as examples of the kind of furniture this Karpen stock holds.

But when you imagine a whole floor filled with them you will gain some idea of the tremendous size and scope of this wonderful sale.

PALACE.

Cecil Lean and Cleo Mayfield:

"Ah, good evening; I hope I see you well."

"I don't see how you can help it. You're looking right at me."

"Where is your husband?"

"He's at the war."

"What a wonderful alibi? I suppose he's a brute, isn't he?"

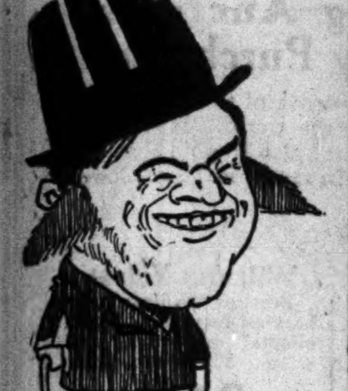
"Why do you ask?"

"The husbands of beautiful women are always brutes."

"Do you approve of the —— car?"

"O, yes, ——'s are all right is they don't get in your hair."

"Let's play we're having a wedding."



"All right. [Calls a man from audience to stand up with bride.]

"First, what's your name?"

"Eugenie—"

"O, yes, this will be a eugenic wedding. Have you a license?"

"Yes." [Groom produces it.]

"Why, this describes a long haired Irish setter. I suppose that's what you'll do?"

"What do you mean?"

"O, you'll set around. Where's the ring?"

"I don't know." [Start fumbling for it.]

"Haven't you even got the ticket?"

COLONIAL.

Crawford and Broderick:

"I like your cheek."

"My lips are much sweeter."

"If I give you a nickel, will you perform a task for me?"

"Yes, ma am; as long as there is no work connected with it."

"No work to speak of. I want you to assist on my farm. First of all I will furnish you with an alarm clock, set for 3:30 a. m."

"What's that 3:30 a. m. for?"

"That's the time you start out."

"Start out where?"

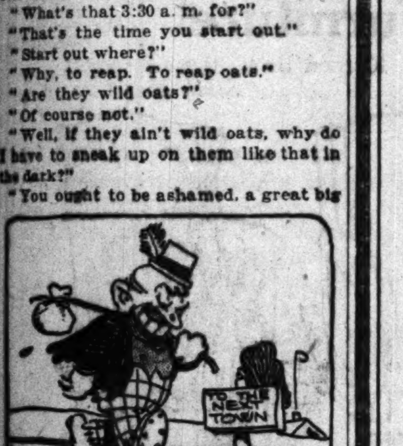
"Why, to reap. To reap oats."

"Are they wild oats?"

"Of course not."

"Well, if they ain't wild oats, why do I have to sneak up on them like that in the dark?"

"You ought to be ashamed, a great big healthy man like you leading a life of idleness."



"I may look strong, and yet would you believe it, lady, out of my fifty years of life I've spent over sixteen years in bed."

"Poor fellow. What was the trouble—paralysis?"

"No, mum; just a regular habit of sleeping eight hours a day."

"Have you ever earned any money honestly?"

"O, yes, mum; only this morning a man gave me a dime for shooting a dog."

"Was the dog mad?"

"Well, he didn't seem pleased. But, say, I'm working now on a great invention. You've heard of milkweed and eggplant. Well, if you can keep a secret, I don't mind telling you that I'm thinking of grafting milkweed on eggplant.'

"And what do you expect to produce?"

"Custard!"

McVICKER'S.

Tabor and Green:

"Do you know that life is the greatest conundrum in the world?"

"Why is life the greatest conundrum in the world?"

"Because we all have to give it up."

"Do you believe in dreams?"

"I used to, but not any more."

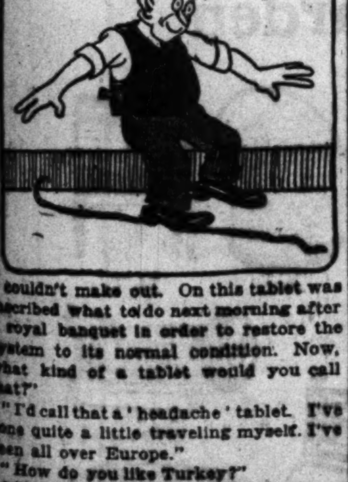
"Why not?"

"I married one; she used to be my stenographer."

"O, the girl you dictated to?"

"Yes, before I married her."

"Do you know that I spent the whole of last winter over in Egypt studying the ancient tablets? There was one tablet I couldn't make out. On this tablet was inscribed what to do next morning after a royal banquet in order to restore the system to its normal condition. Now, what kind of a tablet would you call that?"



"I'd call that a 'headache' tablet. I've done quite a little traveling myself. I've been all over Europe."

"How do you like Turkey?"

"With cranberry sauce."

"Behave. But, tell me, haven't you got a brother who wants to become a tight rope performer?"

"Yes, poor fellow; he's been practicing every day for months, but this morning he became suddenly insane."

"You must tell me about it."

"Well, you know, there is only one way to become a tight rope performer, and that is to walk on some narrow object until you learn to maintain your balance."

"O, I see."

"My brother used to spread noodles on the ground and practice walking on them."

"But what has all this to do with your brother going crazy?"

"This morning he went 'off his noodle.'"

The Wire Making Machine.

By HERBERT KAUFMAN.

[Copyright: 1915: By Herbert Kaufman.]

Your business is going to pot—starving for new blood. Competent men won't work for you; they avoid your office and don't give you a chance to employ their talents or engage their services.

Instead they're building up your competitors, supplying the mental ordnance with which to batter you out of the game.

All the first class youngsters have your rating and they won't trust you.

You're a wire making machine, incapable of measuring affairs of magnitude—it's a waste of valuable time and plans to submit to you an important proposition. There isn't sufficient space left in your ossifying brain to accommodate it.

Once upon a time you must have been broader gauged—it's incomprehensible that you should have reached a position of eminence and have won the right of decision except through the exhibition of enterprise and the exercise of shrewdness, but success has been your ruination.

You're not hard headed but bone headed. A revolutionary suggestion can't squeeze through the tiny peephole behind which you view values; only as much of it as you are capable of comprehending will gain admittance.

And so folks who can possibly procure an unprejudiced hearing elsewhere won't allow you to reduce their splendid projects to tidbits.

You're a self-complacent ignoramus, and despite your original power you can't survive.

You aren't growing, and so you'll soon be going.

You have assumed the role of teacher, and since you consider it beneath your dignity to become a pupil as well, whatever knowledge you have accumulated is long since obsolete.

Every good merchant knows that buying is nine-tenths of selling; and so thoroughly is this principle recognized that efficient business men do not wait until novelties are brought to them, but keep their ablest buyers scouting in the markets to meet originality half way on the road.

You can't hold your place by warding off bigger men than yourself; the profit and loss statement will give your number—results count and never make a mistake in the figures.

You've adopted an attitude of such pernicious egotism that rather than acknowledge anybody equal to an emergency with which you cannot cope you prefer to play dog in the manger to the point of sacrificing your welfare.

You'd rather sink in a quagmire of vanity than be rescued from failure by an outsider.

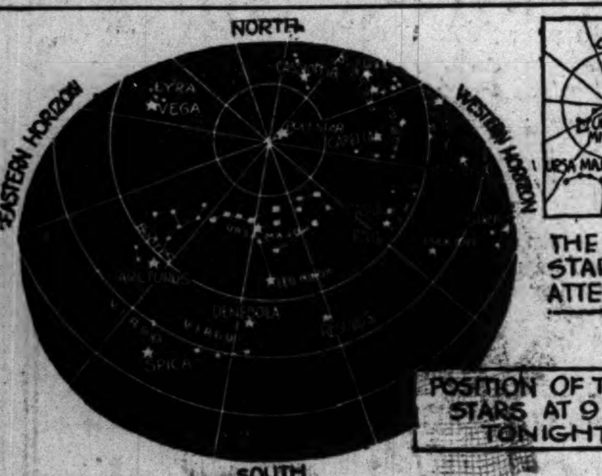
ASTRONOMY.



POSITION OF THE STARS AT 9 O'CLOCK TONIGHT

CASSIOPEIA
POLESTAR
URSA MINOR
URSA MAJOR

THE POLE STAR'S ATTENDANTS

Movement in the Sky.

THE most violent action we perceive in the sky is that of a meteor. It is not the most rapid we see but in the other cases we do not perceive the motion. The flash of a shooting star is a visible phenomenon of celestial speed. The movement of a comet calls upon the imagination and not the eyes for perception. The sweep of the moon we have revealed, but not in terms of velocity, and the same with the movement of the earth as revealed in the apparent movement of the sun both in its daily course from east to west and in its annual movement from summer solstice to winter solstice and back again.

Only in the case of the meteor is there any revelation of velocity. The planet Jupiter travels at nearly 500 miles a minute, but that fact means nothing to our eyes. The great sun, Arcturus, exceeding our sun 200 times in intrinsic brilliance, moves along the face of the sky at over 5,000 miles a minute. That also is a velocity which means nothing either to our eyes or imaginations.

It may be surmised that ancient and untaught watchers of the sky got their first true ideas of celestial movements not by watching the sun and moon, which would deceive them, but by watching two constellations near the pole star. When it was discovered that one star in the heavens remained fixed as the others swept across in the night from the eastern to the western horizon the idea that this star was the apex of the vault above, as related to the earth, may have been suggested.

It would then be observed that two constellations, one the most easily recognized in the sky, Ursa Major, the Great Bear, including as it does the most familiar figure in the heavens, the Big Dipper, and the other easily remembered W of Cassiopeia, swung around this center star and did not disappear in seasons as do the other stars and constellations.

Night after night and season after season as stars came and disappeared and returned, the Bear and Cassiopeia swung around the pole star, and the idea must have come to early watchers that this star indicated in the heavens the axis of the earth and that instead of the pageantry of the heavens being unrolled night after night to a stationary earth, the earth was revolving on an axis and traveling in an orbit fixed within the celestial sphere the various phenomena of which it observed as it turned its face to them.

There would have been no hint in it that the sun with his family of planets and asteroids was traveling through space and there is no sign of it to our observation or of the movement of stellar systems except as a star changes its magnitude.

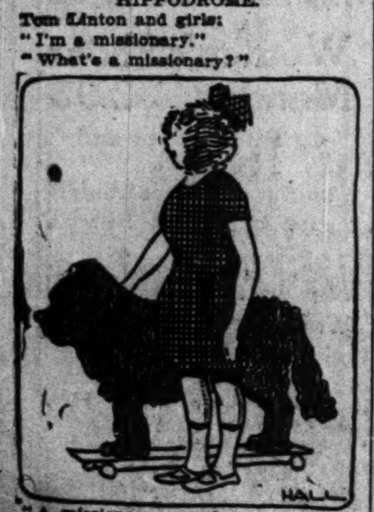
Vaudeville Wit.

HIPPODROME.

Tom Linton and girls:

"I'm a missionary."

"What's a missionary?"



"A missionary, my dear, is one who saves men."

"Hooray! Save me two. There is none around here."

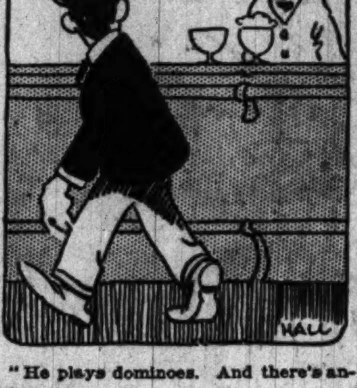
Some Laugh at This Vaudeville Wit.

MAJESTIC.

William Pruette & Co.:

"Otto's no good. He's a sport."

"Why?"



"He plays dominoes. And there's another thing——"

"Yes?"

"Otto doesn't pay his bills. He went in the inn the other day and ordered two beers at the same time. He drank one and walked out. 'Here,' cried the barkeeper, 'you haven't paid, and besides you haven't taken the second beer.' Then Otto said, 'I'll let that settle!'"

"I received a compliment. A man said my teeth were like the stars."

"I suppose its 'cause they come out at night."

Max Le Hoen and Mlle. Dupreece:

"Are you mad?"

"No. Why?"

"You gave me a funny look."

"You have a funny look, 'tis true; but why blame it on me?"

Harry Linton and Anita Lawrence:

"Just think, we've been married nearly a whole day."

"Yes, and it seems like a week. Guess I'll go out and get a drink."

"You'd better not."

"If I stayed out late would you go after me?"

"No; I'd wait until you came home and then go after you."

"Rather crowded on this chair, isn't it?"

"Yes; I was just thinking that if one of us got up there'd be more room for me."

"Good-bye, woman. You look upon my face for the last time."

"You're not going to commit suicide?"

"No; I'm gon'a grow a beard."

Rug and Curtain Week

This Important Semi-Annual Event Begins Monday, May 3
We Have Arranged for Advance Selection from All the Specials

The Alexander Smith and Sanford & Sons Rug Auctions During the Week in New York City Found Us Heavy Purchasers

These sales at which over $4,500,000 worth of rugs were sold at auction are the greatest events of the rug year in wholesale circles, just as our Rug and Curtain Week is the greatest retail event in these lines in the world. It is important also to note that our savings at previous purchases, have been so remarkable, that our retail prices for this event are in many instances lower than the prices wholesalers and retailers paid for bale lots at the auction sales.

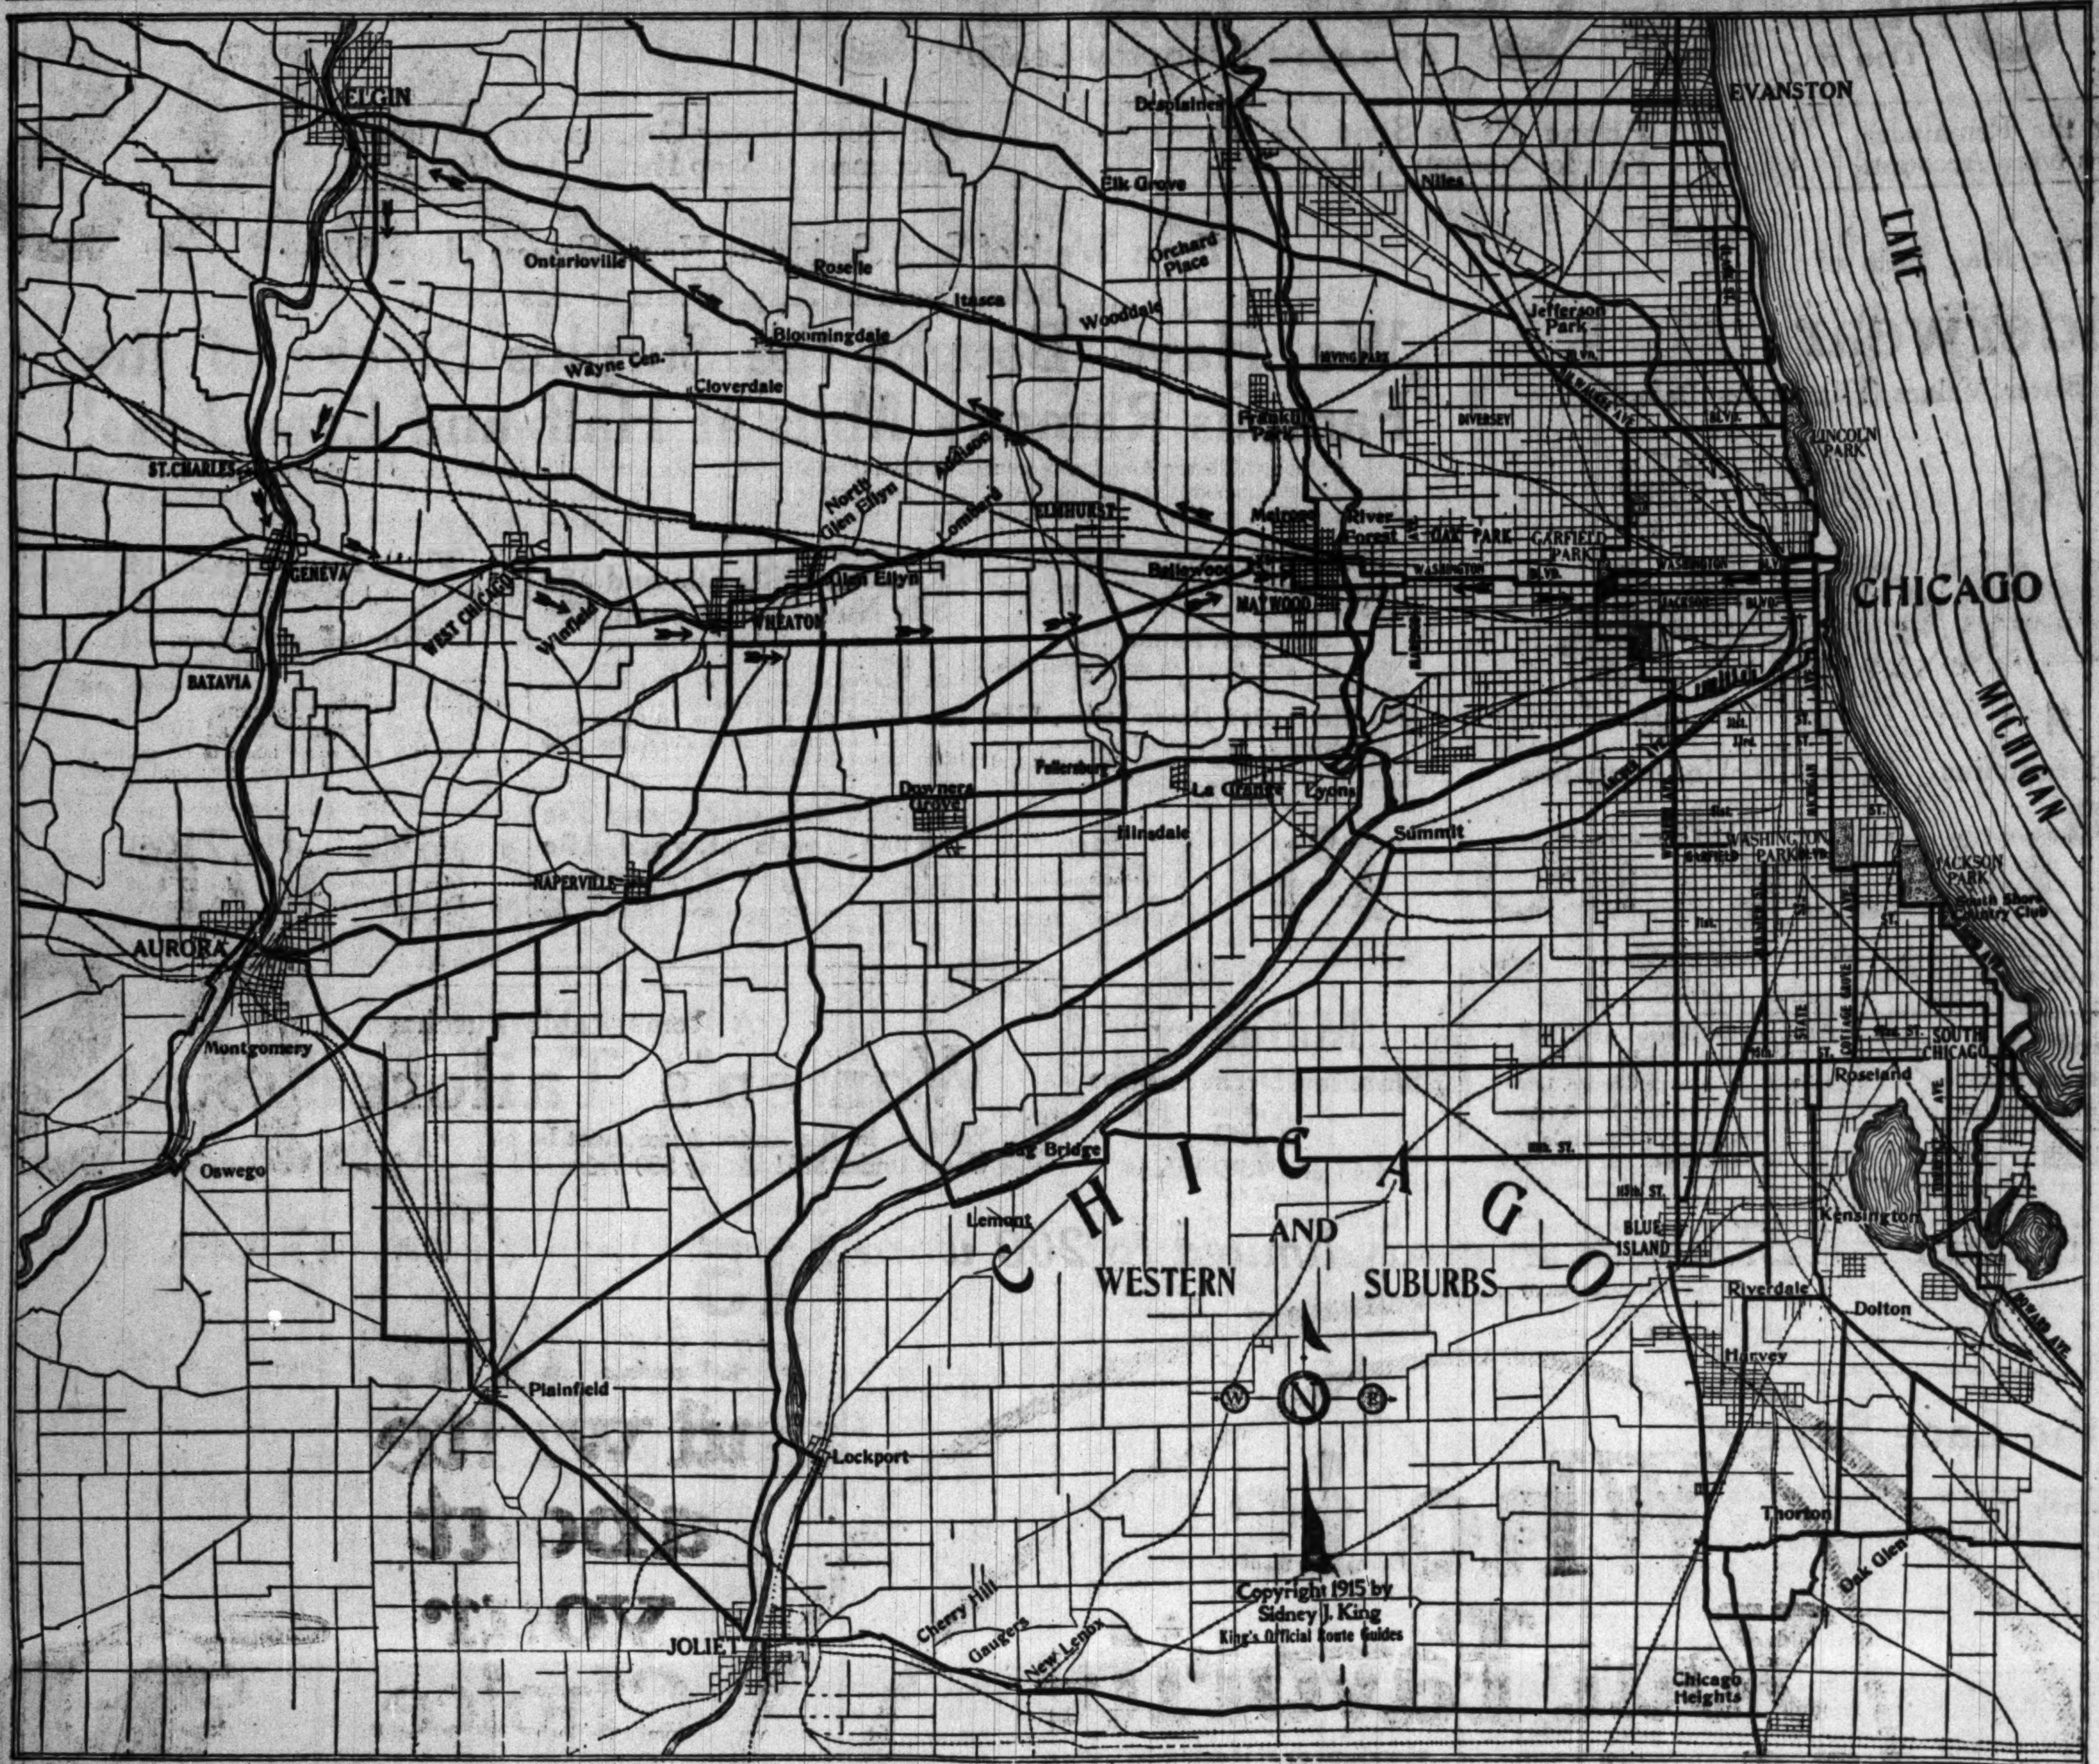
Route Map of Fox River Valley Tour.



Fox River Valley Best One Day Tour

By L. M. Steffens.

THE most available attractive touring ground for Chicagoans is found in the Fox river valley. There are few bad roads in that section of the state. The motorist may take any highway and be fairly confident he will encounter little difficulty. For the benefit of those who are timid about selecting their own routes I have outlined a tour of about eighty miles in length which may be made with ease today.

The map shows all the best roads in the section of the valley immediately west of Chicago. All roads indicated on the map are in splendid condition. A great deal of work is being done on the highways of Kane and Du Page counties and short stretches of improvement work may be encountered. Outside of these, however, the routes universally are in good condition.

I have indicated the best route to Elgin on the map, with a minute description of the road; but one also may go to Elgin via Melrose Park, Wooddale, Itasca, and Roselle; but the Addison road is the most traveled and preferable. If St. Charles and Geneva be the motorist's destination he should go west in Washington boulevard to Marengo street, then turn left and take the next right turn in Madison street to Fifth avenue, Maywood. Then turn right to St. Charles avenue. Here turn left, going to the end of the road in Bellewood. Turn right and take the next left turn in the St. Charles road, going through Elmhurst and Lombard to Glen Ellyn. The roads to St. Charles, Geneva, and Wheaton diverge at the five corners. From Wheaton a good macadam road may be found to Aurora by going south in Naperville street, passing the golf club on the right, to Naperville and then following the Starved Rock trail to Aurora.

Leaving Chicago for Aurora, follow the above route to Bellewood, where you turn left at the end of the road, passing the McKinley school on the right, and turn right in the Butterfield road, which leads to Aurora via Naperville.

From Aurora there is a good gravel road to Joliet via Plainfield. There have been many disputes as to the best route to Joliet. I recommend the route via Washington boulevard west to Madison street and then go south in Desplaines avenue to Riverside and Lyons, where you meet the Chicago road to Joliet. Leaving Joliet for Chicago Heights, follow the Lincoln highway all of the way.

Charging that certain interests within the state are perniciously active to secure an amendment of the state road law known universally as the Tice act, the Associated Roads organizations of Chicago yesterday began a state-wide campaign to secure the defeat of the proposed amendment which provides that: "Under the house committee amendment county boards may specify earth, gravel, macadam, macadam and concrete combined, concrete, or brick types. If earth the county will maintain the roads; if gravel or macadam, the county and the state jointly; if concrete or brick, the state all."

A pamphlet is being prepared by the association stating the purposes and hopes of those in favor of the Tice act. It brands as outrageous the attempt to modify the present law. In part the pamphlet will say:

"A gravel or macadam road is not an all the year round road. In certain winter and spring months travel on it will ruin it. Yet the main idea behind the 1913 law is that Illinois should have a system of main roads which would connect the farmer with his market and the merchant with his country customer twelve months in the year. In some counties conditions of travel and climate may make a gravel or macadam or combination road satisfactory, but the authority of determination should be left with the state highway commission.

"For a hundred years Illinois has floundered in muddy roads. Millions of dollars have been sunk into the mudholes along its highways. Finally the state awoke and took account of the situation in a thoroughly businesslike manner. Business efficiency lay behind the plan which Illinois set herself to under the law of 1913. It is too early in 1915 to let the forces which always have opposed advancement in road construction destroy that efficiency."

For Motorist and Motorcyclist

By High

TIRE chains may be used as tow ropes in an emergency. Fasten two or more chains together so the stress is divided equally between the two outside chains. The lines thus formed should be tightened gradually, as the chains are not strong enough to withstand a severe tug. If properly connected and judiciously used the chains will pull a stalled car out of trouble with ease.

More than half the spare tires carried on automobiles are improperly protected. Mud, oil, grease, and dirt of all descriptions are allowed to collect on the casing. Most serious of all is the water that is allowed to soak into the fabric, ruining the tire. Dirt and water may get inside the casing. Mud forms between the casing and the inner tube. When the tire is used this mud chafes against the inner tube and a blowout results. There are many good tire covers on the market. The cost of a tire cover soon may be saved if used on spares.

Motorists in search of all kinds of accessories would do well to look for bargains advertised in the classified columns of THE TRIBUNE every Sunday. One of the companies which advertises there recently circularized automobile owners in the state, showing prices were often 40 per cent less than list.

Queries and Answers.

"Please tell me the best route from Chicago to Dubuque, Ia. J. P., Chicago."

From Chicago go west through Geneva, Cortland, De Kalb, Malta, Creston, Rochelle, Ashton, Nachusa, Dixon, Sterling, Morrison, Fulton, Clinton, Maquoketa, and then north to Dubuque. The total distance is 220 miles. This route is of a greater mileage than the route that goes to Dubuque via Rockford and Freeport, but you will have better roads.

"Will you please advise if a cutout on an automobile is of any advantage to the engine? H. K., Union, Ill."

It is not.

"Please inform me if a 1915 auto license purchased in Illinois will be recognized in California during 1915. If not of the entire year, for what length of time will California allow one to motor on an Illinois license?

"F. L. H., Chicago."

Thirty days is the usual limit permitted in California.

News and Gossip of the Motor World

By Reed L. Parker.

BELIEVE the current rumors, and you will expect to see Joe Dawson behind the steering wheels of a Maxwell, Mercer, Sunbeam, and Marmon in the next 500 mile race at Indianapolis. While confidence in Dawson's abilities approximates a belief that he could do equal justice with any other driver in the country to either of the above cars, his ability to drive all at once is doubted. As a guess, believed to be shrewd, Dawson will be in either a Maxwell or a Mercer. Dawson, by the way, is the man who to save the life of a fellow man deliberately chose the road to death in the five century grind of a year ago. Providence lifted from the grave a boy whom the world respects. We would fain see the man so blessed refrain from further tempting fate. Once a racing driver always a racing driver, the saying goes, and death or an insistent wife alone will prevent Dawson's return to a ridiculous if fascinating game.

An Indianapolis newspaper man possessed of an imagination writes knowingly of the plans for the local contest season of Charles E. Erbstein, a local barrister. According to a Hoosier announcement Erbstein has in mind three cars for his team—two Sunbeams and a Marmon. Can this be the same Mr. Erbstein who flung both hands aloft after the 300 mile race at Sioux City last year and exclaimed, "Never again"? We'd consider it soft money if we could get a bet Erbstein would be interested this year in any other capacity than that of a spectator and as a member of the Chicago Automobile club contest committee.

For two—or is it three?—years the automobile editor of THE TRIBUNE in terms by no means uncertain has condemned the Elgin racecourse. Frequently outcries brought him unpleasant criticism. It is with pardonable pride that he announces the improvements he has urged in the past have been made. The Elgin course was the roughest in America. The surface was wavy. Cars were known to have jumped several feet off the ground as the result of hitting hummocks at speed. There were few if any perfect stretches a hundred yards in length round the entire course. A great deal of work has been done to obviate the roughness. Seven of the eight miles raced on have been scarified. All the notorious humps have been removed. Much of the waviness has been eradicated. We are of the opinion that the result will be evident in the timing. The Elgin race will be faster this year than before.

What is one city's loss is another's gain. It is safe to say New York motoring affairs will profit greatly by the experience of C. G. Sinsabaugh, who leaves Chicago to take up a new post there today.

It seems safe to aver that work on Chicago's speedway will begin again tomorrow.

Should any one doubt the popularity of the eight cylinder car he should have hied himself to one of the local freight yards last week and seen a trainload of King eights unloaded for the Chicago trade. There were seventy-five cars in the train.

If there is a single agency or branch in the row that is not doing a good business there is no evidence of it. It is safe and sane to predict that 1915 will be one of the greatest sales years in the history of the industry.

Buick will have built all the 1915 cars it intends to build in two weeks and will immediately commence work on the 1916 output, according to an announcement coming directly from the factory yesterday. It has been understood that the Buick company would build 50,000 cars for this season's market. These, within perhaps a few thousand, have been sold.

Hupmobile
CAR OF THE AMERICAN FAMILY

Ask the Hupmobile Dealer

Ask him why he continues to sell the Hupmobile year after year.

He will tell you: "Because the Hupmobile grows better year after year."

He is not afraid to meet any man to whom he has sold a Hupmobile.

His customers last year, are his customers this year.

And better than that—they are his friends, as well as his customers.

They go out of their way to help him make Hupmobile sales.

From twenty-five to fifty per cent of his new buyers, come, he will tell you, from the recommendations of old friends.

He does not hesitate to refer to them—they do not hesitate to endorse the Hupmobile.

Do you know of another car of which this is so widely, so enthusiastically, true?

Where the average man buys one car, the Hupmobile dealer buys scores, or even hundreds.

He pays his money for these cars, the same as you pay for yours.

He had to be sold on the Hupmobile before he would make this investment, the same as you have to be sold.

The Hupmobile dealer, naturally, is prejudiced in favor of the Hupmobile.

But isn't that very prejudice—that extreme enthusiasm—the strongest endorsement you could ask?

If he has held the friendship of his Hupmobile owners through all these years, he will hold your friendship, too.

What is true of Hupmobile dealers generally is true of us. Let us show you the 1915 Hupmobile.

In every business, or as a pleasure car, the Ford proves reliable and economical. Low first cost—$60 less than last year, and the plan of sharing profits with the buyers—and low upkeep expense, are reasons why it pays to own a Ford. They serve and save.

Buyers will share in profits if we sell at retail 300,000 new Ford cars between August 1914 and August 1915.

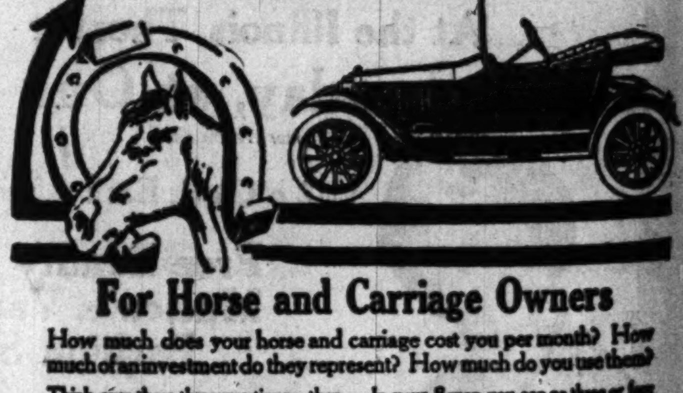
SAXON ROADSTER $395



For Horse and Carriage Owners

How much does your horse and carriage cost you per month? How much of an investment do they represent? How much do you use them?

Think over these three questions—then compare the horse and carriage cost with that of the Saxon—whether the 5-passenger "Six", at $785 or the 2-passenger roadster at $395.

For the price of a horse and carriage you can own a Saxon. For the cost of maintaining them you can easily operate a Saxon.

In your Saxon you can go three or four times as far in an evening's ride. You can get to your destination in one-quarter the time. You can do more, can enjoy more, can live more.

Saxon cars are good cars. Thousands of them, in daily use throughout the country, are making good. Yours will do the same.

Let us take you for a ride in the Saxon.

The Sunday Tribune Will Give Away

FIFTY [$50] DOLLARS

PERHAPS TO YOU!

THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE will resume the publication of the pictures of favorite moving picture actors and actresses.

The fans will be asked to designate their favorites in votes sent THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE. The votes will be counted once a week, and the picture of the actor or actress who receive the largest number will be printed as a supplement to THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE.

The picture will be printed by THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE'S rotogravure process in sepia tinted ink on substantial paper. It will be 8x11 inches in size and will be ALL READY TO FRAME.

One of these pictures will be given, FREE, with every copy of every issue of THE SUNDAY TRIBUNE until further notice.

IN ADDITION TO THIS, A PRIZE OF

will be given to the person who BEST TELLS, in an essay limited to 200 words, his or her reasons why his or her favorite IS his or her favorite. The REASONS are what we want!

The purpose of this contest is to find out WHY you like such and such a movie player. In determining the result no attention will be paid to literary style. Neither will it matter whether you write or typewrite your essay, or whether you use scented stationery or wrapping paper, or whether you use pen or ink. Just write what you think, in your own way. Yours may be just the right way of telling it. Your age does not count, either. You may be young, middle-aged or old—you're eligible just the same. We want everybody to try it. Especially do we want the children to. It is not at all unlikely that a child may frequently get the prize—in fact, it is distinctly likely, as children have almost uncanny methods of expression.

Full conditions of this contest will be found in the "Latest News from Movieland" department in this section of today's Sunday Tribune. These conditions will include a ballot which you may use to vote for your favorite. Vote and write your essay early.

Who is Your Favorite Madcap Heroine and Why?

PERSONAL.

PERSONAL—WOULD YOU AND YOUR family party of not more than six share the expense of a trip to the Panama Exposition in my roomy seven passenger car?

Am thoroughly familiar with every detail and a safe and sane driver. I want to see the exposition and in addition want to see everything that lies between here and there.

If you would like to see the west by auto—the famous old trails, Yellowstone and Glacier National parks, the Yosemite, the Grand Canon, points of national interest and the thousand and one little things that are beautiful and enjoyable, but almost unknown—if you like the birds and trees and a comfortable outdoor ride—there isn't a better way than the plan I have in mind.

You will be free from the responsibility of caring for the car and still have every advantage you would owning the car.

HOUSEHOLD GOODS.

FURNITURE

HIGH IN QUALITY LOW IN PRICE.

We feel confident, and we have over 100,000 customers who seem to feel the same, that there is not a furniture house in this or any other city that can undersell us and maintain the same quality of merchandise that we offer. We do not claim to be superior to all, but simply inferior to none.

What we offer here is not specially purchased goods but regular stock being sold at practically cost; the aim is to catch your eye with honest values in the hopes of drawing you to our stores, and then by our splendid service and fine merchandise selling you today and having you come back for more tomorrow.

What we want to impress upon your mind is that we do not give away furniture, but that we sell it at the lowest price consistent with a quality of merchandise and a service that any store might well be proud of.

We know that there are many articles on our floors that you would like to have and can have on either cash or credit terms.

Last Call Storage Pianos.

We are not in business to sell pianos. We are experts in repairing, tuning, rebuilding, and storing pianos and player-pianos, and when we get overstocked with instruments on which the storage charges haven't been paid there's only one thing for us to do.

We sell 'em—sell 'em as quick as we can and at prices that will guarantee our clearing them out. Now, you understand, some of these pianos are practically brand new. They come to us from all over the state—from the best homes in town, from clubs, hotels—upright pianos, grand pianos, player-pianos.

Right now there's one particular lot we'd like to get rid of. They're good instruments—every one of them, but we're NOT in the piano selling business and we need the room. We've priced them accordingly.

Take Cottage Grove-av. car to 26th-st. Walk half block south. If you can't call write for full list and particulars of our Easy Payment Plan. Telephone Harrison 1644.

Guaranteed Rebuilt Pianos.

Don't be deceived into buying a piano merely because the price is low. We sell instruments at all prices—for as little as $70, but each and every piano MUST be in the best possible condition, and for this reason we maintain a large factory EXCLUSIVELY for the purpose of rebuilding exchanged pianos.

You have probably never seen our great special repair factory out on South Park-av., and perhaps you never will, but if you will call at our warerooms this week you will see some examples of their workmanship, which will explain to you WHY we can afford to give our strong Exchange Bond with every romane piano and player-piano which leaves our store.

Our exchange bond gives you the guaranteed right to return the used piano you purchase any time within a year to receive full credit for every penny paid in toward the purchase of a new piano or player-piano.

If you are unable to call, write for complete bargain list, catalogues of our new instruments, and details of our Easy Payment Plan. We also have on hand at all times an excellent selection of pianos for rent on very low terms.

Arkansas.

FOR SALE—I OWN 2 FARMS IN NORTHeastern Arkansaw. These farms are both level alluvial bottom lands, entirely free from overflow. They are drained by a large dredge ditch, which divides each of them and provides perfect drainage at all times. There is not a foot of land on either farm that cannot be easily put into cultivation and will raise immense crops of corn, wheat, oats, alfalfa, and all other grasses. Any crop raised here can be raised there, and in addition a legume can be raised in the rotation every year. Apples, peaches, pears, plums, grapes, and all other orchard fruits do fully as well as with us. Cattle and hogs are raised here in large numbers, and for the most part of the year find abundant feed in the wild grasses and nuts which abound on every hand. These farms lie on each side of the road. The one on the north side contains 460 acres and is worth $14,000.00. The one on the south side of the road contains 480 acres and is worth $15,000.00. I am entirely occupied with the practice of my profession and am unable to give them attention. Would consider a proposition either for a sale or an exchange for property nearer to me. These farms, with a little attention, can be easily made worth $100 per acre. DR. MILTON S. SMITH, La Porte, Ind.

Save a Little

[Special Excursion Tuesday, May 4.]

"THE DOLLAR that goes farthest is the dollar that stays at home." The dollar you send to the store for vegetables or fruit when you should be able to get them from your own land, fresh for summer and preserve them for the winter, is the dollar that goes away and stays away.

IF YOU CAN SAVE A LITTLE each month I can help you become independent. Just how I will do it is too much to print here, but if you will call at my office I will explain it. You will be surprised at the facilities I have built up with my large organization to aid, advise, and direct the settlers on my lands. When you call I will show you how thoroughly we go into these matters in our colonising work, and I will hand you my free 72 page illustrated book about the Swigart Tract and show you many views in my stereopticon room. If you are unable to call, then write, and I will mail you the literature.

IT IS YOUR DUTY to post yourself right now about the opportunities I am offering if you have any idea of ever owning a farm. Let me show you how favorable my plan is to a man of limited means, or who is earning wages. I have something very much out of the ordinary to offer now.

SIZE UP THE SITUATION. Come and see the crops of rye, oats, vetch, corn, wheat, alfalfa, beans, and potatoes. Talk to the settlers. Judge for yourself the amount of improvement and development going on. Look at orchards being started. Forecast in your own mind what the future has in store for you in this Tract, with new towns, good markets, several railroad and steamship lines, good schools, good roads, and electric power dams being built. There are real opportunities in this district. Verify my claims as to the advantages of locating in the central part of Michigan's fruit belt, where the climate moderated by nearness to Lake Michigan is mild and most healthful. Drink the delicious, pure water. I will take you in one of my automobiles as many miles as you want to go. I have over 50,000 acres of excellent lands to show you.

COME RIGHT ALONG with us and see the lands on our next excursion to Michigan, Tuesday, May 4th. Rate from Chicago to Wellston [my Michigan headquarters] and return $8.30, which will be rebated on your land purchase. Good accommodations for both men and women. Automobiles and guides are furnished free. You get back to Chicago at 7:30 either Thursday or Friday morning. Offices remain open Monday evening and Saturday afternoon.

Businesslike Methods

Are essential to the customer's satisfaction. Nothing so surely drives away patronage as indifferent service.

Our Used Car Department is a business institution. Its system throughout is as thoroughgoing as possible. Its customers don't have to do its thinking for it in matters of detail. It does its own and often theirs.

The difference in this particular is a subject of general comment. Call and see.

A REBUILT CADILLAC

It's a Safe Used Car to Buy.

SPECIAL VALUES NOW.

A rebuilt Cadillac is superior to any new car at the same price. They are the truest values on the street. By rebuilt we mean that the cars have been taken entirely apart, each part examined, and, if necessary, replaced by a new part made at the Cadillac factory; the entire car repainted and refinished like new; all equipment put in first class condition—the whole car, in fact, carefully reconstructed until it is good as new in every detail.

We offer Cadillacs exclusively, as we do not accept other makes in trade. Consequently we are as interested in the performances of these rebuilt cars as we are in new Cadillacs. In actual service values these cars are worth a great deal more than we ask for them, and we usually have a variety of body styles to select from. See them before you buy.

AUTOMOBILES—ELECTRIC.

Rare Values in Detroit Electrics.

A GOOD ELECTRIC CAR SLIGHTLY USED is a better purchase than a new one of inferior quality. The Detroit Electric leads all others—in sales as well as in quality. Every third electric sold is a Detroit Electric. These cars are driven by men and women who demand and are used to having the best.

Buy an electric car as you would a bond. Study the security back of it.

A Chance to Save Money.

WE have a number of rebuilt electric cars. All are in perfect running condition and offered at unusually low prices. These cars are rebuilt in our own factory; they have been repainted, equipped with new batteries and tires. PRICES RANGE from $500 to $2,300.

INVESTIGATE THESE RARE VALUES.

Get a Woods Electric

Persons of experience agree that the ideal car for city and suburban use is a Woods Electric. People who imagine otherwise, as a rule, aren't familiar with the efficiency and convenience of the Woods.

Others don't realize that a Woods Electric costs less to own and maintain than other cars of equal class. We have some exceptional bargains in refinished cars recently taken in.

These cars, with new paint, tires, and batteries, and mechanically overhauled, have the appearance and give service practically equal to new. They are the soundest automobile bargains you can put your money into.

An electric so well made as the Woods will run 10 to 12 years, and then give good service when converted into a delivery truck.

We can supply good overhauled G. E. Rectifiers, enabling you to charge your own car at home, $100 to $175. Installation at actual cost.

Come in and get our prices and a demonstration. Out of town inquiries, telephone calls, etc., receive careful attention.

REAL ELECTRIC CAR BARGAINS—

We recently discontinued the agency for the Baker Electric automobile and have left on hand two demonstrating cars of late model.

Both cars have been painted and overhauled, have solid tires, new steel fenders, and battery renewals.

In appearance both cars are like new and have seen but little service.

One is a four passenger front drive and the other four passenger rear drive with revolving chairs.

Neither of these cars have been privately owned and can be bought at big sacrifices and are good cars.

WIDE AVENUES CITY DRAWBACK, HARMON HOLDS

Realty Man Believes Residences Should Set Back from Narrow Streets.

BY WILLIAM E. HARMON.
[Of William E. Harmon & Co.]

A study of the relationship of city planning to residential development requires that two points of view be kept in mind—one, taking the city as the focal center; the other, keeping in view the interests of the suburban or semi-urban districts affected thereby. As a large majority of those interested in the matter look at it from the public, or city, point of view, I shall confine myself to an individualistic consideration of the subject.

It is self-evident that a movement which takes its origin in the desire to correct or avoid defects in planning that have worked great injury to our rapidly growing American cities in the past will have a tendency to give inadequate consideration to such interests as may be affected adversely by radical changes in the well established methods or practices. The purpose of this article is to make some suggestions directed toward protecting the individual home owner, taxpayer, or suburban developer without attacking the fundamental idea of the city beautiful, or modern city planning, as it is generally understood.

Wide Avenues a Disadvantage.

It is generally believed that wide avenues are an advantage in a residential district. This is an antiquated notion that probably finds its origin in an earlier movement to do away with congestion. While wide thoroughfares are, doubtless, occasionally necessary, especially in radial arteries leading from the center to the periphery of cities, yet such wide streets are rather a necessary evil than an advantage to surrounding property, and under modern conditions of traffic are often destructive to the values of abutting land.

Streets given over to purely residential purposes should be narrow, and the distances between houses produced by a setback imposed on the construction. From a purely economic point of view rectangular lots and straight lines are desirable, but they are not beautiful. In the reaction from the old system of rectangular streets, the modern advocate of city planning insists upon curves that enforce irregular plottage and great waste. The same, or better effects can be produced by streets very slightly curved in which beauty of outlook is preserved, and plottage is not seriously sacrificed, if at all.

Alleys Archaic—That's All.

Alleys are archaic—this statement need not be enlarged upon.

Proceedings for widening radial avenues should not be assessed on the abutting property, as there is rarely any betterment, but should be borne by the city at large. On purely residential streets, in which the traffic is exclusively local, the cost of such widenings should be borne half and half by the city and by the adjacent or nearby property. One of the most conspicuous examples of the confiscation of private property by inequitable methods of assessment is evidenced in Boston, where the results of the Metropolitan park and parkway system have been to reduce the value of, and, at times, make abutting real estate unmarketable.

Lack of Control Handicap.

One of the most serious handicaps to the harmonious development of our American cities is the lack of control over suburban operations. As long as a general city system of street layout and improvement is followed there is little or no scientific municipal supervision with regard to character of restrictions, their duration, the protection against nuisances, removal of restrictions in the case of obvious necessity, or the establishment of parks and playgrounds.

I have made the statement, in connection with an effort to put through laws in certain states, that while traveled avenues injure adjoining property, small parks are distinctly beneficial, and 10 per cent of the actual area of any subdivision could be set aside for such purposes without imposing any burden whatever upon the developer. The abutting lots would enjoy an increase in value equivalent to at least the cost of the land taken.

If a proper supervision were exercised over developments every city in this country would in time have an ample amount or supply of small parks, which would be things of permanent beauty and afford open play spaces in case of future changes in the character of the neighborhood. Such control would save millions of dollars in future expenditures for park and playground purposes.

Future Always Unsolved.

No one, even the wisest of us, can tell much about the future of a location. We have adopted in the past restriction of fifteen years' duration, which have been entirely too long, and in other instances twenty year restrictions, which have been entirely too short. A nearly ideal method of restricting property would be to provide that when three-quarters of the ownership in a particular plottage agree upon a change such change could take effect through some formal legal procedure.

Certain states have passed laws which provide for this method of changing restrictions, but the law is probably unconstitutional, for it takes property without due consideration, where if imposed in the beginning it would be sound in law, because it would be a condition under which the property was purchased.

Favors Joining of Interests.

The relationship between suburban development and city planning is a subject of such complex character and far reaching ramifications that it is impossible in the scope of this article to more than touch on a few points. One suggestion might be made, however, which would increase the efficiency of the city planning movement by removing an opposition that develops tardily, but is nevertheless effective in breaking down most attempts at radical reconstruction.

All committees, commissions, or civic bodies interested in the subject should work in conjunction with a committee of suburban land owners, or should secure the services of a person of large experience in suburban development. In this way it would be comparatively easy to adjust seemingly adverse interest of the city as a whole and of the individual land owner, and a compromise could be effected that would be not only artistic and economical but satisfactory to those who have the interests of the city at heart and those who must look after their personal interests in protecting their property.

CONSIDERING the handicap against which the real estate market is contending on account of the trouble in the building trades it made a suprisingly good showing last week, the number of really important transactions being rather above the average. Of course, it is the lot business, where purchases are being made for purposes of improvement, that is feeling the pinch, nevertheless the reports of subdividers were of a decidedly encouraging character, showing apparently little halting of the buying movement in this field.

The explanation probably is to be found in the general belief the trouble is not likely to be of a serious character owing to the strong popular disapproval of the attitude of those responsible for the present crisis. There are many who believe the trouble will be settled during the coming week, and even those of a more conservative mind look for a settlement within the next two weeks at the outside.

Telephone Company Buys.

Probably the most interesting feature of the week's market was the purchase made by the Chicago Telephone company on the south side of Wasington street, between Franklin and Market streets, as the site for a proposed new main operating building, the estimated cost of which is placed at about $750,000. The proposed building is to take care of the apparatus and service in the northern part of the business district, in place of the present quarters for "Main," "Franklin," "Central," and "Randolph," at Franklin and Washington streets, and in the Chicago Title and Trust company building, on Washington street near Dearborn.

South to Change, Too.

The service in the southern part of the downtown district, handled by "Harrison" and "Wabash," will shortly be housed in the new building on Federal street, near Harrison. When the general office building on Washington street was erected four years ago several floors were set aside for telephone operating purposes, but the growth in the service has been so rapid that it is now evident that all the space will be required for general office purposes exclusively.

The new building will be fireproof, and the foundations will be capable of sustaining a building to the full height of 200 feet permitted by the city ordinances, although it is thought it may not be necessary to build higher than seven stories during the next five years. It is sated that the condition of business will determine whether it is necessary to begin the work of construction this year.

Building 181 Feet Long.

The building will occupy 140x181 feet, the east line being 100 feet west of the southwest corner of Washington and Franklin streets. For this ground, 100 feet of which was acquired in fee simple and forty feet leasehold, the company paid a total of $345,000. The leasehold interest comprises the east forty feet and was acquired from William B., Henry D., and Demarest Lloyd for $35,000.

The twenty feet adjoining on the west was purchased from the estate of Horace F. Waite for $50,000, being at the rate of $2,500 a front foot. The company gave back a part purchase money mortgage for $35,000, two years at 5½ per cent. The adjoining forty feet was acquired from Mrs. Isabel A. Bross for $150,000, which is at the rate of $3,750 a front foot, while the remaining forty feet was acquired from Mrs. Harriet A. Klebs and husband for $110,000, which is at the rate of $2,750 a foot. A part purchase money mortgage for half the consideration was given in each instance. Four story buildings occupy the frontage. They were valued by the board of review at $82,500.

W. V. Kelley Adds to Holdings.

Another interesting transaction in the downtown district was the purchase by William V. Kelley, vice president of the Miehle Printing Press company, from Albert Hoefeld and S. Seward Lelewer of their ninety-two year leasehold interest in the property at 458-460, South State street, opposite Congress street, and also the purchase by Mr. Kelley of the building and ninety-two year leasehold of Robert Rosenthal in the same property.

Mr. Kelley was the owner of the ground and by these purchases has merged the various interests. It has a frontage of seventy-five feet with a depth of 102 feet to an alley, and is improved with a four story and basement building occupied by stores on the ground floor and a men's hotel on the upper floors.

The property, which was owned by the Waller family for many years, was leased by William Waller to Hoefeld and Lelewer for ninety-nine years from May 1, 1907, for $17,000 annual ground rent for eighteen years, $18,000 for five years, and $20,000 for the rest of the term, they paying $50,000 cash for the building. In January, 1913, they sold the building to Robert Rosenthal for $50,000 and sublet the ground for the balance of ninety-three years at an annual bonus to them of over $6,000.

Mr. Kelley acquired the ground from Mr. Waller in 1912. He has given Mr. Rosenthal a short lease of the entire property. The considerations in connection with the last transaction are withheld. Albert L. Strauss and Louis Manierre of Dibblee & Manierre conducted the negotiations for all the parties. B. W. Eisendrath was associated in the deal.

According to the transfer which was filed for record during the week, the consideration in connection with the purchase by Julia F. Porter et al. from Mrs. Martha Hale Harts of the fee in the property at the southeast corner of State and Lake streets was $345,000 instead of $300,000, as previously reported. The purchaser gave back two part purchase money mortgages aggregating $335,000 and paid $10,000 cash, according to the stamps on the document. One mortgage was for $300,000 at 4½ per cent and the other for $35,000 at 6 per cent. The Porters also paid $300,000 for the leasehold.

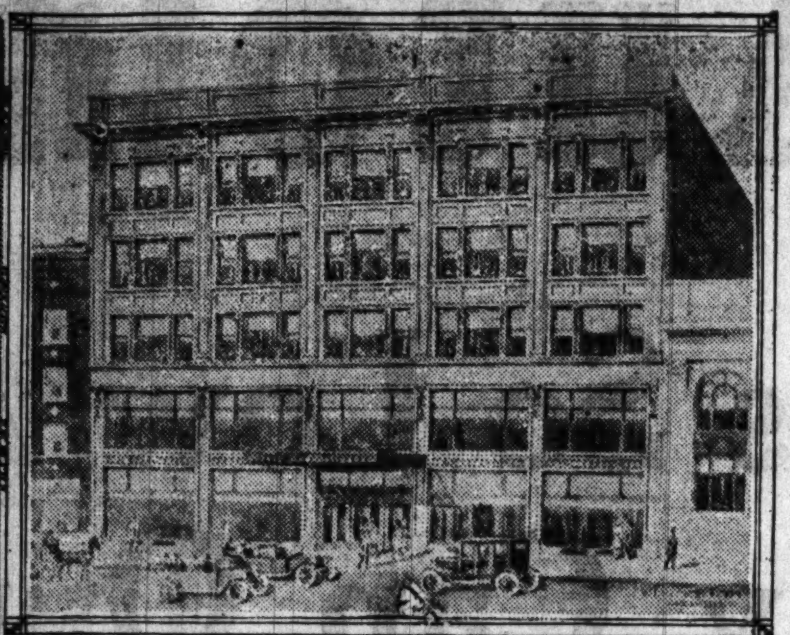
NEW EIGER BUILDING



BROADWAY DEPARTMENT STORE

The new Eiger building, Randolph and Dearborn streets, is to be fourteen stories, basement and subbasement, fireproof steel frame, and of highest type of construction. It will rest on caisson foundations and will have an exterior finish of full glazed white enamel brick and terra cotta. The work of razing the present five story building on the corner will begin May 1. The interior is so arranged that all the shops and offices will have outside light. The corridors and basement will be in marble and the woodwork in mahogany. The building, which is to be erected by Eiger Bros., will be in charge of E. F. Keebler & Co., who have already a number of leases under contract. Alfred S. Alschuler is the architect.

Work has begun on the five story fireproof mercantile building at 4722-28 Broadway, in the block between the Plymouth hotel and the Sheridan Trust and Savings Bank building. It fronts 95 feet on both Broadway and Racine avenue, is 119 feet on the south line and 76 feet on the north. It will cost about $150,000. It will be occupied by Loren, Miller & Co., a department store corporation, under a twenty years' lease, at an annual rent of $21,500.

$4,400,000 FOR CRANE PLANT

The price paid by the Pennsylvania and associated roads for the Crane company plant has finally been disclosed by the recording of the deed. According to the revenue stamps on the document the consideration was $4,400,000, thought to be the largest single transfer in the history of the city. The property, which lies in the district bounded by Twelfth street, Fifteenth place, Canal street, and Stewart avenue, was placed under contract over a year ago, but the final deal was not executed until April 19 of the present year.

SUBDIVIDER GETS PRAISE.

"People are sometimes inclined to laugh at the subdivider," says Construction News, "the man who sells vacant lots in outlying parts of the city to people of small means, but when they think of what he has accomplished, and that the reward for the pioneer should thus be the subject of ridicule, affairs have come to a pretty pass. The subdivider can lay claim to having built more cities, being one of the most useful agents of development that we know, and he should be highly esteemed and his memory revered. He has made life plain sailing to many people

REALTY BOARD TO HEAR OF NEW FIRE INSURANCE BILL.

The weekly luncheon of the Cook county board at the Hotel Sherman on Tuesday will be of special interest because of the address by W. P. ApMadoc, former member of the legislature, and chairman of the commission appointed four years ago to investigate and report on alleged abuses in connection with fire insurance in Illinois. The commission has prepared a bill which seeks to do away with existing abuses, as far as possible, and it will be outlined by Mr. ApMadoc. Cooperation and its manifold benefits will be discussed by Oliver L. Watson, Ralph G. Badeaux, C. T. A. Anderson, J. F. Hecht, and R. E. L. Brooks. W. H. Laclede will act as toastmaster.

HAMBURGER'S NEW MOVIE.

It is announced that Alfred Hamburger, said to be Chicago's largest moving picture theater owner, has purchased from Jones, Linick & Schaefer the Willard theater at the northeast corner of Calumet avenue and Fifty-first street. It has a seating capacity of 1,800 and is regarded as one of the best of the outlying theaters. It will be closed for about a week for necessary renewals and changes and will be opened May 1. Among the theaters operated by Mr. Hamburger are the Fine Arts and Ziegfeld on Michigan avenue, the Pine Grove on Sheridan road, Twentieth Century, Argmore, Pickford, Apollo, Langley, Hippodrome, Ellis, and the new Louise, now in course of construction.

REINBERG SELLS A TRACT.

Peter Reinberg, president of the county board, appears as the seller in an interesting transaction in vacant. He sold to Thomas J. Grady and Gustav Wallen a tract at the northwest corner of Devon and Sacramento avenues, extended, 505.8x1,328.42 feet, for an indicated consideration of $22,500. The purchasers money mortgage for $16,000.

LEASES IN LOOP DISTRICT TAKE LEAD IN RENTING

Business Throughout the City Makes Good Showing for the Week.

Coincident with the improvement in general business conditions there is reported a sharp improvement in the business renting situation in the down town district. Not that satisfactory conditions have been reached, but that a much better feeling prevails admits of little doubt. Last week a good showing was made, and an interesting feature was prominent part played in outlying business property, particularly in the Wilson avenue district where two particularly interesting leases were closed.

In the loop district E. F. Keebler & Co., report the closing of leases aggregating $215,000 in rentals. One comprised the four story and basement building at 310 South State street, which they leased for H. N. Rose, representing Dr. George S. Isham, to the Bedford Shirt company and others for five years from May 1 next, at a reported term rent of $75,000.

The building is 25x100 feet and adjoins on the south the M. L. Rothschild clothing store at the southwest corner of Jackson boulevard. It will be occupied as a saleroom for men's furnishing goods. This will give the Bedford Shirt company six stores in the loop.

Big Billiard Hall Planned.

The same brokers leased for the Star Theater company to Edward C. Corey, proprietor of the Grand billiard rooms, the second, third, and fourth floors in the building at 68 West Madison street for ten years from May 1 at a reported term rent of $60,000, to be occupied as a billiard room.

The lessee now operates a billiard room at 125 West Madison street, which he will vacate May 1 next. The Star Theater company recently leased the entire building at 68 West Madison street, through Keebler & Co. and W. D. Kerfoot & Co., for ten years at a reported term rent of $120,000.

The firm also leased for Werner & Ottman, haberdashers, to John Bakiois the L shaped store fronting both in Clark and Van Buren streets in the Yukon building at the southwest corner of the two streets named. The lease is for ten years from Aug. 1 for a reported term rent of $50,000 and is to be occupied for lunchroom purposes. It will give the lessee fourteen lunchrooms, besides a commissary, in the city.

The same brokers leased for Ben Roth to the Fonseca Cigar company the store at 66 West Randolph street, in the Union Hotel and Restaurant building, for ten years from May 1 at a reported term rent of $30,000. The premises will be occupied by a retail cigar store.

White & Tabor Active.

White & Tabobr report the closing of several recent leases in the wholesale boot and shoe district with reported aggregate rents of $180,000. They have leased for John S. Phipps and others the corner store, basement, and second floor of building formerly occupied by Strauss Bros. at the southwest corner of Monroe and Franklin streets, to Guthmann, Carpenter & Telling for a reported term rent of $115,000. The lessees have been located at Quincy and Franklin streets for twenty years. They will occupy the new quarters on the completion of the alterations in the building.

The same brokers have leased for the same owners in the building adjoining the corner building on the west, at 305-7 West Monroe street, the store and basement to Tucker & Hogan for a term rent of $26,000; the second oor to H. Brandt & Sons at $13,000; the third floor to Gans-Stevens Mercantile company for $12,000, and the fourth floort o H. B. Tucker Shoe company at $12,000.

Good North Side Leases.

The three stores at 1022-24 Wilson avenue, near Broadway, were leased by Alexander W. Hannah through Regelin, Jenson & Co. to the Village Inn cafeteria for a term of ten years from May 1, 1916, for a reported term rent of $75,000.

Extensive alternations are to be made by Mr. Hannah, comprising the addition of two stories and the extension of the building back to the alley. The lessee company has two branches in Chicago and four in St. Louis.

Another record breaking lease in this district covers the double store at 1120-22 Wilson avenue, just west of the Northwestern elevated terminal, which has been leased by Matilda Price to William J. Zeh and others, under the firm name of Grocers' Importing company, for ten years at a term rent of $48,000. The store is 30x75 feet, in a newly erected terra cotta and tile front building. The average rent is $400 a month, which is said to be a record for store rent in this district. Lamont & Clasen were the brokers also.

G. V. Cleary & Co. have rented for the United States Operating company to the Kellberg institute the sixth floor of the Brede building, 109 North Dearborn street, for ten years at a term rental of $40,000.

Speedway Gives Trust Deed.

Record was made of a trust deed given by the Speedway Park association to the Fort Dearborn Trust and Savings bank, trustee, to secure a loan of $300,000 in the form of a bond issue running three years at 6 per cent. It is secured by the 320 acres between Twelfth and Twenty-second streets, south of Maywood, comprising the speedway, work on which is in progress.

The Central Trust company is trustee in another loan of $60,000, five years at 6 per cent, to Sylvester P. Beers, secured by the property at the northwest corner of Michigan and Franklin streets, 75x100 feet, with brick warehouse improvements.

S. W. Straus is trustee in a loan of $50,000, six years at 6 per cent, to Alexander Bauer, secured by the leasehold interest in the 88x100 feet at the northeast corner of Huron and Franklin streets and the new brick warehouse building thereon.

Record was made of the loan by the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance company to Mercy hospital and Mercy Orphan Asylum of Chicago of $200,000, five years, at 5¼ per cent, secured by the property at the northeast corner of Twenty-sixth street and Prairie avenue, 298x235 feet.

Albert J. Brockman, a real estate operator in the North Ashland avenue district for twenty years, has opened a downtown office on the seventeenth floor of the Conway building, Clark and Washington streets, adjoining the new quarters of the Cook County real estate board.

An article by William E. Harmon on modern planning of outlying city districts appears on page 22 of this section.

NEW HIGH MARKS SET FOR BUSINESS SITES ON OUTSIDE

Evanston Leads in Flat Property Deals; $700 a Foot Paid in Argyle Street.

There was a good movement of outside business property, particularly on the north side, an interesting feature of which was the establishment of new high water value records in three instances. There was only a fair movement of flat property, the most important transaction being in Evanston, the latter also furnishing an interesting deal in vacant for subdivision purposes, purchase being by Benjamin Lowenmeyer, the north side subdivider.

Of much significance as indicating the sharp advance of values in certain parts of the north side was a transaction closed late in the week in which $700 a front foot was secured for property on Argyle street, adjoining the Argyle "L" station, needless to say a record figure. The lot, 25x125 feet, was sold by Ida M. Lindberg to George W. Niestedt for a reported $17,500. L. J. Kafka & Son were the brokers.

Big Price in Lincoln Avenue.

Another record breaker was the sale by Henry I. Ritter to Herman R. Misch of the property at 3216-18 Lincoln avenue for a reported consideration of $60,000. The lot fronts 50 feet with an average depth of about 100 feet and is improved with a two story frame building occupied for business purposes.

The sale is at the rate of $1,200 a front foot, said to be a record for Lincoln avenue. The property is opposite the new Woolworth store and is just north of Belmont avenue. The Lincoln building is on the corner and is said to represent an investment of about $500,000. The property just sold is leased for five years at an annual rent of $5,000. George J. Haberer & Co. were the brokers.

The Evanston flat deal was the sale of the Elmwood apartments, at the southwest corner of Main street and Elmwood avenue, by Charles N. Stevens, trustee, to Fred C. Ehman for a stated consideration of $119,000, subject to an incumbrance of $70,000.

Rental $15,000 a Year.

The lot is 200x125 feet and the building contains six five room and twenty-one four room apartments. It is said to have a gross annual rent of about $15,000. Mason & Smart were the brokers.

Ben Lowenmeyer's purchase comprised the block bounded by South boulevard, Cheney avenue, Michigan and Forest avenues, with 700 feet frontage on each of the latter two streets.

It was acquired from Martin Ryerson for a stated consideration of $63,000. It is entirely surrounded by high grade residences and apartment buildings. All the improvements are in, and Mr. Lowenmeyer will divide the lots into frontages of 33 and 50 feet, with a depth of 150 feet.

Grand Boulevard Flat Sold.

A notable transaction on Grand boulevard, involving the erection of a $200,000 apartment building, was closed late in the week. It covers the property at the northwest corner of Forty-sixth street, fronting 297 feet, with a depth of 150 feet, and was purchased by Le Roy F. Harris, representing the newly organized firm of Harris, Kusel & Co., from Alfred C. Cowles, trustee, and others, for a reported consideration of $45,000. It is proposed to improve at once with a series of high grade apartment buildings of four to seven rooms, to cost, as stated, about $200,000. Benjamin Rosenberg & Co. represented both parties to the transaction.

The 100x125 feet at the southeast corner of Devon and Magnolia avenues was sold for $20,000, or $200 a foot, said to be a new record for that locality. It was bought by Henry B. Burckhart, who plans to improve with a three story building. Lamont & Clasen were the brokers.

Record has been made of the transfer by Arthur W. Draper to Nathan L. Blackman of the property at the northeast corner of Cottage Grove avenue and Forty-fourth street, lot 75x125 feet, with store and flat improvements, for an indicated consideration of $62,500, subject to an incumbrance of $32,500.

John Hamilton, the builder, has sold to Louis Fine the property at the southeast corner of Halsted street and Fifty-fourth place, lot 75x125 feet, improved with a one story building containing ten stores, for an indicated consideration of $25,000, subject to an incumbrance of $16,000. Bach & Freis were the brokers.

WOMEN OF MARK

A Modern Portia

TO Miss Lucille Pugh, the criminal lawyer of New York, belongs the distinction of being the first of her sex to defend a man accused of murder. This honor Miss Pugh accepts with the same unassuming frankness that characterized her conduct in the defense of Leroy Poindexter, the negro, whom she saved from the electric chair.

Thanks to the skill with which Miss Pugh handled the case the first jury disagreed, and at the second trial she literally tore to pieces some of the most damaging evidence of the prosecution,—testimony that had been amassed by the District Attorney's staff. For thirty-three hours consecutively, without sleep or rest, this case occupied the attention of the second jury, which finally rendered a reduced verdict of manslaughter in the second degree.

Lucille Pugh

As soon as she was assigned to the case, Miss Pugh began to collect the evidence necessary to break down the overwhelming testimony against her client. This entailed visits absolutely unattended to some of the most notorious dens of the Underworld, notably in Hell's Kitchen, where gambling, drinking and vice are rampant, and there is small respect for the forces of law or order.

When trying her now famous case, Miss Pugh made a rememberable picture. Standing but an inch over five feet her auburn hair parted at the side and drawn tightly around her shapely head, her brown eyes glancing from the tense face of the accused negro to the jury of twelve white men, her right hand outstretched in an appealing manner toward them, her left indicating the prisoner, she subtly sought to force into the minds of her hearers the innocence of the man she was defending. One of the best known court officials, who has attended for the last twenty years all the notable criminal trials in New York, stated that in his opinion, her defense was the most capable he had ever heard.

To meet Miss Pugh in her own drawing room comes as a surprise, as it is hard to realize that the tastefully gowned, almost girlish woman has already established herself so firmly in her overcrowded profession.

Woman Contractor Wins Out

IT pays to be absorbed in one's work. Which explains, perhaps, why the great majority of women in the business world earn considerably less than a thousand dollars a year. Business is not to them a career, as it is to a man. There are brilliant exceptions, of course. Miss Alice M. Durkin New York's only woman contractor, is one of them. She has thrown herself, heart and soul, into the building trade, and in four years has made a quarter of a million dollars.

She started without the advantage of specialized training. Her father was supposed to be a wealthy man, and the accomplishments of polite society were the only ones she acquired. After his death, however, when she was eighteen years old, it was learned that his affairs were in a chaotic state. His estate was so burdened with debt that there was nothing left for her.

Miss Durkin faced the world as a self-supporting woman, and with characteristic energy she applied for work in all quarters and accepted the first position that was offered to her. It happened to be a clerkship in a contractor's office. Resolved to make the best of a bad bargain, she buckled down to work, and discovered to her surprise that instead of being bored she was becoming more interested each day.

She saw a great light. Her position thereafter became an apprenticeship, not a disagreeable means of earning her bread and butter. She was going to be a real contractor, just as soon as she had mastered the essential details. A gift for mathematics helped her from the start. She familiarized herself with the cost of building materials and labor, and was soon able to make a shrewd estimate on any job that came into the office. Her employers, observing this, were glad to confide more and more important matters to her care.

Yet it was eight years before she felt herself to be sufficiently experienced to make an independent venture. She then accepted a partnership in a new concern, and although mere men held the principal offices and took the credit, the big constructive work was immediately laid upon her shoulders.

Miss Durkin was aware of this, but she bided her time. When after a few months she had placed the company fairly on its feet, she took control and reorganized it under her own name. One of her former superintendents became her partner, and with him to attend to outside work she gave her whole attention to figuring on contracts and giving the master touch to all plans and specifications prepared in her office.

That was less than five years ago. Today Miss Alice M. Durkin is one of the most successful women of affairs in America. Her contracts aggregate hundreds of thousands of dollars every year. She gives employment to about seven hundred men and maintains a large suite of offices.

"A capacity for mastering details," is her own explanation of her success. It has been said that no woman really possesses such capacity to a high degree. But Miss Durkin ought to know. She can point in proof to that quarter of a million dollars of clear profits. There are not many male contractors who have been as well rewarded.

What a Policewoman Does

MISS EMILE GLORIEUX, police-woman of Minneapolis, Minn., has just completed the first year of her work. She operates under the direction of the Humane Society.

She makes the rounds of the dance halls of Minneapolis and sees that minors are not admitted and that no liquor is sold and that in other respects the places are conducted respectably. During her first six months as a cop she compelled the closing of five dance halls, the arrest and fining of eight dance hall managers and the rescue of seventeen girls.

Miss Glorieux has kept her eyes open for girls who are liable to go astray in a large city. By friendly counsel, by taking them home to dinner once in a while, and helping at other times when a little aid may turn a girl from one path to another, this policewoman has laid aside the dignity of the law and become a woman to a woman in the labor of salvation.

Immigration After the War

By Frederic C. Howe

Commissioner of Immigration at the Port of New York

THE European War has nearly suspended immigration. There were 992,573 aliens admitted into the United States for the year ending June 30, 1914, while for the eight months of the present immigration year from July 1 to March 1 a total of only 177,963 aliens have come. Immigration is wholly suspended from the belligerent nations; it comes only from Scandinavia, Italy, Greece, Spain and Great Britain.

What will happen after the war? Will America receive hundreds of thousands of people, shattered and weakened by the war, undermined by disease and exposure, and impoverished by the ravaging armies? Will even the German and the French, who have contributed but little to our alien population in recent years flee from future military conscription and oppressive taxes? Or will the vacuum created by the destruction of millions of able-bodied men provide a market for everyone's labor and through rising wages and the re-building of the country retain the population at home?

Opinions differ. It is probable that conflicting currents will be set in motion and that those who predict a greatly increased immigration will find their opinions confirmed, and that with the re-building of Europe the tide will be ultimately checked and may in fact be reversed.

Undoubtedly tens of thousands of women and children, widowed and orphaned by the war, will turn their faces toward America as an escape from sorrow and misery. Europe will want men, not women. Europe will have a surplus of millions of women for whom no provision can be made in the industrial and social order. Many of these have relatives or friends in America to whom they will turn for assistance. And most of the immigration to America is assisted, not by foreign governments, but by immigrants already in America. They send tickets, transportation and money to friends and relatives in the old country and upon their arrival care for them until they find employment. Probably seventy per cent of those who land on our shores are assisted in this way; many of them have "show money" temporarily loaned for inspection by the immigration officials.

IN addition to the women and children it is not improbable that we will receive a greatly increased immigration from Russia, Poland, Austria and the Balkans and southeast Europe. It is probable that many Jews will come from Galicia and Poland, whose land has been devastated and cities destroyed by the contending armies. Jewish organizations are generous in their assistance to members of their own race, and the atrocities of the war will undoubtedly lead to an outpouring of racial sympathy which will bring many members of this race to our shores. Other influences will bring aliens from the south and east of Europe. These countries are relatively badly organized. Their internal affairs are not as efficiently managed as they are in Germany, Scandinavia and England. There is little industry and relatively few cities. The able-bodied men have been taken from the farm and the village. The work is now being done by women. There will be nothing to go back to when the war is over, and this part of Europe, devastated by war and disease and overrun by contending armies, will undoubtedly contribute a larger portion to the immigration of the immediate future than it has in the immediate past.

Still other psychological and moral forces will stimulate men to migrate. Possibly 15,000,000 men have been taken from the soil and from the factory. They have been dislodged from their traditional pursuits. Their homes have been broken up; their family ties destroyed. For months they have been thrown on their own resources, living only with men and dependent as they never were before upon their own ingenuity and upon themselves. A roving, restless spirit will have been created. Men will be loath to return to the dull, barren, hopeless life of the great estates; to the low wages and long hours of the mine, the mill and the factory. They will have lost the habit of industry; they will have little taste for work. Many of them will not want to go back to their families from whom they have been so long divorced. Thousands of men, possibly hundreds of thousands, will turn to America, partly from hope, partly with a restless desire to continue a freer life than they had previously enjoyed. They will crave a continuation of the excitement under which they have lived at the front and in the trenches, an excitement not to be obtained at home.

THIS will apply to all nations, German, French and English. Undoubtedly we will have a great addition to our population from the soldier class.

These are some of the forces which will stimulate immigration. But against those weakened by disease or other physical defects the existing laws are reasonably adequate to protect us. For we now refuse to admit the sick, the infirm, those afflicted with contagious disease, imbeciles, and those likely to become a public charge—and the latter class is by far the largest—while the interpretation of the law is sufficiently elastic to protect the country from those who have no visible means of support and no friends able to guarantee them a livelihood.

On the other hand, other forces will tend to keep the immigrant at home; forces in many ways as strong as those which drive him into this country. Germany has carried State socialism further than any country in the world. She owns her railroads, telegraphs, many mines, forests, and hundreds of thousands of acres of agricultural lands. More than 3,000,000 men are constantly employed in the State service. All of the traditions of the country favor State socialism. And with her efficient methods, Germany will undoubtedly carry State socialism very much further. England, France, Austria and Russia will find it necessary to rebuild the State, to repair the ravages of war, to erect mills and factories, and regain the lost trade which the war has destroyed.

ALL these countries will endeavor to keep their able-bodied at home. They will enact social legislation, enter upon schemes of State activity to provide employment and save the country from further impairment in the struggle for industrial and commercial place, which will be immediately substituted for the warfare of arms. The vacuum caused by the loss of millions of men will bring about an increase in wages. Automatically men will be kept at home by the opportunities which there prevail. It may be that wages will rise so high that able-bodied immigration will entirely cease. It is possible that the aliens already in this country may be lured back in large numbers to their native lands. Under ordinary circumstances something like 300,000 immigrants leave America every year to return, either temporarily or permanently, to the country of their birth. They come to America to accumulate a little competence with which they acquire a homestead or a little business in their native village. And the lure of high wages and better industrial conditions may accelerate this movement and lure from America hundreds of thousands of those dissatisfied with what they have found in this country to re-establish themselves in their own homes. Undoubtedly, the process of nation building will check emigration, especially from Germany and England, which countries are far better organized politically and industrially than the other nations of Europe.

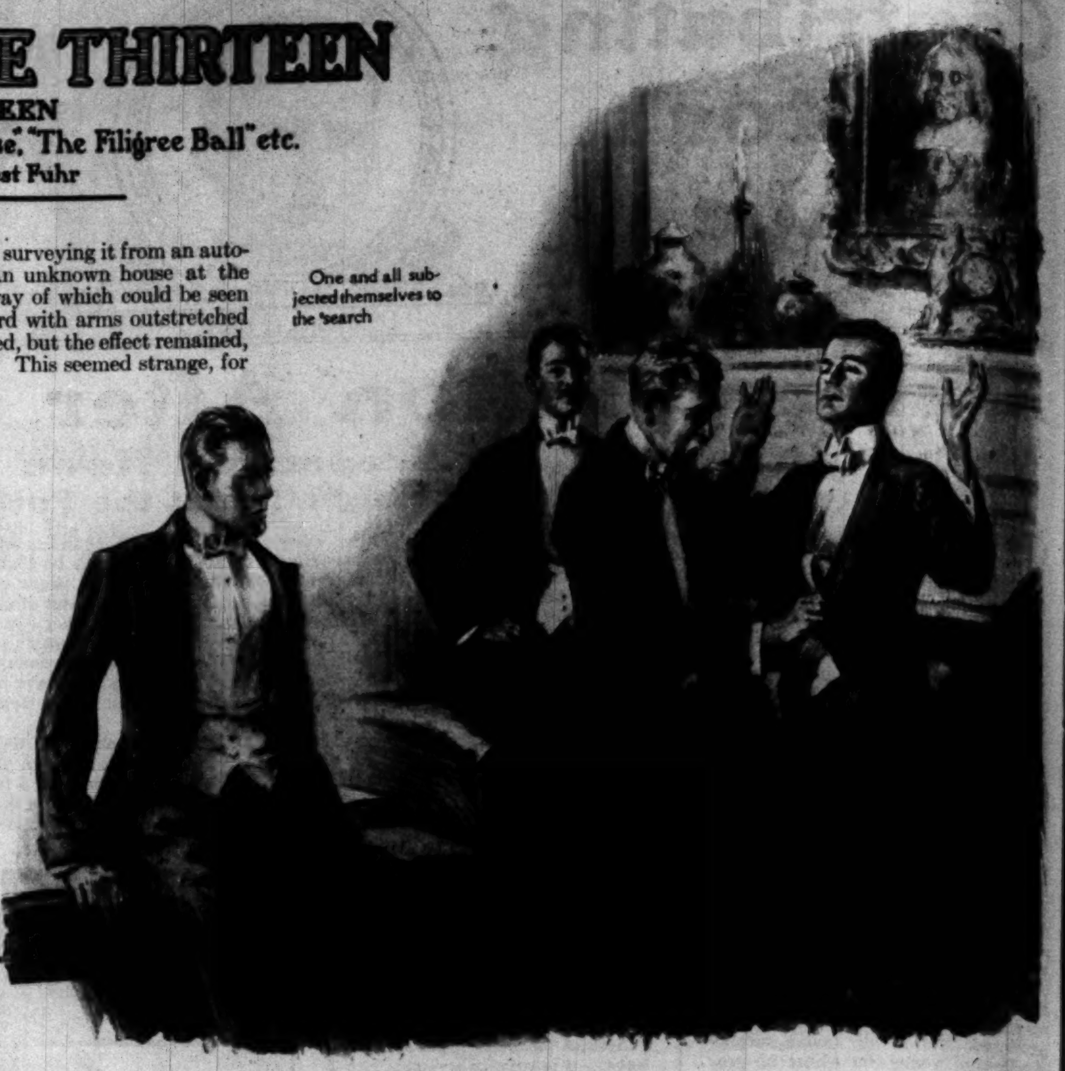
THE scene invited alarm,—that is, for a young girl surveying it from an automobile sometime after the stroke of midnight. An unknown house at the end of a heavily shaded walk, in the open doorway of which could be seen the silhouette of a woman leaning eagerly forward with arms outstretched in an appeal for help! It vanished while she looked, but the effect remained, holding her to her seat for one startled moment. This seemed strange, for she had anticipated adventure. One is not summoned from a private ball to ride a dozen miles into the country on an errand of investigation, without some expectation of encountering the mysterious and the tragic. But Violet Strange was young, and for the instant in which that door stood open, with only the memory of that expectant figure to disturb the faintly lit vista of the hall beyond, she felt that grip upon the throat which comes from an indefinable fear which no words can explain and no plummet sound.



One and all subjected themselves to the search

But this soon passed. With the setting of her foot to ground, conditions changed and her emotions took on a more normal character. She could now see the figure of a man in the place held by the vanished woman, and he was not only one she knew, but one with whom she was familiar,—a friend whose very presence gave her courage. With this recognition, came a better understanding of the situation, and it was with a beaming eye and unclouded features that she tripped up the walk to meet the expectant figure and outstretched hand of Roger Upham — a former client.

"You here!" she exclaimed, as he drew her into the hall.

He at once launched forth into explanations mingled with apologies for the presumption he had shown in putting her to this inconvenience. There was trouble in the house—great trouble. Something had occurred for which an explanation must be found before morning, or the happiness and honor of more than one person now under this unhappy roof would be wrecked. He knew it was late—that she had been obliged to take a long and dreary ride alone, but her success with the problem which had once come near wrecking his own life, had emboldened him to telephone to the office and ——"But you are in ball-dress," he cried in amazement. "Did you think——"

"I came from a ball. Word reached me between the dances. I did not go home. I had been bidden to hurry."

He looked his appreciation, but when he spoke it was to say:

"This is the situation. Miss Digby——"

"The lady who is to be married tomorrow?"

"Who hopes to be married tomorrow."

"How, hopes?"

"Who will be married tomorrow, if a certain article lost in this house tonight can be found before any of the persons who have been dining here leave for their homes."

Violet uttered an exclamation.

"Then, Mr. Cornell," she began——

"Mr. Cornell has our utmost confidence," Roger hastened to interpose. "But the article missing is one which he might reasonably desire to possess and which he alone of all present had the opportunity of securing. You can therefore see why he, with his pride—the pride of a man not rich, engaged to marry a woman who is, should declare that unless his innocence is established before daybreak, the doors of St. Bartholomew will remain shut tomorrow."

"But the article lost—what is it?"

Violet Strange arrived at midnight

"Miss Digby will give you the particulars. She is waiting to receive you," he added with a gesture towards a half open door at their right.

Violet glanced that way, then cast her looks up and down the hall in which they stood.

"Do you know that you have not told me in whose house I am? Not hers, I know. She lives in the city."

"And you are twelve miles from Harlem. Miss Strange, you are in the Van Broecklyn mansion, famous enough you will acknowledge. Have you never been here before?"

"I have been by here, but I recognized nothing in the dark. What an exciting place for an investigation!"

"And Mr. Van Broecklyn? Have you never met him?"

"Once, when a child. He frightened me then."

"And may frighten you now; though I doubt it. Time has mellowed him. Besides, I have prepared him for what might otherwise occasion him some astonishment. Naturally he would not look for just the sort of lady investigator I am about to introduce to him."

She smiled. Violet Strange was a very charming young woman, as well as a keen prober of odd mysteries.

The meeting between herself and Miss Digby was a sympathetic one. After the first inevitable shock which the latter felt at the sight of the beauty and fashionable appearance of the mysterious little being who was to solve her difficulties, her glance which, under other circumstances, might have lingered unduly upon the piquant features and exquisite dressing of the fairy-like figure before her, passed at once to Violet's eyes. In their steady depths beamed an intelligence quite at odds with the coquettish dimples which so often misled the casual observer in his estimation of a character singularly subtle and well-poised.

As for the impression she herself made upon Violet, it was the same she made upon everyone. No one could look long at Florence Digby and not recognize the loftiness of her spirit and the generous nature of her impulses.

Meantime, for all her interest in the case in hand, Violet could not help casting a hurried look about her, in gratification of the curiosity incited by her entrance into a house signalized from its foundation by such a series of tragic events. The result was disappointing. The walls were plain, the furniture simple. Nothing suggestive in either, unless it was the fact that nothing was new, nothing modern. As it looked in the days of Burr and Hamilton so it looked today, even to the rather startling detail of candles which did duty on every side in place of gas.

As Violet recalled the reason for this, the fascination of the past seized upon her imagination. There was no knowing where this might have carried her, had not the feverish gleam in Miss Digby's eyes warned her that the present held its own excitement. Instantly, she was all attention and listening to that lady's disclosures.

They were brief and to the following effect:

The dinner which had brought some half dozen people together in this house, had been given in celebration of her impending marriage. But it was also in a way meant as a compliment to one of the other guests, a Mr. Spielhagen who, during the week, had succeeded in demonstrating to a few experts the value of a discovery he had made which would transform a great industry.

IN speaking of this discovery, Miss Digby did not go into particulars, the whole matter being far beyond her understanding; but in stating its value she openly acknowledged that it was in the line of Mr. Cornell's own work, and one which involved calculations and a formula which, if prematurely disclosed, would invalidate the contract Mr. Spielhagen hoped to make, and thus destroy his present hopes.

Of this formula but two copies existed. One was locked up in a safe deposit vault in Boston, the other he had brought into the house on his person, and it was the latter which was now missing, it having been abstracted during the evening from a manuscript of sixteen or more sheets, under circumstances which she would now endeavor to relate.

Mr. Van Broecklyn, their host, had in his melancholy life but one interest which could be called at all absorbing. This was for explosives. As a consequence, much of the talk at the dinner-table had been on Mr. Spielhagen's discovery, and the possible changes it might introduce into this especial industry. As these, worked out from a formula kept secret from the trade, could not but affect greatly Mr. Cornell's interests, she found herself listening intently, when Mr. Van Broecklyn, with an apology for his interference, ventured to remark that if Mr. Spielhagen had made a valuable discovery in this line, so had he, and one which he had substantiated by many experiments. It was not a marketable one, such as Mr. Spielhagen's was, but in his work upon the same, and in the tests which he had been led to make, he had discovered certain instances he would gladly name, which demanded exceptional procedure to be successful. If Mr. Spielhagen's method did not only allow for these exceptions, but make suitable provision for them, then Mr. Spielhagen's method would fail more times than it would succeed. Did it so allow and so provide?

It would relieve him greatly to learn that it did.

The answer came quickly. Yes it did. But later and after some further conversation, Mr. Spielhagen's confidence seemed to wane, and before they left the dinner-table, he openly declared his intention of looking over his manuscript again that very night, in order to be sure that the formula therein contained duly covered all the exceptions mentioned by Mr. Van Broecklyn.

If Mr. Cornell's countenance showed any change at this moment, she for one had not noticed it; but the bitterness with which he remarked upon the other's good fortune in having discovered this formula, of whose entire success he had no doubt, was apparent to everybody, and naturally gave point to the circumstances which a short time afterward associated him with the disappearance of the same.

The ladies (there were two others besides herself) having withdrawn in a body to the music-room, the gentlemen all proceeded to Mr. Van Broecklyn's especial room to smoke. Here, conversation, loosed from the one topic which had hitherto engrossed it, was proceeding briskly, when Mr. Spielhagen, with a nervous gesture, impulsively looked about him and said:

"I cannot rest till I have run through my thesis again. Where can I find a quiet spot? I won't be long; I read very rapidly."

It was for Mr. Van Broecklyn to answer, but no word coming from him, every eye turned his way, only to find him sunk in one of those fits of abstraction so well known to his friends, and from which no one who has this strange man's peace of mind at heart, ever presumes to rouse him.

What was to be done? These moods of their singular host sometimes lasted half an hour, and Mr. Spielhagen had not the appearance of a man of patience. Indeed he presently gave proof of the great uneasiness he was laboring under, for noticing a door standing ajar on the other side of the room, he remarked to those around him:

"A den! and lighted! Do you see any objection to my shutting myself in there for a few minutes?"

No one venturing to reply, he rose and giving a slight push to the door, disclosed a small room exquisitely panelled and brightly lighted, but without one article of furniture in it, not even a chair.

"The very place," quoth Mr. Spielhagen, and lifting a light cane-bottomed chair from the many standing about, he carried it inside and shut the door behind him.

Several minutes passed during which the man who had served at table entered with a tray on which were several small glasses evidently containing some choice liqueur. Finding his master fixed in one of his strange moods, he sat the tray down and, pointing to one of the glasses, said:

"That is for Mr. Van Broecklyn. It contains his usual quieting powder." And urging the gentlemen to help themselves, he quietly left the room.

Mr. Upham lifted the glass nearest him, and Mr. Cornell seemed about to do the same when he suddenly reached forward and catching up one further off, started for the room in which Mr. Spielhagen had so deliberately secluded himself.

WHY he did all this—why, above all things, he should reach across the tray for a glass instead of taking the one under his hand, he can no more explain than why he has followed many another unhappy impulse. Nor did he understand the nervous start given by Mr. Spielhagen at his entrance, or the stare with which that gentleman took the glass from his hand and mechanically drank its contents, till he saw how his hand had stretched itself across the sheet of paper he was reading, in an open attempt to hide the lines visible between his fingers. Then indeed the intruder flushed and withdrew in great embarrassment, fully conscious of his indiscretion but not deeply disturbed till Mr. Van Broecklyn, suddenly arousing and glancing down at the tray placed very near his hand, remarked in some surprise: "Dobbs seems to have forgotten me." Then indeed, the unfortunate Mr. Cornell realized what he had done. It was the glass intended for his host which he had caught up and carried into the other room—the glass which he had been told contained a drug. Of what a folly he had been guilty, and how tame would be any effort at excuse!

Attempting none, he rose and with a hurried glance at Mr. Upham, who flushed in sympathy at his distress, he crossed to the door he had so lately closed upon Mr. Spielhagen. But feeling his shoulder touched as his hand pressed the knob, he turned to meet the eye of Mr. Van Broecklyn fixed on his with an expression which utterly confounded him.

"Where are you going?" that gentleman asked.

The questioning tone, the severe look, expressive at once of displeasure and astonishment, were most disconcerting, but Mr. Cornell managed to stammer forth:

"Mr. Spielhagen is in here consulting his thesis. When your man brought in the cordial, I was awkward enough to catch up your glass and carry it in to Mr. Spielhagen. He drank it and I—I am anxious to see if it did him any harm."

As he uttered the last word he felt Mr. Van Broecklyn's hand slip from his shoulder, but no word accompanied the action, nor did his host make the least move to follow him into the room. (Continued on page 423)

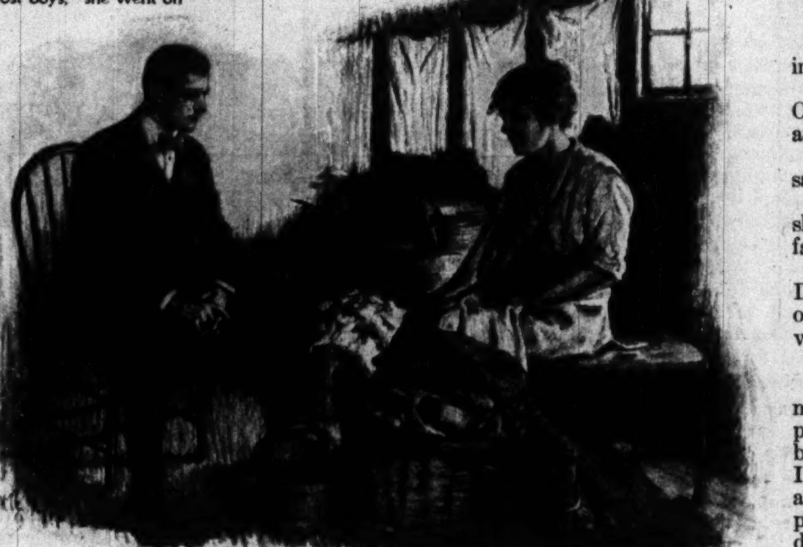
THE MYSTERIOUS MRS. OSGOOD

BY

BURTON KLINE

Illustration

By Monte Crews



"You see, my Edward is different from most boys," she went on

I HAD gone to R—— to superintend the building of a school that we had designed. It is easy to understand why that little city grows so rapidly. No one who goes there can leave without reluctance the cozy and contented air of the place, its magnificent sweep of Pennsylvania farmland, the winding Schuylkill River that girds it like a moat, and the two high hills outside the town beneath whose generous height all this beauty is spread like a Turner landscape. R—— is filled both with coin and with kindness. I had not been two days at the W—— Club when Richard Medway almost forcibly made me a guest in his house for the remainder of my stay.

Nevertheless, in my two months spent among those charming people, the notable experience was my meeting with Mrs. Osgood.

I think it was at the Medways' house that I first heard her name mentioned. Little 'Gene, the elder child, had achieved some difficult piece of unselfishness—the surrender of some inordinate apple to a younger brother—which her mother recounted in pride at dinner one evening. And the father's only comment was:

"Hm! Sounds like Mrs. Osgood."

Though I wondered at the moment who Mrs. Osgood might be, the lady might have left my mind, perhaps for good, but that I heard mention of her name soon again, and then again. She seemed to have a remarkable circle of acquaintances, high and low, and by all of them was held in the same peculiar esteem. No sooner had I forgotten her name than some one, somewhere, brought it back to mind. And always in an agreeable tone of deference. The second time I heard of Mrs. Osgood was, of all places, it seemed to me, at a merry party of young people.

"Why can't you go with me to see Sothern!" I heard one young fellow demand of the very prettiest girl. And evenings at the theatre in neighboring Philadelphia I could see were pleasures not lightly foregone in R——.

"My little sewing circle meets that evening," the young lady replied, in all finality.

And then came the comment that, being the second reference to this mysterious personage, stayed a little longer in my memory.

"Hm!" he replied, somewhat impatiently, "more self-denial, I see. You must be trying to copy Mrs. Osgood!"

And again I wondered who and what this Mrs. Osgood might be. Very evidently a woman of marked force of character, a standard of judgment to the old, a pattern of fidelity that was rather trying to the young. To the young man at the party her name was at least a pleasant substitute for swearing. It was remarkable, at any rate, the extent to which this woman had impressed herself upon the community.

After that I heard more frequent mention of Mrs. Osgood, or so it seemed to me—possibly because I was looking for it then.

At last one morning at the Medways' breakfast-table I asked, "Who, in heaven's name, is this Mrs. Osgood? or is she merely a figure of speech?"

"Mrs. Osgood?" laughed my hostess. "No; she's very much alive, the good soul. I am glad to see her reputation spread. But you shall see her and judge for yourself. She comes to our house on Monday."

"To dinner?" I ventured.

"Well—hardly to dinner," replied Mrs. Medway, "though I don't know why she shouldn't. But she sometimes gets here in time for breakfast."

"For breakfast? She's an old friend, then? A neighbor?"

"She does our washing," was the somewhat surprising response. I was, indeed, bewildered.

"Well, more than ever, who is Mrs. Osgood!" said I. "And how did she arrive at this tremendous vogue?"

"Mainly by being herself," my hostess said.

"Hm! I hope, for her own good, that she doesn't hear all that is said in her favor!"

"Her slight deafness helps her. . . . Deafness would help a good many more of us, I fancy," Mrs. Medway said—a very shrewd woman herself.

"Thanks!" said I, and we laughed.

And so, on the following Monday morning, I saw Mrs. Osgood. We passed each other on the front walk, both hurriedly on our way to work, and I had time for only a brief—and disappointing—glimpse. She was a rather plain, middle-aged woman, shabbily dressed, much bent from toil, and without any outward distinction. I was scarcely sure that I had seen the right and real Mrs. Osgood.

But in time I met her face to face. On a later occasion the Medways contrived for me to be alone with her in the laundry—I was introduced as a young architect engaged to plan some alterations.

"But manage to inquire about her son," Mrs. Medway had cautioned me.

Mrs. Osgood had unmistakable good sense. She offered excellent suggestions for the rearrangement of the tubs. And at length, when it was politic, I asked her about herself. She was nearly fifty, and for fourteen years she had scrubbed at the tub. In spite of this there was a vein of humor left in her still, and shrewd observations too. And so, finally, I ventured upon the vital question.

"And have you any children, Mrs. Osgood?"

"I have one son."

"And how is he?"

"He's been doing very well this past week—better than ever. He's coming right along," she replied. "And have you any children of your own?"

I told her I was not married.

"Ah, I hope you won't have to go through life without a boy of your own."

I assured her my hope was the same.

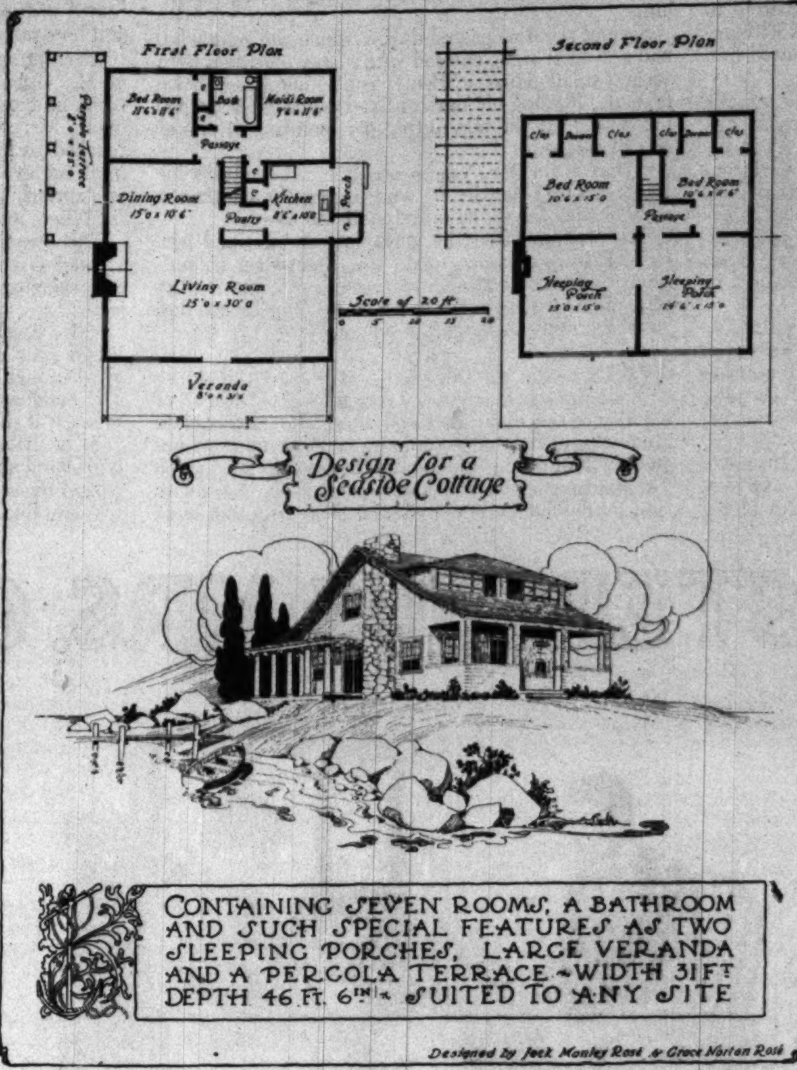
"And I hope yours gives you no more trouble than mine—none of the trouble that falls to so many parents. As for me," Mrs. (Continued on page 422)

The · PRACTICAL · SUMMER · HOME

Described by Jack Manley Rosé and Grace Norton Rosé

YOU won't go to Europe this summer, nor probably for some seasons to come. But where to go and how to live during those months that are so irksome in town and so restorative in the country or by the sea, is still an open question for many. Why not invest in a summer home, a sort of comfortablized camp, or a glorified bungalow, or a seaside cottage; one that won't need a corps of servants to run it, and yet one that comprises the fundamental comforts?

If you long for the sea when the city pavements are aglare with heat and the foliage of the parks is dulled with dust, you perhaps know of some sandy spit or breezy headland where the water looks bluer to you than anywhere else in the world. Here there is no question of breathless nights under the still faint stars so immeasurably distant from the blaze of light that gilds the humid streets. Here there are no gasping days of searching for the hot gritty stirring of air that is commonly called a breeze, and that brings with it all the sickening odors of a sweltering city. You will have air and wind, cool, strong, and bracing, be it the salty tang of a dripping sea fog, or the crystal clearness that is like a long cool drink to a dry dusty throat. You know the site you want, just the shade of that grey green beach grass against the dear familiar sky, the rare color of the shallows and the depths; stretches of wonderful blues, clear to the horizon where the big ships go by. Then there is that bit of warm sandy shore, where the kiddies play all day, their little rompers well tucked up, their shrill, cheerful voices announcing a new wonder found.



Design for a Seaside Cottage

CONTAINING SEVEN ROOMS, A BATHROOM AND SUCH SPECIAL FEATURES AS TWO SLEEPING PORCHES, LARGE VERANDA AND A PERGOLA TERRACE — WIDTH 31 FT. DEPTH 46 FT. 6 IN. — SUITED TO ANY SITE

Designed by Jack Manley Rosé & Grace Norton Rosé

INDEED, you may well love the comfort of a couch hammock on a sheltered porch, the lazy idle afternoon fraught with all the soothing scents and sounds of the sea and the shore; but the freshening breeze will call to you in time when the city languor has worn off, and you will only want a habitation to shelter you when nature frowns awhile.

Surely you like to sleep out in the open, and you rather fancy that even a hard nor'easter can't drive you into a room that is all walls with little openings, when you have grown accustomed to the wide open-sided sleeping porch. You like, too, simple housekeeping arrangements, free from drudgery as well as pretense, and doubtless you are fond of a big spacious living room with many windows and a fireplace where you can watch the magnificent glory of a sea storm from the cozy shelter of your driftwood fire.

You will find all these little arrangements in this design of a shingled seaside cottage, and besides, compact but spacious sleeping quarters, a paved pergola terrace so inviting on the sunny cool mornings of the late summer, and so alluring on the midsummer nights of glassy calm, a wide sheltered veranda and compact service quarters. If a cellar is deemed necessary there is a space provided for cellar stairs under the one small flight leading from the back passage to the two bedrooms and sleeping porches above.

With such commodious sleeping quarters you could accommodate quite a large family. The closet room will appeal to the feminine mind surely, and the simplicity of construction to the practical mind who sees cost first of all. You will notice that there is an actual dining room but so little separated from the living room as to be practically a part of it in space and yet enough defined to be entitled to the dignity of a room itself.

IN exterior treatment what could be nicer than the silvery sheen of weathered shingles and the varicolored greys of the field stone, with possibly cream white trim about the casement windows and on the pergola?

If the clean green hills and their purple distances have the greater charm for you, if placid deep-shadowed pools and purling streams beckon to you, and the fragrant woods spread a sunflecked pathway for your lagging feet, you will want to build on the upper country slopes or in the mountains. And it is quite possible that you have already made up your mind just where.

There is a mystery in the varied woods, a delight in their seclusion that cannot be gainsaid. You have doubtless been led to murmur some time in your life, "When I build, here is where my house shall stand." If you are a lover of wood craft and a student of nature there is no better way of learning the life of the forest than by living on the edge of it. Even if to you, Nature's call means no more than just shade and moss and rocks as a setting for a house, you cannot fail to see the advantages of a one-storied camp such as is pictured below.

It is absolutely simple, but comprises all the features necessary for a summer home in the woods. With this camp your vacation for many years may be made comfortable by a very small outlay of money, not to exceed six hundred dollars. It would be a real investment along many lines. A bit of land, and this substantial practical start for a summer house would be laying the foundation for many years of health and enjoyment.

Year by year, as improvements suggested themselves, this building could be added to and embellished with very little expenditure. If one were clever with tools one might make all sorts of attractive additions to the original camp. You could add a veranda here, and there a bit of pergola; a screened porch, an extra room, an ornamental doorway, a bay window, a stone chimney, or only trellises for flowering vines to clamber on.

MANY a fascinating cottage has grown from far less pretentious a beginning. Taking the building as it is, augmented by tents it would create the ideal camp for an average family or a party of friends. There is no limit to its possibilities, if one can see them.

Ideal especially for the small family is the little cottage pictured also on this page, be it built either at the sea or in the hills, or on a suburban site. It is compact and cozy, admirably suited to all the year living as well as for summer occupancy. The roomy porch gives it an unusual touch. The steep-pitched roof coming down to the first story is always an attractive feature. It can be so inexpensively built and yet present so good an appearance withal, that its advantages are readily apparent. A liberal outlay should not exceed a thousand dollars.

Homelike it undoubtedly is, and suggestive of a comfort well adapted to moderate means; a practical summer home, or one for every month in the year. It presents very few problems of construction, and is primarily what it seems, a small, inexpensive cottage. There is no question of camping out in a house of this description.

While all of these three designs shown are solutions of the practical summer home question, each, with its separate characteristics solves the problem in quite a different fashion.

There is the seaside cottage, quite sizable for a cottage by the way, with its really large living room, and ample bedrooms and sleeping porches. Quite at variance to this is the little camp with only the necessities provided for. A summer home that is typical of the simple outdoor life that so many of us love to live. It acts as a shelter on cold and stormy days, and a cozy retreat on chilly nights. Nature has her moods even in her forests and hills, and there are times when even the most enthusiastic and seasoned camper longs for dryer and warmer spot than a 9 by 12 foot tent offers.

The third design strikes a medium between the luxury of the one and the spartan simplicity of the other, and a happy medium in price as well.

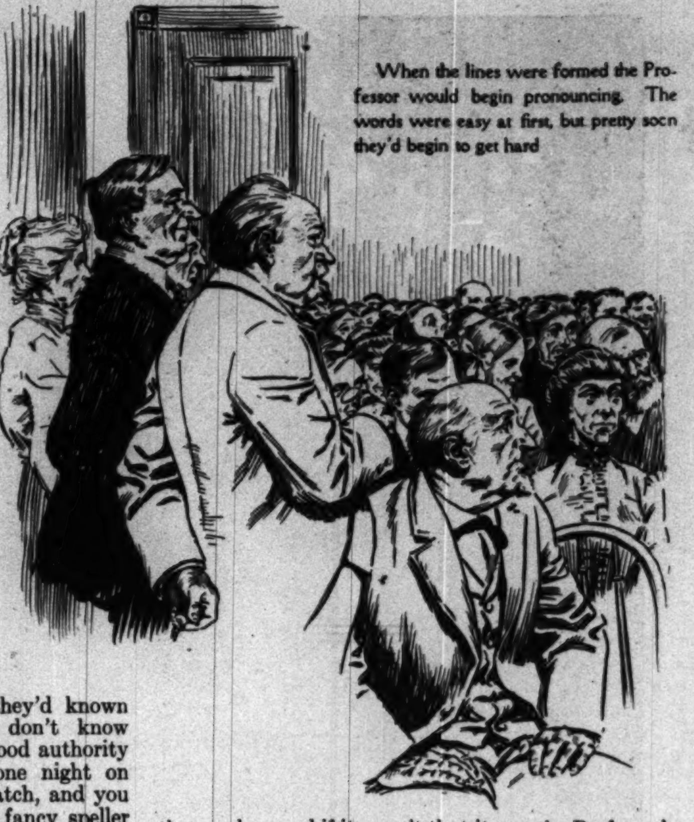
BACKLOG DAYS—THE SPELLING BEE

SEEN THROUGH FUNNY GLASSES

BY HOMER CROY

Illustrations by Rodney Thomson



When the lines were formed the Professor would begin pronouncing. The words were easy at first, but pretty socn they'd begin to get hard

THEY say that spelling schools are going out of fashion, but I don't see why they should: you couldn't find anything that was more fun than a spelling school, now could you? Land of goodness, it took weeks of preparation; you had to study like a towhead or you'd miss cache, a hiding place. Do you remember how they pronounced that?—as if it were money: cash. Then there was phthisis which is pronounced as if the first two letters weren't there, and there was chaoutchouc, a kind of india-rubber, pronounced koo-chook. It must have taken Webster a long time to find them all. You can't tell me any different—he just put them in his book to catch people. Nowadays instead of studying and exercising their brains, people go to a moving picture show.

Pretty near every bit of business in the whole town stopped when they were getting ready for a spelling match. You'd have to go into three or four stores to find a checker game going on—that's how hard everybody was studying.

And the prizes were worth studying for. Think of the first prize being a gold watch. Yes, sir, a real gold watch—unless you carried it in your pocket with sulphur matches. The second prize, offered by the Main Street Pavilion and Harness Emporium (that's what Arch Purdy called his harness shop), was a horseblanket. Usually somebody who worked in the post office got it—some person who hadn't owned a horse since Esther Cleveland was born in the White House.

Old Mr. Greensfelder always gave the third prize—a sack of flour—and whoever won it had to go down to his store and carry it away. That was lots of fun; you know how hard a sack of flour is to carry with nothing but its two little mice ears to hold to.

Harvey Clark and Judge Slingerland were to choose up. Harvey was President of the First National Bank, that was why. He was as big as a quilting frame and had a ponderous way of saying that it looked like rain, but he was awfully good about giving you calendars Christmas time. One year the bank calendar would have a cow and a calf on it, and next year it would be a Norway fiord sunset; then the year following the cow and the calf would be back.

Judge Slingerland was a mighty important man. You will remember, he was the only man in town who wore a cutaway coat with a handkerchief in its tail. The Judge always went after the mail himself and leaning on the wall desk read it carefully, never throwing a printed advertisement on the floor until he had absorbed every line of it. The letters that had his name struck in, he read a lot more carefully than the ones that began "Dear Sir." It's a lot more satisfying to get a letter that says "Dear Mr. Slingerland," even if it is in different type from the body of the letter, than one that opens "Dear Friend."

DO you remember how exciting things got a few days before the match? Of course—you couldn't forget those big days. Your town just throbbed with suspense. An outsider coming through wouldn't know how exciting things were, how the whole town was just seething underneath, but if he had lived there a while and had seen Mat Klop sitting on his Lightning Xpress wagon poring over a spelling book when there was freight at the depot, and if he had seen Asa Broyles go past the Owl Drug Store without stopping—and when the gang in it was talking politics, too—he'd have known how exciting things were then. A drummer could get halfway down town from the station without anybody seeing him and hardly anyone went down to meet the trains—when there was a spelling match on.

Some people kind of turn up their noses at spelling matches these days, but if you ever noticed they are the very ones who spell sugar with an h. They are the kind of people who send a letter with a rubber stamp at the bottom that says, "Dictated but not read." Doesn't a casual letter like that always make you mad? It's like a fellow inviting you over to spend the evening and leaving a note saying that he finds it inconvenient to be at home but that you'll find apples on the centretable.

Gracious, it was a long time till the spelling match. It just seemed that you couldn't wait. Everybody was studying and if you'd see a book sticking out of a fellow's pocket, you'd know that it was blue-backed. The lawyers would sit around in their offices with their feet on the window sill, the book propped on their knees studying, and Mr. Chamberlain, the jeweler, would take the thimble with the glass bottom off and rest his eye by studying Webster.

You'd just wonder and wonder who'd win the prize—the gold watch that was a dandy watch—unless you carried matches in your pocket. But say, did you know all—everything—that was going on? Did you know what was going on in the back part of the Owl Drug Store? Yes, sir, they were. . . . I know what I am talking about. Lots of other people didn't believe it either. They were mighty smooth about it, but it's a fact. Real money, too. A lot of people would have been shocked if they'd known about it . . . but what people don't know won't hurt them. I got it on pretty good authority that Tel Hardwick bet ten dollars one night on Azelia Withers winning the spelling match, and you know yourself that Azelia wasn't any fancy speller—she could handle the long words, all right, but when it came to the short, catchy words, she wasn't much.

Land, but it did seem a long time until the night. Say, wasn't the I. O. O. F. Hall fixed up, though? You'd thought the President was going to speak there. They had bunting clear across one end and at the other there were two flags over George Washington Crossing the Delaware. One of the flags was backward, but you couldn't tell it a little ways back.

AT one end of the hall was a blackboard where Professor Palmer taught writing Tuesdays and Friday nights. Professor Palmer had big ears and tight fitting pants and could flourish mighty fine birds. When he was to make a bird he would erase the board carefully, button up his coat and get his arm going as if he were winding a clock, then all of a sudden the chalk would strike the board and pretty soon there would be a dove winging through the air carrying a banner with E Pluribus Unum on it. Do you remember what they told on Arch Purdy? That good one? Don't you remember it? Why, they said he was showing a friend through the hall one day and the friend wanted to know what the words were for and Arch said they were the bird's scientific name.

There were some mighty good writers turned out of that school. If they had more writing schools today so many letters wouldn't go to Washington.

So many people these days are suffering from the delusion that they have to write an outrageous hand to show that they are somebody. The more their writing looks as if someone had been trying to scratch the soot off the inside of a stove lid the better pleased they are. If Horace Greeley had written a better hand half the clerks in the Dead Letter Office could have been let go.

That night the Professor would spread himself. Instead of having a bird on the board, he would have a deer with enough horns to hold every hat in the hall.

Standing in the middle of the floor, with the hall jammed and packed as if Bryan were speaking, Professor Palmer would shake one leg as if his trousers didn't fit exactly right and say, "The two opposing captains will now come forward and take their respective places."

Putting his finger between the leaves he would hold up the spelling book. I tell you it was an exciting minute when the two captains were ready to guess. Do you remember how you'd lean over and try to figure out where the Professor's finger was. There were 144 pages in Webster—everybody knew that—and his finger was a little more than halfway, so 80 would come pretty near catching it.

Harvey Clark would draw down his thick, heavy eyebrows with the hairs shooting out in all directions as if he would see right through the book to the exact page, and ponderously say "Sixty." He had a convincing way of saying that—as if that should be the number, and if it wasn't that it was the Professor's fault.

The professor would face Judge Slingerland. Reaching into his pocket the Judge would take out his glasses and adjust them carefully as if they would help him in his decision. Bending forward he would screw his hands into the small of his cutaway coat and say, "Eighty."

There would be a shaking of heads—he had guessed too high.

The Professor would flip open the book and look at the page while the audience held its breath. As Arch Purdy would say, "The fallin' of a pin would sound like droppin' a keg of nails during the Wednesday evening hour of meditation and prayer."

It would seem that the Professor would never get through looking. "The number is—" he would begin, looking over the audience and from one captain to the other, till you'd think that would never get through, "I have the pleasure of informing you—" it would never do to say the number right out—"that the number has been guessed by neither of the two gentlemen. The number on which I find my thumb is seventy-two. Judge Slingerland gets the first choice."

An outsider wouldn't have known that the Judge was pleased, but you could tell. You could tell it by the way he worked his hands in the back of his coat faster than ever. Judge Slingerland would look all over the hall as if trying to decide on the person he wanted when he had known for three weeks who he would choose if he came nearest the number.

It was a great honor to be the first one chosen, I tell you that. It was almost as much honor as being the winner. Judge Slingerland would take off his glasses and weigh them on his thumb, and everybody would look all around trying to find the person the Judge was settling on.

"I CHOOSE," the Judge would say, and then joggle his glasses as if he was about to change his mind, and that would make it more exciting than ever. He ought to have played with Booth. Then he would begin all over again: "I choose, as the first person on my side—" you couldn't keep the Judge from making a ceremony of it—"a person sitting in the third row,—Mr. Ed Boblett." The Judge always put the Mister on that way. Then you would swing your head toward the third row and there would be Ed Boblett blushing all over. He'd get up and just as he would start to walk across the floor he'd give his head a shake and push back his hair with his hand.

Then Harvey Clark would ponderously take his choice. You would think that he was choosing his cabinet.

The opposing lines would begin to grow, some of them standing on one foot and some with their hands in their pockets as if they would never be able to get them out alone, and some of them would be standing stiff and straight, their chins on their collars, like statues at a world's fair. The Hard Work Of Getting Well

During convalescence the nerves are all unstrung by weakness and, frequently, the passion for gaining strength develops into a fitfulness that defeats the very end desired. The irritation increases. This devitalizing condition causes the organism to cease functioning. Complete derangement follows and ends in relapse. And a proper support for the rapidly adjusting nerves and tissues would prevent this.

A Tonic-Food That Brings Harmony Out of Chaos

After the toxins have burned themselves out in a severe illness the body is sadly wasted. The secretive glands are depleted of their reserve force stores—the nerves are shreds—everything is a-jangle. The nerves must be quieted. The digestion must be restored to normal. And so, we see that several important characteristics must be typical qualities of the agency that will relieve the condition. It must quiet and support the nerves. It must increase the digestive fluid flow. It must satisfy the resulting demand.

Malt and Hops the Ideal Restorative

The careful investigator will set aside everything but hops and barley malt—in combination. The hops set up a healthy demand for nourishment. This is immediately satisfied by the nutritive malt—rich in tissue-building and blood making properties. This liquid food, in predigested form, is welcomed by the weakest stomach, readily assimilated by the blood and furnishes nourishment for nerve and muscle.

The Thing To Consider is Pabst Extract

Pabst Extract, The "Best" Tonic, is made from specially-selected hops and Pabst 8-day malt, made from the most carefully-chosen barley.

A Dozen Bottles Will Prove Its Worth

The action of Pabst Extract is a process of building up and, although the first bottle will prove efficacious, it will require a course of it to build up the system to normal. All progressive druggists have Pabst Extract in stock—order a dozen bottles today from yours.

A booklet will be sent you free of all charge—it is highly instructive. Write today for a copy.

Mysterious Mrs. Osgood

Osgood said, "I have escaped all that."

So then, Mrs. Osgood was a widow, very much devoted to an exemplary son who was doing well in business. I had gathered that much, at least.

"And how old is your son?" I asked.

"He'll be fourteen next March."

So much for my hasty conclusion. "Then he's beginning to be great company for you?" I thought that a very intelligent remark for a bachelor.

"Yes, he and I have each other." And there was a pause.

"Have you put him through school?" I asked, not knowing till afterward how much I was paining the poor woman.

"No, sir," she said. "I've tried teaching him myself—though I dare say he might be better cared for," she added very simply.

I uttered some empty compliment about her evident abilities.

"Well," said Mrs. Osgood, looking up from her tub and wasting a very sweet smile upon the steam-fogged window, "perhaps after all he has been better off with me."

I was struck by that light in her face. And somehow there was a note in her voice that limited conversation to whatever she herself might care to add.

"You see, my Edward is different from most boys," she went on after a moment. She had sat down on the edge of a chair, to indicate that the pause in her work was for but a moment. "Ah," she said, "I do pity some mothers! There's Mrs. Bardsley, here in town. Perhaps you've heard about it?" I shook my head. "Such nice people, they are. Mr. Bardsley was president of the bank till he resigned a short time ago. You see, young William, their son—such a nice, likely-looking young man, a college graduate too, who seemed to have everything his way—was helping his father in the bank. But the boy took money, and went to jail. He can never have meant to do it. It was just a slip. But I do pity his mother."

I murmured some approval of her sentiment.

"Really," Mrs. Osgood went on, "there seem to be so many things that can happen. Somehow, you can't pick up a paper but it has in it something of that sort—children who wound their parents."

"It's certainly a sad world for many," I weakly acknowledged.

"Yes," said Mrs. Osgood, "I never hear of such things but I pity those poor mothers. I pity them because I have no fear of such things from my boy. I am very fortunate."

Mrs. Medway entered just then and called me elsewhere. Perhaps Mrs. Osgood had not been at her best that morning. Unusual for a washerwoman, I thought, though without justification for such a repute as hers. Uncommonly proud of a good boy, that was all.

But that evening Mrs. Medway arranged to have me take her little daughter with a cake for Mrs. Osgood and her boy. R—— boasts that it has no slums, but in a quarter that verged the nearest to plainness we found Mrs. Osgood's dwelling. With a few commonplace greetings we left our gift and departed, it seemed to me with rather scanty thanks and hospitality.

"Did you see Mrs. Osgood's son?" Mrs. Medway asked when we returned.

I said we had not, though I was especially anxious to meet the prodigy.

"She was suspicious," said Mrs. Medway. "She's sensitive—and suspected that I had told you."

"Told me what?"

"That her son is a total blank."

THIS, then, was Mrs. Osgood—but no, not all. Mrs. Medway told me the rest.

Injured at birth, the boy had never showed the first glimmer of intelligence. The day we had called he was as much a care as in the first hour of his life. All that in a baby is sweet and of appealing helplessness was in him hideously outgrown and distorted. For fourteen years he had played with rattles and blocks, unable to speak or to dress himself. Three times Mrs. Osgood had been obliged to move, because the sounds that he made—his unendurable cooing in his gruff voice—had quite overcome the neighbors.

Yet year after year that woman—once, more gently treated by Circumstance, too, I learned—had borne her burden, and yet had arrived at uncomplaining philosophy. The exquisite compensations of motherhood had never fallen to Mrs. Osgood, but only its heaviest cares. This for fourteen years! And Mrs. Osgood still persuaded herself that her boy was improving!

"And now what do you think of her?" Mrs. Medway inquired somewhat curiously, when she had told me this.

I did not then, as I do not now, know what to think of Mrs. Osgood. But I no longer wonder at her wide and excellent repute.

Royalty at Close Range

By Adolf Baumann

SOME of my experiences as a photographer of royalty have not been without amusement and serve to illustrate that the occupants of thrones are very human. I remember an afternoon when the Grand Duke Ludwig of Bavaria unexpectedly rushed into my studio. The Grand Duke is informal and jolly of manner.

"Herr Baumann," said he, laughing, "I am dying for a smoke. Will you let me?" In Europe royalty does not smoke on the streets, as it is considered a breach of dignity.

"Certainly, your excellence," I said. So the Duke lighted a cigar and enjoyed a long smoke before going on his way.

On another occasion Prince Leopold brought his son, Prince Ruppert, then four years of age, and now the Crown Prince of Bavaria, to my studio. My son, then a wee tot, was there playing with a decorated cane. This attracted the envious attention of the young Prince. Rushing across the room the Prince seized the cane—the two children had a lively tussle. But the Prince was the stronger, and while my son set up a howl he triumphantly bore off his prize.

"You must give this back," his father insisted.

He made a wry face, as if about to cry.

"Well," said his father, "do not let us spoil the picture." I quieted my own little boy, and while the Prince reveled in his possession I took the pictures. When they were ready to depart, his father tried to make him return the cane; but it had appealed to his fancy and he began to scream and sob.

"You take the cane," I said. My own little boy reluctantly consented to the gift. A few days afterward an ornate and expensive cane arrived—a gift from the Prince to my son.

As a matter of fact, the glamour with which the popular mind invests royal personages is mostly imaginary; they are simple human beings, hedged in and restricted by court formulas, eager for freedom, and always desirous of being human. As much as anybody else they are interested in the state of the weather. I suppose queens, if they had to look after the household, would probably be absorbed in the price of beef. About great policies of national import, about economic and social movements they never, if ever, in public express themselves; in fact, these things are thought out by their ministers and functionaries, and it is doubtful if they would have any original views to offer. A princess is paramountly interested in her new dress from Paris; a prince in his special brand of cigar. All are eager to look well before the camera, and one and all are conscious of the effect their pictures should have upon the public.

A girl, reading in a paper that fish was excellent brainfood, wrote to the editor:

"Seeing as you say how fish is good for the brains, what kind of fish shall I eat?"

The editor replied: "Judging from the composition of your letter, I should advise you to eat a whale."

Missing: Page Thirteen

This was a matter of great regret to him later, as it left him for a moment out of the range of every eye, during which he says he simply stood in a state of shock at seeing Mr. Spielhagen still sitting there, manuscript in hand, but with head fallen forward and eyes closed—dead, asleep or—he hardly knew what; the sight so paralyzed him.

Whether or not this was the exact truth and the whole truth, Mr. Cornell certainly looked very unlike himself as he stepped back into Mr. Van Broecklyn's presence; and he was only partially reassured when that gentleman protested that there was no real harm in the drug, and that Mr. Spielhagen would be all right if left to wake naturally and without shock. However, as his present attitude was one of great discomfort, they decided to carry him back and lay him on the library lounge. But before doing this, Mr. Upham drew from his flaccid grasp, the precious manuscript, and carrying it into the larger room placed it on a remote table, where it remained undisturbed till Mr. Spielhagen, suddenly coming to himself at the end of some fifteen minutes, missed the sheets from his hand, and bounding up, crossed the room to repossess himself of them.

His face as he lifted them up and rapidly ran through them with ever accumulating anxiety, told them what they had to expect.

The page containing the formula was gone!

* * * *

VIOLET now saw her problem. There was no doubt about the loss; all could see that page 13 was not there. In vain a second handling of every sheet, the one so numbered was not to be found. Page 14 met the eye on the top of the pile, and page 12 finished it off at the bottom, but the sequence in between was unbroken by the most important one of all, the missing 13.

Where had it vanished, and through whose agency had this misadventure occurred. No one could say, or, at least, no one there made any attempt to do so, though everybody started to look for it.

But where look? The adjoining small room offered no facilities for hiding a cigar-end, much less a square of shining white paper. Bare walls, bare floor and a single chair for furniture, comprised all that was to be seen in this direction. Nor could the room in which they then stood be thought to hold it, unless it was on the person of some one of them. Could this be the explanation of the mystery? No man looked his doubts; but Mr. Cornell, possibly divining the general feeling, stepped up to Mr. Van Broecklyn and in a cool voice, but with the red burning hotly on either cheek said, so as to be heard by everyone present:

"I demand to be searched—at once and thoroughly."

A moment's silence, then the common cry:

"We will all be searched."

"Is Mr. Spielhagen sure that the missing page was with the others when he sat down in the adjoining room to read his thesis?" asked their perturbed host.

"Very sure" came the emphatic reply. "Indeed, I was just going through the formula itself when I fell asleep."

"You are ready to assert this?"

"I am ready to swear it."

Mr. Cornell repeated his request.

"I demand that you make a thorough search of my person. I must be cleared, and instantly, of every suspicion," he gravely asserted, "or how can I marry Miss Digby tomorrow."

After that there was no further hesitation. One and all subjected themselves to the ordeal suggested; even Mr. Spielhagen. But this effort was as futile as the rest. The lost page was not found.

What were they to think? What were they to do?

There seemed to be nothing left to do, and yet some further attempt must be made towards the recovery of this important formula. Mr. Cornell's marriage and Mr. Spielhagen's business success both depended upon its being in the latter's hands before six in the morning, when he was engaged to hand it over to a certain manufacturer sailing for Europe on an early steamer.

Five hours!

Had Mr. Van Broecklyn a suggestion to offer? No, he was as much at sea as the rest.

Simultaneously look crossed look. Blankness was on every face.

"Let us call the ladies," suggested one.

It was done, and however great the tension had been before, it was even greater when Miss Digby stepped upon the scene. But she was not a woman to be shaken from her poise even by a crisis of this importance. When the dilemma had been presented to her and the full situation grasped, she looked first at Mr. Cornell and then at Mr. Spielhagen, and quietly said:

"There is but one explanation possible of this matter. Mr. Spielhagen will excuse me but he is evidently mistaken in thinking that he saw the lost page among the rest. The condition into which he was thrown by the unaccustomed drug he had drunk, made him liable to hallucinations. I have not the least doubt he thought he had been studying the formula at the time he dropped off to sleep. I have every confidence in the gentleman's candor. But so have I in that of Mr. Cornell," she supplemented, with a smile.

An exclamation from Mr. Van Broecklyn and a subdued murmur from all but Mr. Spielhagen, testified to the effect of this suggestion, and there is no saying what might have been the result if Mr. Cornell had not hurriedly put in this extraordinary and most unexpected protest.

"Miss Digby has my gratitude," said he, "for a confidence which I hope to prove to be deserved. But I must say this for Mr. Spielhagen. He was correct in stating that he was engaged in looking over his formula when I stepped into his presence with the glass of cordial. If you were not in a position to see the hurried way in which his hand instinctively spread itself over the page he was reading, I was; and if that does not seem conclusive to you, then I feel bound to state that in unconsciously following this movement of his, I plainly saw the number written on the top of the page, and that number was—13."

An abrupt exclamation, this time from Spielhagen himself, announced his gratitude and corresponding change of attitude toward the speaker.

"Wherever that damned page has gone," he protested, advancing toward Cornell with outstretched hand, "you have nothing to do with its disappearance."

Suddenly those very words passed someone's lip, and with their utterance Mr. Upham remembered how at an extraordinary crisis in his own life, he had been helped and an equally difficult problem settled, by a little lady secretly attached to a private detective agency. If she could only be found and hurried here before morning, all might yet be well. He would make the effort. Such wild schemes sometimes work. He telephoned to the office and——

Was there anything else Miss Strange would like to know.

MISS STRANGE, thus appealed to, asked where the gentlemen were now.

She was told that they were still all together in the library; the ladies had been sent home.

"Then let us go to them," said Violet, hiding under a smile her great fear that here was an affair which might very easily spell for her that dismal word, failure.

So great was that fear that under all ordinary circumstances she would have had no thought for anything else in the short interim between this stating of the problem and her speedy entrance among the persons involved. But the circumstances of this case were so far from ordinary, or rather let me put it in this way, the setting of the case was so very extraordinary, that she scarcely thought of the problem before her, in her great interest in the house through whose rambling halls she was being so carefully guided. So much that was tragic and heartrending had occurred here. The Van Broecklyn name, the Van Broecklyn history, above all the Van Broecklyn tradition,

"Promise me that you will try Sanatogen—"

AND at last he does promise. He tries Sanatogen, he takes it three times a day. Skeptical at first, his doubts soon vanish, for gradually but surely there is wrought a change which spells better health, a new happiness to himself and those dearest to him.

The kindly, tonic effect of Sanatogen arouses the nervous system, not by falsely stimulating it, but by persistently feeding cell and tissue with its own concentrated pure nourishment.

Sanatogen
THE FOOD-TONIC

Now, also a relish for food returns, digestion is wonderfully improved—for remember, nerves and digestion depend on each other, and Sanatogen by aiding digestion and strengthening the nerve centres, restores harmony to both.

Such is the action of Sanatogen, well known to thousands and thousands of grateful people to whom Sanatogen has brought better health, stronger nerves, improved digestion, renewed efficiency of body and mind.

The world's most famous people know Sanatogen's effects from personal experience—the medical profession of five continents know them—and no less than 21,000 physicians have so testified in writing.

When will you know and feel the good Sanatogen is capable of doing?

Grand Prize, International Congress of Medicine, London, 1913.

Col. Henry Watterson, the famous Editor, writes:
"I feel I owe it to truth to state that I have made a thorough trial of Sanatogen and that I have found it most efficacious and beneficent. I do not think I could have recovered my vitality, as I have done, without this Sanatogen operating equally upon the digestive organs and nerve centers."

Sir Gilbert Parker, M. P., the eminent novelist-statesman, writes from London:
"Sanatogen is to my mind a true food-tonic, feeding the nerves, increasing the energy, and giving fresh vigor to the overworked body and mind."

Don't make your baby do a grown-up's work

DON'T make him walk before his little legs are strong. Don't make him sit up while his back is weak. Don't make his little stomach fight the heavy curd in cow's milk that even grown-ups have trouble with.

You know that most cow's milk is 30 hours old before it reaches you. Perhaps you can tell whether it came from a clean dairy; you certainly can't tell if it came from a healthy cow. The New York Milk Committee says one cow in three carries germs of consumption.

And even if the cow is healthy and the dairy clean—much has to be done to cow's milk before it is light enough and good enough for your baby. And all that is done in that gives your baby the strength, health and safety of mother's milk. Nurse your baby—even if it is only a little while—and then if he does not gain every week add one feeding a day of Nestlé's Food. Then two feedings, and so on, till the baby is entirely weaned.

Nestlé's is pure milk from healthy cows, milked in clean dairies, and modified so that the tiniest baby can digest it. The heavy, tough curd is made soft and fleecy as in mother's milk, and the special things your baby needs for a healthy body are added. Just add cold water, and boil and it is ready.

Send the coupon for free sample box of Nestle's—enough for 12 feedings, and the Specialist's book on the care of babies. Don't delay. Your baby's health depends on the food you give him now.

which made the house unique in the country's annals (of which more hereafter), all made an appeal to her imagination, and centered her thoughts on what she saw about her. There was a door which no man ever opened—had never opened since Revolutionary times—should she see it? Should she know it if she did see it? Then Mr. Van Broecklyn himself! Just to meet him, under any conditions and in any place, was an event. But to meet him here, under the pall of his own mystery! No wonder she had no words for her companions, or that her thoughts clung to this anticipation in wonder and almost fearsome delight.

His story was a well-known one. A bachelor and a misanthrope, he lived absolutely alone save for a large entourage of servants, all men and elderly ones at that. He never visited. Though he now and then, as on this occasion, entertained certain persons under his roof, he declined every invitation for himself, avoiding ever, with equal strictness, all evening amusements of whatever kind, which would detain him in the city after ten at night. Perhaps, this was to insure no break in his rule of life never to sleep out of his own bed. Though he was a man well over fifty he had spent, according to his own statement, but two nights out of his own bed since his return from Europe in early boyhood, and those were in obedience to a judicial summons which took him to Boston.

This was his main eccentricity, but he had another which is apparent enough from what has already been said. He avoided women. If thrown in with them during his short visits into town, he was invariably polite and at times companionable, but he never sought them out, nor had gossip, contrary to its usual habit, ever linked his name with one of the sex.

Yet he was a man of more than ordinary attraction. His features were fine and his figure impressive. He might have been the cynosure of all eyes had he chosen to enter crowded drawing-rooms or even to frequent public assemblages, but having turned his back upon everything of the kind in his youth, he had found it impossible to alter his habits with advancing years; nor was he now expected to. The position he had taken was respected. Leonard Van Broecklyn was no longer criticized.

Was there any explanation for this strangely self-centered life. Those who knew him best seemed to think so. In the first place he had sprung from an unfortunate stock. Events of an unusual and tragic nature had marked the family of both parents. Nor had his parents themselves been exempt from this seeming fatality. Antagonistic in tastes and temperament, they had dragged on an unhappy existence in the old home, till both natures rebelled, and a separation ensued which not only disunited their lives but sent them to opposite sides of the globe never to return again. At least, that was the inference drawn from the peculiar circumstances attending the event. On the morning of one never-to-be-forgotten day, John Van Broecklyn, the grandfather of the present representative of the family, found the following note from his son lying on the library table:

> "Father: Life in this house, or any house, with her is no longer endurable. One of us must go. The mother should not be separated from her child. Therefore it is I whom you will never see again. Forget me, but be considerate of her and the boy.—William."

Six hours later another note was found, this time from the wife:

> "Father: Tied to a rotting corpse what does one do? Lop off one's arm if necessary to rid one of the contact. As all love between your son and myself is dead, I can no longer live within the sound of his voice. As this is his home, he is the one to remain in it. May our child reap the benefit of his mother's loss and his father's affection.—Rhoda."

Both were gone, and gone forever. Simultaneous in their departure they preserved each his own silence and sent no word back. If the one went east and the other west, they may have met on the other side of the globe, but never again in the home which sheltered their boy. For him and for his grandfather they had sunk from sight in the great sea of humanity, leaving them stranded on an isolated and mournful shore. The grandfather steeled himself to the double loss for the child's sake; but the boy of eleven succumbed. Few of the world's great sufferers, of whatever age or condition, have mourned as this child mourned, or shown the effects of his grief so deeply or so long. Not till he had passed his majority did the line, carved in one day in his baby forehead, lose any of its intensity; and there are those who declare that even later than that, the midnight stillness of the house was disturbed from time to time, by his muffled shriek of "Mother! Mother!" sending the servants from the house, and adding one more horror to the many which clung about this accursed mansion.

Of this cry Violet had heard, and it was that and the door——But I have already told you about the door which she was still looking for, when her two companions suddenly halted, and she found herself on the threshold of the library, in full view of Mr. Van Broecklyn and his guests.

Slight and fairy-like in figure, with an air of modest reserve more in keeping with her youth and dainty dimpling beauty than with her errand, her appearance produced an astonishment which none of the gentlemen was able to disguise. This the clever detective, with a genius for social problems and odd elusive cases!— this darling of the ball-room in satin and pearls! Mr. Spielhagen glanced at Mr. Cornell, and Mr. Cornell at Mr. Spielhagen, and both at Mr. Upham, in very evident distrust. As for Violet, she had eyes only for Mr. Van Broecklyn who stood before her in a surprise equal to that of the others but with more restraint in its expression.

She was not disappointed in him. She had expected to see a man, reserved almost to the point of austerity. And she found her first look even more awe-compelling than her imagination had pictured; so much so, indeed, that her resolution faltered, and she took a quick step backward; which seeing, he smiled and her heart and hopes grew warm again. That he could smile, and smile with absolute sweetness, was her great comfort when later——But I am introducing you too hurriedly to the catastrophe.

A Snake-Bite at Close Range

IF YOU should be so unfortunate as to be bitten by a snake and were not quite certain what sort of a snake it was, whether poisonous or of the so-called harmless variety, look at the injury. If there are four punctures, or even three, the chances are that it was not a venomous snake; but if there are only two punctures it is probable you have been bitten by an extremely poisonous snake. While this does not always hold good, as a non-poisonous snake may have had opportunity to make only two incisions with his four biting teeth, it is best to take no chances at all.

The poisonous snake has but two deadly fangs—generally in the upper jaw. But, no matter what sort of a snake bites you, the head of that snake should, wherever possible, be kept for identification. If, as is generally the case, the bite is on an extremity, tie one or more ligatures—preferably of broad rubber bands—above the injury. Incise deeply, cutting across the puncture for at least one inch and well beyond the depth reached by the fang. Next, wash in running water, manipulating the part to promote free bleeding. If running water is not available, suck the wound, then rinse the mouth thoroughly with a solution of potassium permanganate. Now wash the wound well, and use in and around it the potassium permanganate solution; or inject a 1 to 100 solution of chromic acid, being careful to infiltrate completely, not only the wound, but also the surrounding tissues.

Do not give ammonia. Stimulate with small doses of whiskey, if indicated, but do not overdose, as more persons have been killed by taking large quantities of whiskey than by snake bite. When positively certain the poison has been removed from the wound, loosen cautiously the ligatures, that nearest the heart first, but do not remove them, so they may be again tightened if symptoms recur. In all cases the victim must have the best surgical care. The wound should be packed with antiseptic gauze.

When the lines were formed, the Professor would begin pronouncing. He would give the children easy words, and they'd never know they weren't spelling right along with the best of them.

The words were easy at first, but pretty soon they'd begin to get hard. He'd start in with dozen, but soon he'd be up to seized and sieve. Sieve looks easy in print but you just turn around and ask somebody how to spell it and see how many times he has to wet his lips. Do you remember how one school teacher taught you how to remember whether the e or the i came first? Yes, you do—think a minute. Don't you remember he said that a sieve and a sifter were about the same thing and that both started off with the same letters—si?

You couldn't let your mind wander at all in a spelling contest. If one person missed a word, you'd know that wasn't the way to spell it and could fix it around some other way.

THE Professor would give out long words for awhile, then all of a sudden change to catch words.

"Nice," the Professor would say, "a kind of rock."

Do you remember how you would spell nice—a kind of rock? Think a minute. It was one of those catch words, you know. Why g-n-e-i-s-s. I'll bet Webster laughed when he put that one in.

The Professor just gave out those short ones to catch you off guard; he knew that you would study up on the long ones and so he gave out the catch ones. After you had got so that you could rattle off daguerreotype and honorificabilitudinitibus, he would give out cacique. Honorif—you pronounce it yourself—was a jaw-breaker, wasn't it? When you said it fast it was like a marble rolling down stairs. It was just as hard to say three times in succession as any tongue twister, like a rat ran over the roof of the house with a lump of raw liver in its mouth. Well, if you think that is so easy to say just rattle it off a couple of times right fast there, what kind of lump did you say? I'll bet Demosthenes never tried to say a rat ran over a roof of a house with a lump of raw liver in its mouth, or he'd never have gone down to the ocean and used the pebbles.

The short words were the worst. When the Professor pronounced it, how in the world was a person to tell nee-mon-icks, a system of memory training, began with an m? Not one person in a thousand would know that it was spelled mnemonics.

One by one they would go down and you would hold your breath till he gave out your word for fear that it would be an awful one. You tried to let on as though you were not worrying about your word, but you were all the time and what a sigh of relief you gave when the Professor went on. And think after all your weeks of studying and getting prepared on all the long ones that you should go down on gauze. You might have known that the a came first—but it's always easy to have might-have-known things when it's too late.

You don't think much about such a word when you are writing a letter when, if you get stuck, you can write it on the corner of an old envelope and see if it looks right, but when you go to spell it before a whole hall full of people you'd give anything if they'd let you have an old envelope and a stub pencil for a moment.

Every time around, there would be a mowing down. A lot of the people you thought would stand up longest were about the first ones to go, and people you'd never paid much attention to or thought about, it just seemed that the Professor couldn't find words to down them. Did you ever notice how quick preachers are to go down. You'd naturally think that Webster would have a hard time sending them to their seats, but instead of that they'd be about the first ones to go, but always before they got the gate they would have to stop and argue and explain how in the biblical sense it was spelled that way.

You could come mighty near telling what kind of a fellow a man was by the way he took being spelled down. Some of them would slink over to their seats as if they were ashamed and wished that they had studied harder, while others would stamp over swinging their hands as if they hadn't been given a fair show.

DIDN'T Arch Purdy make you laugh when he'd go down—he'd always pretend that he didn't understand the word while he was thinking and then he'd twist up one eye and hist up one shoulder as if he wished that he could just get his hands on it once and then drag out the letters till you'd think he'd never get through. When he'd miss the word, he'd go wobbling over to his seat, shaking his head as if it had been the Professor's fault.

Mr. Greensfelder was just opposite to Arch Purdy. Mr. Greensfelder was a little wisp of a man with a way of resting one thumb in his vest pocket. When the word was given out to him, he'd stand there looking straight ahead without moving a muscle, except batting his eyes. The harder he would think the faster they would work. He'd open his mouth then give it up; his tongue would lash out at his lips and his eyes would flitter faster than ever. Then out would come the crisp, crinkly words, like stepping on a basket, and when he was through his mouth would close up as if the trigger had been touched.

The first thing you knew everybody would be mowed down except Harvey Clark and Judge Slingerland, the two old pioneers who had gone through more spelling contests than any other two in the county. When the Professor would give out a word everybody would lean forward and nod at each letter. And when the speller went wrong everybody would gasp and if he was watching close enough he could correct before the Professor said "Next!" It was exciting!

When big, ponderous Harvey Clark spelled a word he went at it slowly and deliberately as if he were delivering an appreciation at a Woodman funeral and when he got through you would put his way up against the spelling-books. One lip-sprainer after another would be rattled off until it seemed that the two men could never be spelled down. You'd have thought they'd have missed beryllium, wouldn't you—but they didn't.

The Professor began to get worried and began turning nervously through the book afraid that he couldn't find a word that would down them.

"Fuchsia, a kind of flowering plant," he pronounced. That seemed so easy in comparison to ecumenical, desiccation—do you remember those two c's—and others that they were rolling off that you sort of took your mind off it for a moment when it happened—when Harvey Clark spelled it f-u-s-h-i-a.

"Next!" said the Professor before you knew what was happening.

Everybody in the hall straightened up—and such a common word, too. Why, everybody had them in the yard!

"I must not have understood the word," defended Harvey Clark. "I thought you meant a small flowering plant."

"I did," said the Professor. "Next."

THE Slingerland supporters nodded their heads with approval and turned expectantly to Judge Slingerland. But there was a worried look on the Judge's face—he was not exactly sure about the word.

"Will you pronounce the word again?" asked the Judge, reaching for the back of his coat, making use of every moment of gained time by bringing his brows together in deep furrows.

"F-u—" spelled the Judge while his followers nodded off the words.

The next letter was the pivot.

"—s-c-h-i-a," he added.

"Wrong," cut in the Professor. "There is no s in the first syllable—f-u-c-h-s-i-a. The match is a tie."

Say, didn't that bring them down? Do you remember how everybody clapped and cheered and how happy old Mr. Greensfelder looked now that he wouldn't have to give the watch for another year—the watch that was real gold as long as it wasn't around sulphur? I guess it was exciting with everybody talking and laughing and calling out perfectly useless questions to Harvey Clark and the Judge just to show that they knew them—why, you couldn't find anything that was more exciting! It's too bad they don't have such good times any more.

Yes, the Effect IS Beautiful. I Can Keep the Walls and Ceilings Spotless. They're Finished in

UPSON PROCESSED BOARD

You've no idea what a difference Upson Board will make not only in your bedroom—but in every room in your house. Upson Board makes artistically beautiful and sanitary walls and ceilings. You can keep them spotlessly clean by wiping them off with a damp cloth just as you do ordinary woodwork.

The wood-like panels of Upson Board—hard, tough, and rigid—take the place of plaster and wall paper. Nail Upson Board over the old cracked plaster or directly over the studding and joists. Paint it in soft, rich tones and you have beautiful, harmonious walls and ceilings that can never crack, chip, or fall. The panels can be made inconspicuous or artistically contrastive.

Do not accept an inferior substitute for Upson Processed Board. It possesses every good quality of other boards and five vitally important, exclusive features of its own. It is hard and tough—much like pine lumber. Each panel is scientifically processed by the original Upson method—KILN CURED to minimize shrinkage and expansion—WATERPROOFED so that ordinary leaks will not affect it—SURFACE FILLED to save you the expense of the priming coat required by soft, spongy, absorbent boards. You save at least $5.00 per room on this priming coat alone. Most fibre boards, because soft and absorbent, soak up paint like blotting paper and therefore require at least two or three and often four coats in addition to the priming coat. One coat of paint will often finish Upson Board smoothly and evenly, while two will always do it. This means another saving of at least $5 per room.

If there is no Upson dealer near you we will make it easy to buy direct.

Margaret of New Orleans

By L. G. Randall

A YOUNG girl, on her first visit to New Orleans, stood beside her mother gazing with deep interest at a beautiful white marble statue—the work of a great sculptor. The statue represents a woman seated in a low chair with one arm thrown caressingly around the shoulders of a little child who looks up at her lovingly and trustingly. The woman is poorly dressed. Inscribed on the base of the statue is the one word "Margaret."

"Who was Margaret and what did she do?" asked the young girl.

"Margaret," replied her mother, "was a most remarkable woman who came here a stranger—an unlettered Irish woman who could read but little and was not able to write at all. She could not tell the date of her birth and her will was signed with a cross. Yet so famous did she become that within a few short years after her death the statue was unveiled to her memory—the first erected in this country in honor of a woman."

"When almost an infant," continued the mother, "she landed with her father and mother in Baltimore. A few years later both parents died and Margaret was brought up by a friend of her mother's, who, while good to her in many ways, evidently never sent her to school. As soon as she was old enough she went to work in a hotel as a waitress. Living in this hotel was a gentleman named Haughery, who became attached to Margaret and married her.

"Soon afterward Margaret and her husband came to New Orleans, where a few months later her husband died and Margaret, for the second time, was left alone and penniless. She found work in a laundry where she toiled for almost two years. With the money she saved from her wages she bought a few cows and started a small dairy. Customers were plentiful, for it soon became known that the milk bought from Margaret was just what she represented it to be.

"So successful was her dairy that she was able to save a few hundred dollars. This money she loaned to a friend who owned a small bakery. The friend failed and in order to get back her money, Margaret had to take charge of the bakery. At first this store seemed too much of an undertaking, for she knew nothing about a bakery. But she did not allow herself to become discouraged, and in a short time her bakery grew till it became the largest in the city. As her income increased, her charities also increased. The orphan asylums in New Orleans, Jewish, Catholic and Protestant alike were supplied with all the bread they needed at a nominal price.

"During the Civil War when the price of flour was almost prohibitive, Margaret gave generously to the poor. She fed the soldiers of both sides freely for it was a part of her nature to make no distinctions. Often in one day she gave away as many as fifteen hundred loaves of bread.

"It was her custom each year, when settling her accounts, to divide equally among the charitable institutions of New Orleans whatever profits had accumulated. She seemed to have no desire to grow rich, preferring to see the good that her money might accomplish. When she died, thirty years ago, the entire city—rich and poor alike—united to do honor to her memory."

Alimony for Husbands?

IN THE PAGEANT of divorce in the United States there is one division that has been overlooked, except by the eagle-eyed watchers of the Bureau of the Census. It is composed of men whose divorced wives pay them alimony. The statistics cover the period between 1887 and 1906 and show that in that time 8,999 husbands who sued for divorce asked for alimony. In 6,354 cases the courts granted the prayer.

It is an everyday occurrence for the aggrieved wife to ask for alimony, and more than seventy-two per cent. of these requests are successful. The man who asks for alimony is but a shade less successful. The figures show that twenty-eight out of every thousand of male seekers after the detached life demanded alimony from their better-off halves, and that twenty out of every thousand got it. The men's percentage, therefore, is a little better than seventy, which is but two per cent. less than the women's.

The census report on marriage and divorce is silent regarding the amounts that husbands receive from their former wives upon whom they continue to depend, more or less, for bread and butter. Neither does it disclose the reasons why the men were allowed alimony

The cases are scattered all over the continental United States, with the exception of Delaware and South Carolina. In Delaware six husbands asked for alimony in the two decades, but the court turned a deaf ear. In South Carolina all laws permitting divorce were repealed in 1878.

The North Central Division, in which nearly half of all the divorces in the entire United States were granted, has a little more than seventy per cent. of the husbands who draw alimony. This division comprises the following States with the number of wife-supported ex-husbands as indicated: Ohio, 673; Wisconsin, 566; Illinois, 523; Kansas, 475; Indiana, 453; Michigan, 443; Iowa, 432; Missouri, 328; Nebraska, 243; Minnesota, 140; South Dakota, 123; North Dakota, 107.

THE first nine States in this list not only are at the head of the column in their own division, but occupy the same order in the whole United States. The census experts say that the variations between different sections of the country must be accounted for by the composition of population as regards race or nationality, the proportion of immigrants in the total population and the countries from which they came; the relative strength of the prevailing religions; the variations in divorce laws and in the procedure and practice of the courts granting divorce; and the interstate migration of population, either for the purpose of obtaining divorce or other reasons.

The South Atlantic States have only 178 dependent ex-husbands on record. The North Atlantic Division, which includes the oldest and some of the richest States in the Union, is next to the lowest in the regional list. Massachusetts's 107 alimony-receiving husbands is the largest number in this section, and New York has only 61.

The South Central Division of States has a total of 744 of these ungallant spouses who have found matrimony a failure in other ways than financially. The Western States come next. Nevada, with its divorce-industrious and much advertised Reno, ranks statistically with staid old Massachusetts.

A typical case of the husband asking for alimony recently came up in one of the New York City courts. The husband, fifty-eight years old, applied for an allowance of twenty-five dollars a week from his wife, from whom he had secured a separation after having been married four years. He based his plea on an alleged ante-nuptial agreement by which his wife had promised to provide him with an income of $5,500 a year.

The judge denied the motion for alimony, giving it as his opinion, as a matter of common law, that while the husband was obliged to support his wife, similar maintenance of the husband by the wife was not a reciprocal obligation.

NEW WRINKLES

When a glass tube is necessary for the patient who cannot sit up to drink from a cup, a stick of macaroni will serve admirably if the other is not at hand. It is also an excellent method to induce a child to drink milk when otherwise it might be refused.—F. H., Seattle, Wash.

To remove ink stains from mahogany furniture, put a few drops of spirits of nitre into a teaspoonful of water; touch the spot with a feather dipped in the fluid and the ink will disappear.—E. F., Neodesha, Kan.

When mending broken china stand it to "set" in a large box of sawdust. By so doing the article can be placed in any desired position, its own weight holding the piece steady while the cement is hardening.—S. C., Providence, R. I.

Sandwiches which are not to be used for some hours afterwards should be placed in an earthen receptacle tightly covered. Set the vessel in a pan of cold water and the sandwiches will keep moist and fresh for hours.—S. C. Providence, R. I.

When a glass cutter is not available take a file and mark the glass in the desired shape. Then lay a piece of common wrapping twine, which has been soaked in coal oil, along this line and stand the glass up edgewise, then set fire to the twine and the heat will break the glass where it is marked.—M. C., Providence, R. I.

An ordinary five-cent fire shovel, with its sides flattened out, is a splendid device for lifting pans, etc., to and from the oven. This will obviate the necessity of handling them and will prevent many burns.

When washing dainty lingeries, a few lumps of sugar dropped in the rinse water, to take the place of the usual starching, will make them beautiful after they are ironed.—Mrs. M. M., Newport, Ky.

A successful way to keep your neighbor's hens from scratching up your flowers is to spread on the ground, close to the rows or clumps of plants, strips of heavy paper, through which at close intervals, carpet tacks have been pushed up to the head. The paper is laid with the tacks pointing up, of course, with pieces of stone or brick on its edges to keep from blowing.—M. C., Providence, R. I.

For scorched linen try the following: From four peeled onions extract the juice, mix this with four ounces of fuller's earth, one ounce of soap and a pint of vinegar. Boil well together; when nearly cold put on the scorched places and let dry in the air. Wash in cold water. —E. M., Cincinnati, Ohio.

After washing the hair, a good way to thoroughly rinse it is to fill a common tin flower sprinkling can with water and suspend on a nail or hook above the head over the bathtub. The water comes with just force enough to rinse and the sprinkler can be filled as often as necessary.—J. B. S., Richmond, Ky.

After washing woolen blankets, dry them on curtain stretchers which will prevent them from shrinking.—Mrs. L.

A handy little dish washer for the milk bottle, etc., too narrow for the hand and cloth, is made from the wire handle of a grape basket, which is straightened out, with the hook left on one end.—H. H. G., Arcade, N. Y.

Instead of the ordinary method that is used for removing rust stains, try the lemon juice and salt as usual, but place over a steaming kettle. The rust spots will be removed in a few moments.— H. E. K., Los Angeles, Cal.

Before removing ribbon from lingerie, etc., sew tape—the same length—to one end of the ribbon. In drawing the ribbon out the tape takes its place. When the ribbon goes back again, sew it to the end of the tape and the tedious task of drawing the ribbon through in the old way is removed.—A. E. P., Collins, N.Y.

A simple and splendid filling for pin cushions can be made of dried coffee grounds which do not pack down and never rust the needles.

Butter and sugar to be creamed for cake or hard sauce can quickly be reduced to the right consistency by the aid of a wooden potato masher. First warm the mixing bowl before putting in the ingredients, then mash and the result is a light creamy mass with half the usual labor.—J. A. D., South Omaha, Neb.

An excellent way to clean a hairbrush is to take one-half cupful of salt and flour in equal proportions, mix and rub through the bristles of the brush two or three times. Shake the mixture all out and the brush will be clean as new. This is better than washing the brush, for it does not soften the bristles.—J. A. D., South Omaha, Neb.

To rid canaries of the parasites which affect them, place a clean white cloth over the cage at night. In the morning it will be covered with very minute red spots, almost invisible without a microscope, which are the vermin so annoying and fatal to birds. Burn the cloth and repeat if necessary.—J. A. D., South Omaha, Neb.

A sure way to remove ink stains from wash materials is to pour a tablespoonful of kerosene on the spots and rub well. Rinse in kerosene and the spots will disappear as if by magic. This should be done before the regulation washing.— S. C., Providence, R. I.

The Tango dancing slipper, which has become so popular, is a difficult thing to keep on the feet because the ribbon is bound to slip down. A way to prevent this is to work a loop with silk twist (buttonhole stitch) the same shade of the slippers, on the stocking where the ribbon is to be tied. The ribbon drawn through this loop, which should be about the width of the ribbon, will remain in place and cause no further annoyance. —F. H., N. Y. City.

Summer and Winter Postage Stamps

SOMETIMES you take precautions to place a few postage stamps inside a note book, where you would think they could not possibly stick together by carrying the book in your pocket, because there seems to be too much thickness for the body heat to penetrate, and yet you discover them, perhaps only a few hours later, stuck so firmly together that they are spoiled.

Then again, you may carry postage stamps about for many days or weeks and they never stick together. And the explanation of this is that the stamps that stick are probably "winter" stamps. This is because the government makes three brands of postage stamps, "summer," "winter" and "intermediate." The intermediate stamps are supposed to be used during the spring and fall, or during the seasons when it is neither extremely cold or excessively hot.

This does not mean that the Government Printing Department makes these stamps with any different design or color. The seasonable part of stamps is all in the glue, or gum, that is used to back them. For the summer sale the gum used is slightly harder than for the other sort. This is so it will not melt as readily with body heat or room heat, and is intended to assist in preventing them sticking together.

In winter such hard gum is not necessary, and again, too hard gum in the cold months will frequently crack right through the paper of the stamp, spoiling it. And so a thinner, lighter gum is used, which is more pliable, not so apt to crack with the cold and is better all around. Of course, for spring and autumn the intermediate grade of gum is used, of a consistency between the hard of summer and the thin of winter.
